Opposition for Hoover.
Mr. Rockefeller's Plan.
Pope Pius' Warning.
How Do We Know Ourselves?

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

LATEST POLITICAL news, not guaranteed, is that Gov. Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, backed by "Progressive Republicans," will try to take the nomination from Mr. Hoover in 1932. This is the first opposition to Mr. Hoover's renomination suggested thus far.

Taking the nomination from Mr. Hoover would not be easy, and if any taking were to be done, Senators Norris, Borah and La Follette might want to be considered.

Also would-be nominees should not forget that there is a certain Calvin Coolidge, sitting in the shadow keeping watch above his own. He wouldn't take anything away from President Hoover, but he might take it from somebody else. And how easily he could take it; from somebody else.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, Jr., serves his city by rebuilding and transforming an undeveloped section in the heart of New York at an expense of about $250,000,000.

This undertaking guarantees, over a long period, a very large and permanent income for Columbia College.

It shows what can be done, with imagination, energy and money, to improve a great city in a short time.

Most important, Mr. Rockefeller's enterprise will give employment to thousands of men now out of work in the highly-paid building trades.

AND MR. ROCKEFELLER'S magnificently-planned development, in the heart of New York, including a fine opera house, buildings for exhibition of moving pictures and for broadcasting, will attract visitors from all over the United States and add to the prosperity of all businessmen in New York.

SOME NEW YORK editors, suddenly developing deep knowledge of architecture, are very kind about telling Mr. Rockefeller what he should build. Some, it seems, would like him to tear down several blocks and create some sort of Petit Trianon in imitation of Marie Antoinette's playhouse at Versailles. Other perhaps would prefer a Fifth avenue Sans Souci.

MR. ROCKEFELLER, fortunately, is a businessman, has a business father, and does not mean to build what would be known later as "Rockefeller's Folly." He will build modern buildings, in the modern American way, up toward the sky.

MR. ROCKEFELLER'S plans will pay a fair return on the investment, following his method in building apartment houses with low rentals. He wants others to follow his useful example.

IF MR. ROCKEFELLER can prove, to great financial institutions and life insurance companies, that a city can be improved, an entire neighborhood transformed profitably, he will stimulate other enterprises of the same kind. This is far more important than building something to amuse himself or to please the "artistic" dilettante.

Incidentally, Mr. Rockefeller's enterprise will pay several millions a year in additional taxes collected by New York City. That will be welcome to a city government that knows what to do with taxes.

POPE PIUS XI, in an earnest letter of rebuke, criticizes Fascist authorities, which means Mussolini and his government.

Pope Pius warns Fascism, and Mussolini, plainly that "in order to be Catholics, not in name but in deed also, there is only one indispensable means—to obey the church and its head." The Pope's letter criticizes a statement by Giurati, secretary of the Fascist party, who objects to the "Acione Cattolica," a church organization which he calls hostile to Fascism.

THE POPE reminds the government that, "in the field of education, the church has full competence and authority," and that it is the duty of the government to be guided by the church, and to assist her.

Mussolini's only reply, thus far, is the arrest of newsboys selling the newspaper Osservatore Romano and calling out the Pope's letter of censure. There was no interference with newsboys selling the paper, but not calling out its contents.

POLICEMAN KEISHMAN was perplexed when a lady, 50 years old, said she did not know who she was, or where she lived. He anxiously asked a colleague:

"Can you beat it?"

At the hospital, the woman's trouble was called "aphasia," which means in Greek "not to speak." The policeman need not have been surprised.

The wonderful thing is that so many of us do know who we are, where we live and where we want to go, for the moment. How will it be in a few years, the other side of the grave?

Shall we then remember who we are, whom we used to be and whence we came? Those are the important questions. And what wonderful mechanism enables us to keep track of ourselves and identify ourselves each morning?

THE PRINCE of Wales, champion young salesman, after a business trip through South America, much of the trip by airplane, was expected to land on a flying field near Windsor Castle late yesterday afternoon, but his flight was postponed.

He and his assistant salesman and brother, Prince George, are prepared to show their father South American orders for goods amounting to $50,000,000.

BOY AND KING GUESTS OF HOOVER

Blizzard Hero and Siam's Monarch Get Presidential Welcome at White House

WASHINGTON, April 29.—(AP.)—Bryan Untiedt, hero of the Colorado blizzard, shared honors today with the King and Queen of Siam.

Arriving this morning to spend the day and night as guest of President and Mrs. Hoover.

The boy wore a blue suit and in his hand was a small camera. As he walked up the front portico of the executive mansion, he was received with all the formality accorded all White House visitors. The great front door was swung wide by a uniformed butler and Bryan walked inside to have breakfast in the family dining room.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Hoover already had eaten, as had Herbert Hoover, Jr., who arrived earlier in the morning from Asheville, where he had been recuperating from an illness for six months.

SECRET SERVICE GUARD

Untiedt was escorted by a secret service man who had accompanied him from his home near Denver. Secrecy was maintained to keep crowds from bothering the lad while crossing the country.

After being greeted by Mrs. Hoover, the boy was shown to the blue bedroom which in years past has housed many distinguished guests.

A few minutes later, Mrs. Stark McMillan, another White House guest, and long-time friend of the Hoovers, brought the lad to the White House executive offices to see the President.

TALKS WITH HOOVER

Entirely unabashed by the attention being shown him, Untiedt sat in a big arm chair and talked with the President about his trip from Colorado.

Protested Assignment of Jobholder Bridge Bureau; Garbage Profits Assailed

Public Works Director Edward G. Lang admitted today that he had protested the appointment of William A. Herd, political leader, as a supervisor in the bureau of bridges.

Lang, whose only superior is Mayor Charles H. Kline, was called by Attorney Henry Oliver Evans as his first witness at City Council's public investigation of the garbage and rubbish disposal system, and of bridge repainting.

The hearing, lasting little more than two hours, closed after President John S. Herron had assured Attorney Evans that when Kline returns to his office, Evans will be given an opportunity to question the Mayor concerning political appointments in the Public Works Department.

Other developments were:

1.—Attorney Henry Oliver Evans charged that the American Reduction Company's net earnings on its investment of $1,250,000 was 31.4 per cent. He estimated that the net earnings totaled $392,205.45.

2.—Dr. Maits suggested bids for removal of garbage and rubbish to be asked six months prior to letting of contracts, to foster competition. Suggested also that long term contract be entered into if money can be saved.

3.—Attorney Evans' chage that city's money is wasted in repainting bridges during January and February denied by

GUSHER SET ABLAZE BY SPARK

Six Injured, Several Missing As Wall of Flame Traps Victims; Red Plot Hinted

International News Service.

GLADEWATER, Tex., April 29.—Ten persons were known to be dead, two more were believed to be dying and four were reported missing today as scores of fire fighters continued an all-night battle to quell the flaming oil well which took the heavy toll of life last night.

The bodies of the known dead had been recovered, but the full loss of life never may be determined. Several spectators were believed to have been caught in the blaze. If that is true, their bodies probably were consumed by the white-hot flames.

SPARK STARTS FIRE

Reports had it that from four to eight persons had not been accounted for, but the mad confusion which followed the fire made it impossible today to make an accurate check.

Six persons were burned seriously and two of them are expected to die. Four of them were being treated in Longview and Tyler hospitals. The others were being treated at their homes by private physicians.

The fatal fire started early last night as a double crew of workmen were fighting to shut down the Sinclair No. 1-M. T. Cole well, which blew in Sunday out of control.

Just as success seemed at hand, a spark from the drill core set fire to the well and trapped the workmen and others inside a 100-foot wall of fire.

TRAPPED BY SEA OF FIRE

The spark, evidently caused by friction, exploded a gas pocket beneath the derrick platform on which the men worked. There was a brief flash. Then, before anyone could realize what had happened, the gushing stream of oil was turned into a column of fire. It showered flaming particles over a lake of oil that had formed around the well and a sea of fire surrounded a score or more workmen and spectators.

PROBE "RED" ANGLE

TYLER, Tex., April 29.—(AP.)—Sinclair Oil Company officials here said today that Texas rangers, investigating an alleged Communist plot to blow up oil field properties, were expected to inquire into the oil well explosion near Gladewater, Tex., last night.

FINAL SUNDAY BALL VOTE SET

By ED PRENDERGAST

Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, April 29.—The Schwartz Sunday baseball bill appeared on the House calendar today, slated for 10 o'clock Monday night as special business.

The inscription on the calendar, indicating that it would be up then for final passage, also told the story of one of the Legislature's most thrilling combats, in which blue law defenders were defeated for the first time in more than 125 years in Pennsylvania.

Yesterday's passage of the amendment to the Schwartz bill, making possible local option for Sunday ball, was engineered by the Philadelphia and Allegheny County delegations. The 103 to 99 vote, liberals say, was a scant margin indeed. It was pointed out today that 105 votes will be required for final passage of the amended bill.

LIBERALS SEE VICTORY

Proponents claim that Monday night they will gain more votes, insuring its passage in the House.

However, the churchmen's lobby and certain of the administration leaders, crushed over the defeat, plan to revive their lost strength, if possible.

PORTER AMUCK IN PULLMAN

UTICA, N. Y., April 29.—(AP.)—A porter attacked passengers and trainmen on a New York Central train, near here today, injuring four passengers with a club and ax before being subdued.

The fight began in a sleeping car in the early morning hours, continued through two Pullman coaches and ended in the private car of C. B. Broadhead, superintendent of the Adirondack division of the New York Central. The train belonged to this division.

At the end of Broadhead's car, the porter, J. E. Smith, of New York City, swung an ax he had taken from an emergency closet in the faces of his pursuers, holding them at bay.

At Thendara, 60 miles west of here, state troopers boarded the train with tear gas guns. When Smith saw the troopers, he submitted to arrest without further fight.

Harvard Educator Named to Bench

BOSTON, April 29.—(AP.)—Prof. John J. Burns, of the Harvard law school, today was nominated to the Superior Court bench by Gov. Joseph B. Ely. Prof. Burns is 30, and if confirmed would be the youngest man ever appointed to the Massachusetts bench. He would fill a vacancy created by a recent death. Prof. Burns attracted public attention in 1929 when, in a debate with Prof. Richard C. Cabot, at Harvard, he vehemently attacked prohibition.

Sandino Sets Reign of Terror

COLON, April 29.—(INS.)—Inauguration of a policy of "frightfulness" in Nicaragua and Honduras was ordered today, according to unofficial wireless reports received here by Augustino Sandino, Nicaraguan bandit leader, and Gen. Ferrera, Honduran rebel leader, in their respective spheres of operation.

Both leaders, the wireless reports stated, ordered that enemy prisoners captured hereafter be decapitated and their heads mounted on poles as warnings to all who opposed them.

MEXICO CITY, April 29.—(AP.)—Dr. Pedro Jose Zepeda, foreign representative of the Nicaraguan insurgent chieftain, Augusto Sandino, said today that he had been offered Communist financial aid but had refused it.

Zepeda said that Sandino had told him he might be killed, but that he would never be captured, and that he would always keep one shot in his revolver for himself to be used in case he were about to fall into the hands of the enemy.

Bank Robber Caught After Gun Battle

OTISVILLE, Mich., April 29.—(INS.)—A running gun-battle between a 21-year-old bank robber and a hastily-formed posse of citizens was staged on the main street here today. It resulted in capture of the robber and recovery of $2,500 which he had taken from the Otisville State Bank at the point of a sawed-off shotgun.

GIN DEATH TRIAL REOPENS

VALPARAISO, Ind., April 28.—(AP.)—Virgil Kirkland was summoned today to a second trial which will determine whether he is responsible for the death of Arlene Draves.

The 21-year-old ex-football star in Gary, jailed for months, appeared in Porter County Circuit Court to watch the selection of a jury—before the same judge who heard the first trial. Widespread publicity of his first trial slowed up selection of the jury for many veniremen expressed opinions as to his guilt or innocence.

Less than two months ago he was found guilty of killing the girl on a "flaming youth" drinking party last fall. Judge Grant Crumpacker, who presided, threw out the verdict because of insufficient evidence to support it. He was on the bench today.

Mary Plans to Meet Doug, Scoffs at Divorce Talk

By DAVID P. SENTNER.

International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 29.—Mary Pickford, movie star, was met by her lawyer when she arrived today from Hollywood, but she declared that it had nothing to do with any divorce or separation proceedings from Douglas Fairbanks, her movie husband. She said:

"If there were anything like a separation or divorce being considered do you think I would be going to meet Doug in London?

"I am going to telephone him in London today. I shall sail on May 13 to meet him.

"No, I am not going to Paris for a divorce. They have been separating us for 11 years. Doug's business takes him one place, mine another. But that's the charm of life. We are no more separated than any other happily married couple in our business."

Gov. Harry Woodring, of Topeka, Kan., was with her on her arrival. Dennis F. O'Brien, her New York attorney, met her.

Mary told how she had definitely decided to scrap every film she ever made and was going to put such instructions in her will. She said:

"Twenty years from now the pictures we made today and yesterday will be laughable. The mechanical and technical end of moving pictures will be so improved that today's productions will be ridiculous."

Aimee, Dodging Reporters, Bumps Into Chaplin

By FREDERIC K. ABBOTT

International News Service.

PARIS, April 29.—Still determined to "keep out of the public eye" despite the mystery intensified by her refusal to confirm or deny a report emanating in Cairo that she was married to a Hungarian count while in Egypt, Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson took refuge today at a hotel in Juan-Les-Pins.

The famous evangelist, while declining to meet the report with a direct statement yesterday, intimated it had confused her with her daughter's marriage to Bradley Smith, steamship purser, which took place at Singapore on March 4.

Mrs. McPherson played a game of hide and seek with reporters after she was discovered in her Marseilles hotel. In an effort to avoid further questioning, she changed her place of residence four times in the course of the afternoon, finally bumping into Charlie Chaplin at the Hotel de Noailley in Marseilles.

There the evangelist's "Odyssey" ended temporarily when she and the comedian, who is now on a European tour, sat down and talked over old times.

During the course of the long conversation she told Chaplin she had decided to go to Juan-Les-Pins, and learned to her surprise that the comedian also had made arrangements for a visit to the famous resort.

Mrs. McPherson's daughter and her new husband departed today for the United States, boarding the liner President Garfield at Marseilles.

FUTURE PROSPERITY UP TO WORKERS, U. S. TRADERS TOLD

PERIL SEEN IN SLUMPS BY LAMONT

Unemployment Challenge to Welfare of All Business, Commerce Secretary Says

International News Service

ATLANTIC CITY, April 29.—Industrial history will again repeat itself, and the next 50 years will see further displacement of labor from older pursuits, and the further development of many new products and new services which will afford employment to those displaced, and supply the ever-expanding wants of our people, Secretary of Commerce Robert Lamont declared here today before the nineteenth annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

UNEMPLOYMENT CHALLENGE

Painting unemployment as a challenge to our business leadership, the commerce secretary told his hearers the future prosperity of the United States depended upon its workers. He declared:

"Enforced idleness and loss of income endanger the security and welfare of the individual and his family. They also mean curtailed operations and shrinking profits to business enterprise, for unemployed labor implies also unemployed capital.

"The worker is both producer and consumer, and when he finds himself out of a job and without income, business has lost a buyer. So the employer who contracts his own operations and discharges his workers, is helping to curtail the market for his own goods and those of other producers, and is thereby further aggravating a situation of which he himself is a victim."

PROGRESS CITED

Lamont reviewed the various depressions of the past half century and observed that each had its prophets of doom who foresaw nothing but lower living conditions for the coming generation. He continued:

"Even in the depths of depression, it must be clear that we have advanced greatly from the misery of the 70's, the 80's and the 90's. It will be generally acknowledged the outstanding difference between the present depression and its predecessors is the remarkable way in which both industry and labor have met the crisis with a conciliatory attitude.

"If prices were maintained too long at too high a level this situation has been corrected. Perhaps in some cases price declines have gone too far. If in this country a bad situation was made worse by a drought, reports from nearly all parts of the stricken areas give promise of good crops for the coming year."

Pittsburghers Attend U. S. Business Conference

Besides President Rae the representatives were James Francis Burke, William L. Clause, Thomas A. Dunn, Howard Heinz, Frank R. Phillips, Edward M. Power, A. W. Robertson and Norman H. Tracey.

The Pittsburgh Chamber was also represented at the national council of the national chamber, which met yesterday in a preconvention session. J. S. Crutchfield, of Pittsburgh, was nominated as one of 17 members of the chamber's board of directors, to head the domestic distribution division.

Arthur L. Humphrey, past president and a director, and Thomas C. Foley, acting general manager, also were present.

STEEL MERGER TALK REVIVED

YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 29.—(AP.)—Rumors of new merger negotiations in the steel industry persisted today in the wake of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company meeting, which yesterday reelected to its board representatives of the minority-Eaton faction which blocked the company's merger with Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

No tangible foundation appeared, however, for reports that a new merger agreement may be worked out between Bethlehem and the Youngstown Company, or that a long discussed combination of Republic Steel Corporation, Inland Steel Company and Corrigan, McKinney Steel Company might be brought to fruition.

Frank Purnell, president of Sheet and Tube asked about a New York report of a new deal between his company and Bethlehem, said the report was "the first we heard of it."

Slaying of Nephew Charged to Banker

BESSEMER, Ala., April 29.—(AP.)—W. H. Lewis, president of the First National Bank here, was charged with murder in the first degree today for the slaying of his nephew, Roland Lewis, 34, and released under bond of $15,000.

The shooting occurred on the front porch of the banker's home Saturday night, after Lewis said his nephew had called him on the telephone and threatened him. He said the younger Lewis blamed him for being left out of the will of an uncle who died several weeks ago.

Two Get Year Terms For Embezzlements

PHILADELPHIA, April 29.—(AP.)—Sentences of one year each were imposed on James B. Givens, an attorney, and Samuel J. Bradley, after they admitted complicity in embezzlements by Peter and Patrick P. Conway, brothers and law partners, from clients and building and loan associations.

The imprisonment will date from the time Givens and Bradley were arrested in January. Bradley pleaded no defense to an indictment involving $900, and Givens to two involving $3,000.

Crime Play Revised Here To Meet Chicago Order

Preparing for the opening of the gangster play "On the Spot" by Edgar Wallace in Chicago Sunday night, officials of the company now playing here were planning various changes in parts referring to the Illinois city. Mayor Anton Cermak, in the first announcement of policy since his inauguration, had declared that all plays and moving pictures showing Chicago as a crime-ridden city would be suppressed. Calling attention to the play "On the Spot," the Mayor said:

"This play is scheduled to open Sunday night. I'm going to be there. I have served notice on the theater that if this play is injurious to Chicago's reputation, it will not be allowed to continue. It will be stopped."

John Leffler, manager of the company playing this week at the Alvin Theater, said:

"Everything related to Chicago in the play will be eliminated. All references to place will be changed to read on the program 'any big city,' and all parts with a Chicago reference will be supplanted. The changes will be made by degrees throughout the remainder of the week here."

Crane Wilbur, playing the leading male part in the show, defended the play with the statement:

FAZIO REFUSED PAROLE

Phillip Fazio, former Clairton "wildcat" beer baron, was refused a parole today by Judge George V. Moore in Criminal Court.

Fazio was sentenced to pay a $1,000 fine and serve 15 months in the Allegheny County Workhouse last October, after he had admitted, during his trial for the murder of William Gregory, that he had operated breweries in Clairton, Carrick and Pittsburgh.

He was acquitted of the murder charge.

Weather Conditions.

The skies are overcast and showers and sprinkles of rain occurred over the northeastern section during yesterday and last night due to the disturbance now over the Far Northwest. Cloudy weather and light to moderately heavy showers are reported from the southwestern states as a result of the disturbance over New Mexico. Over the central portion of the country the skies are mostly clear. This section is occupied by relatively high pressure, which is central over the East Gulf states and extends northwestward to Manitoba. Temperature changes were mostly towards the freezing point over the Upper Mississippi Valley and the lake region, where it is colder than yesterday. Frost was prevented over Western Pennsylvania last night by high winds and overcast skies.

River Conditions.

The rivers are falling slowly. Stage at Franklin is 6.5 feet. Lock No. 7, 14.1; Pittsburgh, 16.0; Dam No. 4, 13.7; Dam No. 6, 14.8; Dam No. 10, 18.0, and Dam No. 13, 17.1. The dams are down.

CHILD'S PRAYERS FAIL, BOY DIES

Prayers of his 9-year-old sister, kneeling with tear-streaked face amid the pews of Sacred Heart Church, failed to save the life of Joseph Langdon, 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Langdon, of 371 South Negley avenue.

The boy, Saturday afternoon, found a bottle of wintergreen oil and a box of aspirin in his home and drank the oil and ate several tablets. He became seriously ill and was taken to Mercy Hospital.

Shortly after 4 p. m., yesterday, his sister, Mary Isobelle, disappeared. An attendant found her in Sacred Heart Church, praying aloud. She said:

"I came to ask God to spare Joe and bring him home."

BUTLER AWARD SHOCKED HAITI, ENVOY SAYS

Declares Island President Said Citation Would Help Ease Gold Ban Pressure

WASHINGTON, April 29.—(AP.)—Minister Bellegarde, of Haiti, yesterday described events surrounding the presentation of a medal by his government to Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler for the capture of Fort Riviere.

The minister said he had attended the presentation, but did not know why the medal was given the marine officer, since, he said, the citation was not read.

Meanwhile, action was awaited by the State Department on a protest made by Butler of remarks attributed to Bellegarde to the effect that the fort for the capture of which Butler was awarded the congressional medal of honor did not exist. Bellegarde has explained he said he had not known of its existence.

QUOTES PRESIDENT

Bellegarde referred to a book he wrote in 1929 for his account of the Butler presentation. As translated for newspapermen by his secretary and himself, it said the Haitian cabinet was "surprised and scandalized" at the Haitian award.

President Dartiguenave, he added, dismissed the incident by explaining to his cabinet the citation would have the effect of removing United States pressure upon Haiti to pass a law prohibiting gold importation into that country.

After the presentation of the medal and everyone had gone but the cabinet, the President said, according to Bellegarde:

"The liberty of the gold importation is worth a medal. Gen. Butler will not carry back to the State Department anything but this toy. Let us hope that will be sufficient."

MUM ON NICARAGUA

GREENVILLE, N. C., April 29.—(AP.)—Gen. Smedley D. Butler refused to comment last night upon the suggestion of Representative Fish, made in a Chicago address, that the fighting marine should be sent to Nicaragua with instructions to "clean up" the bandits. Butler remarked:

"That's Ham Fish."

Auto Driver Held In Death of Rider

Ralph Donges, 34, of Uniontown, was ordered held on a charge of manslaughter by a coroner's jury today in connection with the death of Peter Silman, of Revere, Fayette County, a passenger in his auto March 30.

Donges said his car collided with a truck driven by James O'Connell, of South Millvale avenue, because a curve in Saw Mill Run boulevard was not properly banked.

DORSETT MAKES PLEA OFFER

While State Banking Department operatives today continued their investigation of the activities of two Pittsburgh loan agencies, C. D. Dorsett, 50, of West View, whose arrest on a charge of extortion started the state inquiry, offered to waive a grand jury hearing and plead guilty, District Attorney Park announced.

Dorsett's request that he be allowed to plead at once was refused by Park, who wants time to investigate certain angles.

Examination of the books and loans of the two agencies—the Daily Loan Service, 413 Fourth avenue, and the Fulton Loan Association, 326 Fourth avenue—continued today with George H. Slaine, special banking department examiner, and J. D. Swigart, district bank examiner, in charge.

Swigart said Slaine was interviewing various city firemen today on what rate of interest they had paid on loans. The companies' records revealed firemen were among their customers.

a year for several years. So says a London newspaper. There are such things as cancellations, but the Prince is a good salesman.

MR. "LEGS" DIAMOND, said by the police to have been engaged in beer-running, racketeering and various other enterprises, shot by gangster enemies in New York, some months back, recovered with several bullets in his body. Now he has several more, in his lungs, liver and arm.

His enemies followed him with machine guns, and still he isn't dead. The doctors say he may even recover, although it is not probable.

CYRUS H. K. CURTIS thinks, and says in an editorial:

"A man who ran for office in America today with a straight anti-crime record, and a convincing threat against it, would come nearer to getting votes than many another candidate."

That is sound, but to fight crime, you would have to fight the bootlegging that finances it, and to fight bootlegging, you would have to oppose prohibition, and that might cost more votes than it would bring.

HOPE OF SAVING DIAMOND DIMS

ALBANY, N. Y., April 29.—(INS.)—Jack (Legs) Diamond, wounded New York racketeer and gunman, has developed pleurisy in his right lung and hope for his recovery was virtually abandoned this afternoon by his physician, Dr. Thomas M. Holmes. The physician said:

"I fear this is the beginning of the end. Pleurisy usually develops into pneumonia. If Diamond gets pneumonia he hasn't a chance in a million to live."

Diamond has been in critical condition in Albany Hospital since he was ambushed early Monday morning at Aratoga Inn, not far from his home in Acra in the Catskill Mountains.

Forger Sentenced To 4-8-Year Term

WASHINGTON, Pa., April 29.—Frank Gargo, 35, Burgettstown, was sentenced to the workhouse for not more than eight years or less than four, when he pleaded guilty to 12 charges of forgery. He conducted an automobile sales business in Burgettstown and admitted he defrauded the Washington Finance Company out of between $6,000 and $7,000.

TAX EXPERT DISPUTES MAGEE

Head of Research Bureau Predicts One-Mill Cut In Levy; Lauds Schooley

In reply to former Mayor William A. Magee's statement that the city's tax rate is due for another increase in 1932, Paul M. Kydd, of the Bureau of Government Research, predicted today that taxes then will be one mill lower than now. Former Mayor Magee made his statement before members of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board and their weekly luncheon.

Kydd declared this reduction would be brought about by the care with which the city's departmental heads are handling the affairs of the city.

PRAISES BILLING PLAN

Kydd said:

"A reduction in taxation will be brought about partly through proper collections under the new billing system. City Treasurer Roy D. Schooley has done a very good job in the treasurer's office, in collecting water rents. When he installed his new system of collections, water rents were delinquent to the extent of $1,600,000. The plans now in force will make a decided difference in the city's receipts."

Kydd declined to forecast how much of the delinquent water tax would be collected, but asserted the manner in which the money is coming forward indicates that this item alone will help reduce taxation. He continued:

"Pittsburgh will be one of the few cities that will end the present year without a deficit. The failure of the Pittsburgh Railways Company to meet its obligations with the city has been a hard blow. Even with that handicap I feel certain the city will end the year without a deficit. That certainly speaks well for the men entrusted to administering the city's affairs."

Asked if the payroll in his judgment was not top-heavy and that many men were being paid who did not merit the salary received, he answered in the affirmative. Then he continued:

"But who would discharge men now? Of course there are weak spots in the payroll. There are weak spots in any business, but savings can be made without discharging men."

Kydd pointed to the fact that the Department of Public Works last year had 300 more men on the payroll than customary, yet the department kept within its appropriations. He said further improvement would be made next year.

Pittsburgh's present tax is $2.55 and $1.27½ per $100 of assessed value on land and buildings respectively, exclusive of $1.17½ per $100 assessed value of property.

FUMES VICTIM RESCUED

Smoke from his motor's exhaust, escaping through the closed garage doors, saved the life of Emil Steinbach, 48, of 5511 Margaretta street, today.

Alfred Singer, 19, of 510 North St. Clair street, saw the smoke from his kitchen window this morning and went to the garage, which is located at the rear of 508 North St. Clair street.

Entering the building through a side door, he found Steinbach unconscious on the floor with his auto's motor running and exuding a heavy carbon monoxide gas.

Singer called police and the unconscious man was taken to the Pittsburgh Hospital, where he was reported out of danger.

Coolidge Emphasizes Spirit of Home-Making

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., April 29.

To the Editor of The Sun-Telegraph:

Those who are supporting the movement have designated this week as a time for especial consideration of the problem of better homes. It is part of the general effort which we constantly are making for special improvement. On its practical side, the architect, the builder and the many modern inventions all have been enlisted to make the home more convenient, more sanitary and more beautiful. Science and art are joined with economics to teach people better how to live.

Mr. Coolidge

Our material surroundings have a marked effect upon our physical, mental and moral life. Proper nourishment, ventilation and even decorations have been found from actual experiment to be of much importance. Environment has an especially large influence upon the development of children.

The home is the foundation of society. Unless it teaches order and truth, justice and forbearance, patriotism and humanity, these virtues are not likely to be acquired from any other source. When everything has been done for the house, only the people who live in it can make it a better home. The indwelling spirit cannot be ignored in this movement. All that luxury can provide will fail without the co-operation of personal faith and devotion.

SHIP'S OPERATOR BRAVES FLAMES TO BRING RESCUE

Stricken 'Missionary' Declared to Be Former Convict

BLAST CLAIM OF 'DYING MARTYR'

Long Police Record Laid to Man Who Offered Self for Study as Disease Victim

CLEVELAND, April 29.—(AP.)—The "Reverend" Ralph H. Thurber, who sent medical authorities of the country looking up his case when he claimed he expected to die from a malignant oriental disease, today stood revealed by police as an ex-convict with a long police record.

Thurber claimed he had recently returned from 10 years' missionary work in the Straits Settlements and Korea, but police said during part of that time he was serving sentences on bad check charges in Ohio and California penitentiaries.

SHELL-SHOCKED VET

Officials at Lockport, N. Y., said Mrs. Susan Thurber had a son, Ralph, who was shell-shocked while with the Canadian forces overseas during the World War, and since then had been subject to hallucinations. Mrs. Thurber was believed on her way here.

Physicians at the City Hospital, however, said Thurber may be ill from distomiasis, a disease common in the Far East, but rare in this country, as he claims. The disease usually is contracted from eating poorly-cooked fish.

CITE PRISON RECORD

Thurber admitted, Detective David Cowles said, that under the name of Louis A. Reppelle he was in the Ohio Penitentiary from August 10, 1927, to March 15, 1930, on a charge of issuing a check to defraud a Cleveland hotel. Bertillon records also showed a Ralph H. Thurber served time in the San Quentin, Cal., prison from June 19, 1920, to September 3, 1921, on a similar charge.

A man by the same name also was acquitted of a robbery charge in San Francisco in February, 1920, and in 1927 was charged with grand larceny by Buffalo police. He was said to have deserted from Camp Fabian, Texas, a number of years ago.

Fists, Chairs Fly In Dresden Diet

DRESDEN, Germany, April 29.—(AP.)—Chairs and fists were swung in the Dresden Diet today during a free-for-all fight between National Socialist members and the combined Communists and Social Democrats. The battle started when a National Socialist speaker shouted to the Lefts that "every Marxist is a criminal."

Phila. Firm Wins Bond Printing Job

Printing and engraving the bonds of the $5,500,000 issue authorized recently by the County Commissioners was awarded yesterday to the Security Bank Note Company, of Philadelphia, on a low bid of $1,556.80. The nearest bid was $2,025, submitted by the Republic Bank Note Company, of Pittsburgh.

ROTARY CLUBS TO NOMINATE

Nomination of the district governor and the banquet tonight are the highlights in the second and final day of the conference of the Thirty-third District Rotary International, at William Penn Hotel.

Principal speakers at the banquet will be Harry Nalden Holmes, secretary, World Alliance for International Friendship; Albert C. Daschbach, Pittsburgh; William de Cock Buning, The Hague, first vice president, Rotary International, and Bert H. Smyers, Pittsburgh, governor, Thirty-second District. Homer Rodeheaver, noted singer, will direct group singing.

Wister L. Lynch, general chairman of the conference, will preside, and Stanley P. Ashe, local president, will be toastmaster.

Mr. Buning was the principal speaker yesterday, talking on "Rotary in Europe."

Starts Penitentiary Term for Robbery

Walter Hirch, of 1465 West Liberty avenue, today began serving five to 15 years in the Western Penitentiary, following his plea of guilty to robbery before Judge George V. Moore, in Criminal Court. It was charged he held up Gust Morris and Nick Stola, of 3 Moultrie street, in a store at Twenty-second and Forbes streets, April 5, at the point of a gun, and took $15 from them.

Surgeon Transfers Larynx of Corpse To Living Man

BERLIN, April 29.—(Universal.)—The voice of Caruso could have been preserved for all time by a discovery announced by Prof. Gluck, noted surgeon of the University of Berlin.

Prof. Gluck, by means of a simple operaton, has made successful transplantation of the human larynx and vocal chords from a man just dead to a living man. This operation would have permitted the transplantation of Caruso's vocal organs to another singer.

The newly-discovered operation also allows for the tuning up or down of any voice, regardless of sex, to any desired pitch.

WALES REACHES HOME IN PLANE

WINDSOR, Eng., April 29.—(INS.)—Completing his 18,000-mile journey to South America and return on behalf of British trade, the Prince of Wales landed at Windsor Great Park by airplane from Paris this afternoon.

In accordance with his wishes, there was no official reception. The Prince was accompanied by his younger brother, Prince George, who made the "trade expedition" to South America with him.

The Duke of York was on hand to greet his brothers. They immediately motored to Windsor Castle for luncheon with the King and Queen and other members of the royal family. No persons were allowed on the private air field, but several hundred, mostly girls, gathered outside the gates to greet the heir to the throne.

DANCER MURDER CAR FOUND

NEW YORK, April 29.—(AP.)—The automobile in which Virginia Brannen, "dime-a-dance" hall hostess, was killed was found today in the Bronx, police declared.

They said it was the same car pursued and lost early today by detectives who engaged in a running gun fight with two occupants. The men opened fire as the police car approached a hack stand where they had parked. The car was punctured by bullets and its rear seat was blood-stained. A rifle was found in it.

Miss Brannen, who was 28, was found shot to death Monday in a lonely spot in Yonkers, her body evidently having been thrown from an automobile.

BOY AND KING HOOVER GUESTS

were arriving at the White House for an official call, so the President had only a few minutes to talk. Bryan left, but was thrilled as he watched from the second floor the reremonious reception of one of the three absolute monarchs left in the world.

Shortly after the call of the King and Queen, Mr. and Mrs. Hoover went to the Massachusetts avenue residence of the King and Queen to return their call. Tonight, their majesties will dine at the White House, but Untiedt will not be present at the brilliant state dinner because it is an official occasion and only officials may attend.

PRECEDENT SHATTERED

The visit of the Siam royal couple marked the first time in history an absolute monarch had crossed the threshold of the White House to receive a friendly handclasp of welcome by the President of the United States.

The Queen smiled at people grouped around the north entrance to the White House as she and the King walked up the stone steps.

The King, very erect, looked neither to the right nor the left, but he acknowledged the deep bow of the White House doormen with an almost imperceptible nod.

Precedence was tossed to the winds as American officials and their wives were received by the Siamese King and Queen after President Hoover had returned their call.

Circus Midget Sues for Wife's Lost Love

LOS ANGELES, April 29.—(AP.)—John B. Fox, circus midget, has obtained a judgment for $10,000 against Jesse J. Coombs, novelty manufacturer, for alienation of the affections of his wife, Nin. He had asked $40,000. Fox, who is 3 feet 6 inches tall, asserted Coombs induced his wife to leave him. He testified:

"I suppose she was tired of me. My wife, a little over 4 feet tall, is almost not a midget. I couldn't even drive our car. She had to drive it for me."

They have a daughter, Nona, 2.

MAGDA RETURNS TO CAROL

BUCHAREST, April 29.—(Universal.)—Mme. Magda Lupescu, sweetheart of King Carol II, is back in the Rumanian capital, having returned as mysteriously as she disappeared last week.

Mme. Lupescu has taken up residence again in the little villa purchased for her by King Carol, which is close by the Royal Palace.

It is rumored that the reason for Mme. Lupescu's quick return to Carol's side was the presentation of a $20,000 necklace as a royal gift to Magda Demetrescu, a former Rumanian beauty queen.

After Mme. Lupescu's return, reports of a difference between her and Carol were spiked and now it appears that everything has been smoothed over.

161 Million Shown In Soviet Census

MRS. REID DIES IN FRANCE

BEAULIEU, France, April 29.—(INS.)—Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, widow of the late American ambassador to Britain, at whose home in Purchase, N. Y., the King and Queen of Siam are residing while in the United States, died here today.

Mrs. Reid, who was born Elizabeth Mills, was chatelaine of the American embassy in London from 1905 until her husband's death in 1912. She was universally regarded as the most distinguished hostess in contemporary diplomatic history.

Mrs. Reid had been ill only 10 days. Yesterday her condition became so alarming that a Paris specialist was summoned to her villa at St. Jean Cap Ferrat by airplane. Lung congestion was believed to have been the cause of her death.

At her bedside when Mrs. Reid died were Sir John and Lady Ward, her son-in-law and daughter. Sir John, equerry in ordinary to the late King Edward of England, is the second son of the Earl of Dudley.

Three Men Jailed For Stealing Food

WASHINGTON, Pa., April 29.—Four men charged with stealing a pig and 25 chickens at a mining camp near Avella were sentenced to the county jail by County Judge Howard W. Hughes. They were Joseph Terry and Gilbert Patton, charged with stealing the pig, sentenced six months, and Charles Roberts and Wilbur Morris, charged with stealing the chickens, three months each. They told the court that they had been out of work and were hungry.

CREW SAVED BY LONE HERO

Drenches Clothes, Then Sticks To Post on Burning Vessel As Men Take to Boats

International News Service.

NEW YORK, April 29.—Shipping officials today sought to learn the name of an unidentified hero of the sea.

He was the radio operator on the Swedish tanker Castor, who stuck to his post to the last second sending radio calls for aid as the Castor was engulfed in flames yesterday 340 miles southeast of the Azores.

Reported plunging into the sea to fireproof his clothing as far as possible, the radio operator clambered back on deck and continued to send out calls for help while the 40 members of the crew put away in lifeboats.

His bravery was rewarded in bringing four ships to the aid of the burning craft and the crew was picked up by the British freighter Ousebridge, all being saved, according to advices received here by the American Export Line. The Excalibur, owned by the American Export, was one of the first to answer the tanker's SOS and to broadcast the call for help to other vessels.

The ships Extavia and Exporter of the American Export Line also rushed to aid the fire-gripped boat.

"Hurry! Hurry assistance—Fire raging aft. All crew safe in boats."

That was the final plea of the radio operator before signing off just after 4 o'clock yesterday morning. Hours later the entire crew of the Castor was picked up by the British freighter, which messaged an attempt would be made to tow the damaged vessel to Azores.

5 EAGLE HALLS PADLOCKED

Federal Judge Nelson McVicar today placed one-year padlock injunctions on five lodges of the Fraternal Order of Eagles in Franklin, Oil City, Erie, Kane and Meadville, for violations of the liquor laws. In all cases but Meadville, the court padlocked the entire building in which the lodge was located.

Judge McVicar offered each lodge an opportunity to reopen after three months by posting $1,000 bonds and giving prohibition officials the right to inspect their quarters at any time.

Preliminary injunctions were ordered today by Judge R. M. Gibson against the Grandview Inn, Greensburg Pike, Robert Crystol, proprietor, and a saloon at 5 Brenham street, conducted by John J. Mullen. Liquor law violations were charged.

Churchill Linked With New Party

LONDON, April 29.—(AP.)—Political gossips are talking about another new political party, even newer than Sir Oswald Mosley's, and they are naming Winston Churchill in their rumors. The stories increased today with the announcement that the 1900 Club will entertain Mr. Churchill at luncheon on May 15 in recognition of his services to the Conservative Party. Members of other political parties also have been invited.

LANG ADMITS PROTEST

4.—Drainage plugs are being attached to garbage wagons of American Reduction Company to drain water from garbage to prevent charges of excess weights.

5.—Director Lang promised investigation of charge that a member of the firm of Monahan & Barr, city contractor, maintains city garage used by Department of Public Safety.

Director Lang admitted that he had protested Herd's appointment during questioning by Attorney Evans if he recalled a conversation he had with Evans following the dropping of Herd from the City Controller's office.

ADMITS PROTEST

Lang was asked:

"Do you recall, Mr. Lang, that I said jokingly to you at that time that 'sometimes it is a good thing to be kicked upstairs,' and that your reply was 'I protested against his (Herd's) appointment, but you know how these things are'."

Director Lang replied that he recalled the conversation.

Herd, who is chairman of the Twenty-first Ward, admitted that he had gone to see Director Lang concerning a position in the department and had a number of business men to intercede in his behalf.

Evans in his examination of Director Lang asked:

"Now that you have had time to ponder over what I brought out at the hearing on political appointments do you think it is possible to divorce politics from the department?"

Lang replied:

"I said there were political appointments and there always will be. At times men are appointed who at first do not seem to be fitted for the job, but with time and a little common sense, they develop into good employes."

Director Lang promised Attorney Evans that he would report the charge that one of the members of the firm of Monahan & Barr, city contractors, had charge of a city garage in addition to being in business for himself and engaged in city construction work. City garages, it developed, are under the supervision of the Department of Public Safety.

PAINTING CRITICIZED

Launching into the question of bridge repainting, Attorney Evans called John D. Stevenson, superintendent of the bureau of bridges. Evans read a report from the City Controller's office that $7,402 had been spent in January and February for labor for bridge repainting, and pointed out that according to Weather Bureau records there were only six days in both months suitable for such work. Evans said that Weather Observer W. S. Brotzman had advised him that it was inadvisable to paint bridges during these months because of wind velocity and temperature.

Stevenson interrupted Evans with:

"What the Sam Hill does Mr. Brotzman know about bridge painting?"

Further testimony brought out that no effort was made to paint bridge superstructures during these months, but that activities were beneath the floors. Very good results have been obtained during these months, it was testified.

HERRON, EVANS AGREE

President Herron, however, agreed with Attorney Evans that it was "poor practice," adding:

"One of the objects of these hearings is to correct unbusinesslike practices." ... ...

Opening the garbage and rubbish removal situation Attorney Evans charged that under the present contract the American Reduction Company's net earnings for an average year was 31.4 per cent of its investment, which he estimated at $1,250,000. The net earnings of the company, he said, totaled $392,205.45. The net earnings he said was 130 per cent of the original investment, which he said the late George Flinn told him was $300,00.

Evans said that the per capita costs for garbage collection runs generally higher in Pittsburgh than elsewhere. Reading from a table containing figures from nearly a score of cities, he pointed out that Pittsburgh's per capita cost was $1.20 per pound while Chicago with an average collection of 102,000 tons paid only 19 cents.

There was general accord upon the opinion that Pittsburgh's old cost-plus contract, discarded two years ago, was superior to the present system. The cost-plus plan was discarded while Mr. Evans was city controller and followed his suit against the American Reduction Company to recover $1,400,000 which he said was due the city because the company had put in as expense, in connection with the removal of garbage and rubbish, the cost of numerous gifts and other items. A rebate of $450,000 was allowed the city.

GARDEN PLANS OFFERED FREE

Free garden plans and instructions will be furnished to all families raising foodstuffs under the city-county "garden plan" to relieve unemployment, Henry R. Eby, county farm agent, said today.

Both the city and county are to start surveys of municipally owned land with a view to converting it into garden plots which can be cultivated during the summer by unemployed persons in need of food.

The Federation of Women's Clubs is planning to furnish seeds for those families unable to buy them for these gardens, Mrs. John M. Phillips, state president of the organization said.

County commissioners yesterday adopted C. C. McGovern's motion to have the engineers report the amount of county-owned land that could be turned over temporarily to unemployed residents for gardens. Commissioner E. B. Babcock said:

"I'll give them 100 acres right away."

MARCH TRAFFIC TOLL DROPS

Fatal traffic injuries during the month of March decreased from 19 to 13, as compared with the statistics of 1930, Lewis W. McIntyre, city traffic engineer revealed today.

Four of the 13 deaths last month, McIntyre said, were of children under 14 years of age. There were 149 non-fatal traffic accidents reported to police, 59 of which resulted in injuries, McIntyre said.

5 Tech Students Win N. Y. Honors

Five students of the department of architecture at Carnegie Tech were awarded "first mentions" at the junior architectural design judgment of the Beaux Art Institute of New York last week, W. F. Hitches, head of the department, was informed today. They are John A. Desmone, Springdale; W. N. Manning, Cortland, N. Y.; J. P. McGuire, Pittsburgh; R. S. Powell, Parnassus, and William I. Schlenke, Wilkinsburg.

ZIONISTS SEEK LAND FUND

The co-operation of local Jewry will be sought at a meeting Sunday of Zionist leaders, who will discuss the operation of the five-year plan for land reclamation, which provides for acquisition of an "American tract" in Palestine, where Jewish immigrants from Eastern Europe and the United States may settle.

More than $1,000,000, sufficient to purchase 10,000 acres, ore one-fifth of the total area to be reclaimed, has been subscribed, and the local Jewry will be asked to contribute. Speakers at the meeting will be Emanuel Neumann, president of the Jewish National Fund of America, and Abraham Goldberg, writer and orator. Dr. M. B. Lichtenstein will preside.

Father Cox's Mother Goes to Hospital

Mrs. Julia Cox, mother of the Rev. James R. Cox, pastor of Old St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Church, Liberty avenue and Seventeenth street, was taken to Mercy Hospital yesterday for treatment for rheumatism and neuritis. She makes her home in the church rectory.

YOUR SALE

You, Mr. Pittsburgh. You, Mrs. Pittsburgh. And you, Miss Pittsburgh—this is your sale. Master Pittsburgh's sale, too!

We're giving this treat and one and all, you're invited to come every day, in Lilac Time, to Gimbels. We're staging the greatest Anniversary Sale ever seen in Pittsburgh.

Market prices on fine things have never been so low. The enormous purchasing power of the nation-wide Gimbel stores has enabled us to buy timely, desirable items at a fraction of the present low market prices. Before we bought an item, we asked ourselves "Is this something people want and need now?" "Is this new, smart, up-to-the-minute?" "Is this as good as our standard high quality?" "Is this something that will help us say May 1931 is a high point in Gimbels history?"

The answer in each case had to be "Yes!" before the item was purchased. We've been working hard and enthusiastically for months, we have four and one-half millions of dollars in merchandise prepared for you and we're happy because we know you're going to be thrilled.

To prove our pledge, Gimbels will not knowingly be undersold, quality for quality, during the month of May. Shop Gimbels and See for Yourself!

FAIR RATE BILLS PASS EASILY IN HOUSE

Pinchot Measures Dooming P. S. C. Sent to Senate Over Slight Opposition

HARRISBURG, April 29.—(AP.) — The administration bills to abolish the Public Service Commission and substitute a fair rate board were passed by the House of Representatives last night and sent to the state Senate.

In marked contrast to the bitter opposition to the measures when they were on second reading early yesterday morning, the bills were debated only briefly and each passed by a decisive majority.

The Allegheny County delegation, said to have been instructed by Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, changed several votes on the first test, which was to send the fair rate ripper back to committee.

Representatives Gangloff, Lynch, Hoffman, Stadtlander and Grenet voted to send it back, along with Dietrich and Musmanno. The two last, it was understood, had voted in exchange for friendly support of their bills by anti-Pinchot forces.

The rest voted for the three administration bills.

BILLS PASS EASILY

When the first of the three measures sponsored by Representative Staudenmeier, Schuylkill, came up on final passage, Representative Blumberg, Philadelphia, moved to recommit. The motion was defeated by 121 votes to 74. Then the bill was passed by a vote of 129 to 64.

The second bill creating a fair rate board to be appointed by the Governor and to be removable at his pleasure, was passed by a vote of 128 to 61, after Representative Reed, Dauphin, had said that the House, in passing it before considering administrative code amendments yet to come before the House, was acting like a rubber stamp for the Governor, and opponents of the bills apparently had decided to wage no active fight against the bills on final passage, but merely to spread upon the record briefly the major reasons for their refusal to support the administration bills.

On the third bill, which amends the public service law to give the Fair Rate Board authority over utility securities and to recapture of excess utility earnings, among other provisions, the vote was 120 for passage to 61 opposed.

TURNER OPPOSES

Representative Turner, Delaware, member of the Utility Investigating Committee, reviewed briefly the work of that body and, admitting his arguments were futile "against the steam roller tactics being pursued," said he could not reasonably support the bill. He said not a single public utility, if this bill were passed, could try to carry on improvement programs sadly needed by business at this time if they did not know what the future had in store for them.

Representative Wheeler, Forest, asked if Staudenmeier was willing to assume the responsibility for the effects of the passage of this bill.

Studenmeier replied that he was not alarmed over the possible results of the measure, admitted that no piece of legislation is "infallable" and believed that if any major defects were revealed, they could be remedied by subsequent amending legislation.

1st Pinchot Dinner For House, May 4

HARRISBURG, April 29.—(AP.)—Gov. and Mrs. Pinchot have issued invitations for the first of three dinners to be given to members of the House of Representatives on May 4 at 6:30 o'clock, standard time. The second and third dinners will ge given on May 11 and 12.

Girl's Wit Saves Bank $11,000 In Holdup

WHEELING, W. Va., April 29.—Past thinking of Miss Helen Milner, 22, assistant cashier of the Morristown State Bank, saved the institution $11,000 during a holdup yesterday by three armed robbers, it was disclosed today.

Miss Milner was ordered into the vault to hand out all cash. She passed out $4,700 in bills, but pulled a sack over gold and government bonds three times as valuable, asking:

"Do you want the pennies, too?"

SUNDAY BILL SET FOR VOTE

But voting for the measure were Bell, Dietrich, Dunn, Dwyer, Gangloff, Grenet, Hoffman, Lynch, Maloney, Metzler, Musmanno, Reed, Rhodes, Rooney, Soffel, Spann, Stadtlander, Steedle, Tucker and Wettach.

The vote came after more than an hour's debate. Clinton A. Sowers, House leader, of Philadelphia, and Michael A. Musmanno, of Allegheny, carried the bulk of the argument for the measure.

DEBATE BITTER

The debate became bitter and ended only after an appeal by Democratic Leader Sarig deprecated the entrance of religious discussion, saying:

"It is too bad that in questions of government that religion be allowed to enter. The question of religion is between you and God. The question of government is between you and your fellow man. The thing to consider is the welfare of the youth that is to follow. Three-fourths of the counties of the state are playing baseball in spite of the law. It is unfair to make young people criminals, when we can permit them to play baseball legally."

Sowers opened the debate by explaining that he, himself, was a "blue," but not indigo. He explained the ancient blue law, saying it was the handiwork of the landlords of the time, who made Sunday legally the day of rest because the people could work Monday the better.

Representative Himes, of Armstrong County, said the bill should be defeated, whereupon Musmanno, in a defense of local option, presented a eulogy of baseball, declared it and local option were peculiarly American.

Musmanno recalled that Glenn Moore, who he said was an honest opponent of blue law repeal, had admitted on the floor that he favored local option, that Gov. Pinchot in signing Bill 92, which granted Pittsburgh City Council the right to raise cabinet officers' salaries to $12,000, had issued a statement in favor of this principle.

Representative Stevenson, of Mercer County, asked if the Sabbath day was the only day to play baseball or see a ball game. He said the Sabbath was more of an American day than baseball was an American game—that the nation owed more to it.

His argument was met with one by Representative Stadtlander, of Allegheny County, who declared he was a convert to the liberalization of Sunday; that it was a modern necessity to encourage youth to play clean sports, to use their energy where it could do no harm.

77 New Cases Put Under Quarantine

The City Department of Health today reports these new cases in quarantine: Scarlet fever, 14; diptheria, 2; measles, 25; whooping cough, 5; chicken pox, 12; mumps, 12; and pneumonia, 7.

PINCHOT POLICE BILL REPORTED FOR PASSAGE

Action Taken Despite Storm Of Protest by Leaders Of Labor Organizations

HARRISBURG, April 29. Over a storm of protest made personally by labor leaders of the state, the Wilson coal and iron police bill, the administration measure, was sent out of the Law and Order Committee today for final passage.

John Phillips, president of the State Federation of Labor, led the protesting forces, which included Representative M. A. Musmanno, sponsor of the two bills which the labor leaders are supporting.

Thomas Wilson, sponsor of the rival bill, secured permission of the House to have the measure become special business at noon next Tuesday.

EXPECTED TO PASS

The Wilson bill is expected to pass third reading and go to the Senate to join Musmanno's bills, which have been held up there for a month in the Judiciary General Committee.

This delay has been continued in spite of labor, civic organizations from Pittsburgh and elsewhere meeting and wiring the senators to send them on to the floor.

Phillips, the labor chief, said:

"We emphatically reject this Wilson bill. It permits the leasing of the police powers of the state; it provides for two conflicting forces in industrial disputes."

Last week the convention of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor went on record as favoring the Musmanno bills in preference to the bill of the Governor.

MUSMANNO STATEMENT

Musmanno, before the Law and Order Committee, said:

"I oppose the new Pinchot bill because it still provides for the shameful sale of sovereign police powers of the state to private interests.

"It is still the same creature in different clothing. If anything, it is worse.

"This new bill provides that labor unions, as well as industry owners, may hire trade police. In other words, the state will furnish capital and labor each with an army and let them fight it out.

"This is the first time in the industrial history of the United States where the state itself furnishes the two opposing armies for a civil war.

"Labor unions do not want any army. They do not have the funds to pay for state police; they should not be required to have to pay for police protection.

"Furthermore, police should be impartial, not one-sided. The idea of apportioning police between two opposing forces is contrary to every principle of regular government.

"POWER TO ROAM"

"For two years we have been arguing that any special police employed by corporations should be limited to the property of the industry. And now along comes the Wilson bill which gives these trade police power to roam all over the state.

"At the same time they are given the powers of a Philadelphia policeman and of a constable, the greatest cumulative police powers possible in our commonwealth.

"And then, these police are absolutely irresponsible. They may kill, maim, burn down homes or what not, and there is no redress for the victims.

Woman Gets State Job Paying $7,500

HARRISBURG, April 29.—(AP.)—The appointment of Miss Charlotte Carr, of New York, as deputy secretary of labor and industry at a salary of $7,500 was announced by Gov. Pinchot. She will assume her new duties next Monday.

Miss Carr was chief of the Bureau of Women and Children in the Department of Labor and Industry during Gov. Pinchot's first term and remained in that position until 1928.

Pupils at Blawnox Plan May Day Fete

Five hundred students of the Blawnox public and junior high schools will participate in the May Day festivities featuring a May pole dance, games and songs, on the school lawn, Friday afternoon. Miss Virginia Record, a senior in the Junior High, has been chosen as May Queen. John A. Small, Miss Ethel Beerbower and Miss Faith Smith will direct.

School Boys Routed By Dormitory Blaze

MARLBORO, Mass., April 29.—(AP.)—Sixteen boys were forced to race in night clothes from a blazing dormitory when fire destroyed four buildings of the Hillside School for Boys early today with loss of $35,000.

Two boys, overcome by smoke, were carried to safety by women employes. They were Warren Hyde and Robert Ernst.

Masonic Veterans To Attend Church

Members of the Association of Masonic Veterans of Western Pennsylvania and their wives are to attend services in the Emory Methodist Episcopal Church, Highland avenue, Sunday night. Dr. W. Wofford T. Duncan, pastor, has arranged a special program in their honor. Edward Hardie, president of the association, is chairman of the arrangements committee.

Flight to Australia Balked by Weather

LYMPNE, England, April 29.—(INS.)—Encountering unfavorable weather conditions, Capt. Neville Stack and J. R. Chaplin, young British fliers, returned to Lympne Aerodrome today after starting out on a new attempt to fly to Australia and back in 21 days.

The airmen had covered 200 miles when they decided to return and await better weather.

ANNOUNCING

2 Hour Passenger Service

NEW YORK - PITTSBURGH $24

(Newark Airport—Bettis Airport, via Philadelphia and York)

PITTSBURGH - BUFFALO $14.35

Via Erie, Pa.

Beginning Friday, May 1, Pittsburgh Airways, a division of New York and Western Airlines, Inc., and pioneer operators of the Pittsburgh-Philadelphia-New York passenger service, will inaugurate 150-mile-per-hour schedules between those cities at no increase in fares.

In addition to halving present flying time between Pittsburgh and New York via Philadelphia, Pittsburgh Airways service will be further augmented by four round-trips daily on that route and daily service between Pittsburgh and Buffalo, via Erie.

With this new schedule it will be possible to spend a full business day in New York or Pittsburgh and return for dinner. The round-trip fare is less than de luxe railroad passage.

For this frequent, de luxe service, the fastest, most modern and comfortable passenger planes that fly have been purchased. Planes of the same type have been selected as the personal planes of such leaders in aviation as Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, Ruth Nichols and Amelia Earhart.

For more than two years, Pittsburgh Airways has been flying the shortest, safest route between New York and Pittsburgh, without accident of any kind to any passenger. The service has earned a Certificate of Safety from the Aeronautics Branch of the Department of Commerce and operates under franchise of the Pennsylvania Public Service Commission.

Once more Pittsburgh Airways has earned the proud title of "PIONEERS."

THE BEST PLACE TO SHOP, AFTER ALL

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

Unsung New Yorkers

NEW YORK, April 29.

MAYBE YOU'VE MET a man like Morton. There are so very many like him in this world. Some Mortons are big. Some are small. Some are stout. Some are thin. There are Mortons in every village and every city in every part of the world.

Consider, then, this man of whom I write. They never gave him a chance in life. Better for him if he had never been born at all. He didn't ask to come—and when he arrived, nobody asked him to stay. His mother might have been kind to him, but Morton didn't know about that. She died before he was old enough to realize what kindness was.

This child reached the age of seven in an environment that would bring shivers to the most hardened of us all. A weak boy the world was a terrifying thing to him at a very early age.

It was Morton's father, more than anyone else, who turned the child into a sad character he became. For the old man had never been anything but a poverty-stricken drunkard. How he managed to pay his meager rent and bring home a loaf of bread for Morton every now and then nobody seemed to know. And like the lonesome gentleman in the old Irving Berlin number, nobody seemed to care.

The father came home one night even drunker than usual. The boy sat in a corner and watched him. The old man staggered to a window and threw it open. He swayed there for a minute and muttered something about the heat. Suddenly he stumbled. He fell through the window to the street below. And his life ended in a sickening thud.

Morton never moved. He sat in his corner and whimpered. Soon they came and asked him questions. Strange questions that he knew nothing about. He wailed loudly. Somebody told him to be quiet. A neighbor said she would care for the boy for the night.

A short time later his father was buried in the public graveyard. There were no funds—and nobody came to claim the body. So the boy and the neighbor looked on as another silent marcher hit the underground trail.

The following day they put Morton in a big house with a lot of other boys and girls. Orphans were what they called them. Morton learned that that's what he was.

Like a roller skate without wheels. . . .

Most of us learn with age. Experience is just another name for past mistakes. What we do at 20 we laugh at when we're 30. When we're 40 we laugh at our mistakes at 30. And when we're 50 we wish we were back at 20 and making the same mistakes.

Basically, of course, Morton was no different from the next man. As the years flew by he learned many things. He was able to forget many things, too. Practically everything, in fact—except the one thing he should have tossed from his mind—his father's death and horrible burial.

That picture was always in Morton's memory. It wouldn't leave. Other dread happenings of his early childhood grew dull with the passing of time. But as the other memories faded, that one grew sharper.

It finally became something of an obsession with the boy. He swore to himself that he would never end in that way. No matter what he did in life, he would see to it that he provided for his old age.

That determination shaped his entire life. While the other boys were dreaming of adventure and planning great careers, Morton was looking for something that would give him enough to live on—and sufficient to die on.

One morning, the boy made up his mind. He picked a field in which his pay would advance with the years. He chose a type of work that would enable him to retire after so many years on the job. He picked one of the most underpaid and underestimated branches in the United States government service.

He became a letter carrier in the city of New York.

Tough job, that is. Very few people understand the work. In a city such as this we accept the mailman as a matter of course. On Christmas, if we happen to think of it, we slip him a little gift. Most people don't happen to think of it.

Lugging that heavy sack around, day after day and year after year. Walking the miles away—and getting no further than when they started. Carrying the secrets of the world—and never knowing what those secrets are.

That was Morton. But Morton didn't work at it as you or I might do. He was happy. As happy that is, as he could ever be. He was working toward a goal. And each letter he delivered, each sack that he strapped on his shoulder brought him just a little closer toward that goal.

But why go on along these lines? Let me bring him to the greatest day of his life.

He was about to be retired on a pension. He had never married. In the bank was the money he had been saving for years. With the pension that was to be his in a day or two he knew he could live in peace, and die in peace. Very few millionaires can make the same boast.

A few of the boys gave him a little blowout in a restaurant near his postoffice. About 15 of them got together and chipped in. Plenty of beer. Lots of sandwiches.

They called on Morton. Good old Morton. He had drunk a lot of beer that night. With the boys. Almost over now. Why not?

"Gee, fellers," he muttered, "I—I can't say nothin'. All I can say, fellers, is that—that, gee, I'm awful happy."

Soon it was time to leave. Morton went out alone first. Just to get a little air. He took a deep breath. His head felt strange. Going around. All topsy-turvy. He grinned. Silly for him to be that way. Drunk, of course. He took a step. Another. Still another.

A horn. A muttered curse. A shrill grinding of brakes. A dull, muffled sound. The driver of the truck leaped out and began to tug at the prostrate form in the rear.

A little later, the ambulance arrived. Much too late. It wasn't the truck driver's fault at all, of course. The doctor said the man had died instantly.

And perhaps it was just as well that Morton never lived to see that truck. For on the sides were these three ironic words:

"United States Mail." . . .

Freed At Last From Stomach & Bowel Misery

"For years and years I suffered stomach and bowel trouble," says Miss Alice Tebbetts, of Lexington, Mass. "Have taken ACIDINE regularly and from all the other medicines I had taken, I never found relief like it. It seems wonderful to be free from stomach ache, gas."

ACIDINE is the only known remedy which contains Japtase that in laboratory tests digests 500 times its weight of certain heavy, starchy foods which cause trouble. It neutralizes burning acids, soothes irritated stomach linings, stops gassy headaches, sleeplessness and nervousness in acid conditions. ACIDINE also fortifies you against colds by reducing acidity.

Get ACIDINE today at your druggist. Watch how quick acid indigestion, burning stomach, belching, pain, heartburn, dizziness, fullness, short breath vanish. Eat, drink all you want. Maker refunds money if not delighted.

Blaine Gets Charge Of Postal Bribery

CHICAGO, April 29.—(AP.)—A charge by Clarence D. O'Connell, a discharged Chicago postoffice employe, that "bribery was common knowledge in the Postoffice Department," was before Senator J. J. Blaine, of Wisconsin today.

It was made yesterday at the reopening of the hearing of the senatorial sub-committee investigating postoffice leases. O'Connell blamed his own dismissal from the department because of the knowledge he said he had of bribery.

Urges Cities Share In Auto Law Fines

Legislation providing for the return of certain fines on motor vehicle code violations to cities and boroughs instead of paying them into the state motor fund, was urged by the board of directors of the Pittsburgh Motor Club today. Fred A. Fichtel, president of the club, said:

"Under the present vehicle code most fines for violations of the motor laws must be turned over to the state. Consequently, boroughs and cities have no incentive to enforce the laws, but depend on state highway policemen."

Callahan Inaugural Arrangements Made

The Rev. M. A. Kelly, head of the Department of English, Duquesne University, will deliver a sermon on "Education" at the solemn high mass which will open the inaugural ceremonies for Very Rev. J. J. Callahan, new president of the university, at 9 a. m. tomorrow. Dr. Callahan will be the celebrant, in the university chapel.

Academic exercises with Bishop Hugh C. Boyle making the installation speech, will take place in Memorial Hall tomorrow afternoon. There will be a dinner in the Hotel Schenley at 7 p. m.

Jobless Tragedies Cited by Educator

One of the greatest tragedies of an industrial depression is the creating of a group of unemployables, Dr. Francis Tyrson, economist at the University of Pittsburgh, told the Pittsburgh Exchange Club yesterday at William Penn Hotel. Dr. Tyrson commended the Pittsburgh Plan for unemployment and regreted that it had not reached its goal of $3,000,000. He listed three remedies for unemployment: Relief from private and public funds, maintenance and extension of social work, and an emergency fund such as the Pittsburgh Plan.

Hoseman Injured While Fighting Fire

Hoseman Simon Milewski, of No. 53 Engine Company, suffered a cut of the foot while fighting a fire in the kitchen of the home of John Nazur, rear of 2901 Roosevelt street, last night. He was treated at Mercy Hospital. The blaze resulted in damage estimated at $50.

County 'Considers' Request for Road

The County Commissioners said yesterday "they would consider" a request of W. E. Armstrong, commissioner of Baldwin Township, to build a spur from Saw Mill Run boulevard to Ely street for the purpose of developing acreage.

The End Is Here!

It's the finish! In just a few more hours Pickering's will have passed on and into the world of memories after a career of 59 years in Pittsburgh at the corner of 10th and Penn.

But what a glorious climax Thursday will be to a history that stretches back more than half a century! We're winding up our career! There's a tug at the heartstrings as we prepare to close our doors, but we are satisfied that our last sale has been our greatest sale, and that we have made a record which will stand for many a year to come.

While selling has been fast and furious, we still have a great many odd lots, one-of-a-kind suites and pieces that must be disposed of before Thursday night. We have dropped prices to the lowest levels ever to sweep our floors clean — and this last day will present the most spectacular furniture values Pittsburgh has ever seen!

But this is the end! We're nearly through—and if you come to the store tomorrow, our last day, you will remember forever that Pickering's has kept the faith right up to the end and will close its doors, leaving behind the most precious memories.

Burned at the Stake

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

No matter how many forest fires are raging in this country the waiter always brings in your asparagus cold.

On the first nice Sunday in April they reported 48 timber fires in New Jersey alone. All of them were started by tin-can motorists who think it is nice to cook a meal in the woods.

They wind up by cooking the meal, the woods, the houses and themselves.

The government has forest rangers spotted on towers to watch for suspicious smoke among the trees. But what can they do against thousands of tourists who want to cook every egg in every bird nest for miles around?

We imagine that when a camper has an enjoyable day in the mountains he says to himself, "This is a nice spot. I'll just leave my campfire burning so I will have a landmark to guide me next Sunday."

Then he wheels home and wakes up at midnight to find his bungalow ablaze from consomme to demi-tasse. His campfire has chased him home.

Dropping matches, cigars, cigarets, hot stoves and short-fused bombs are other splendid ways of incinerating the landscape and scorching the horizon.

They usually blame it on the glow worms and the lightning bugs. The farmers suffer from our week-end excursionists and their torchlight parades through the Poconos, the Appalachians and the Adirondacks.

But he's a darned good substitute until the real pyromaniac comes along.

When you drop a lighted cigaret in the woods stamp on it. Don't fan it with your hat. If you had a campfire in the early evening pour water on it. Don't kick it around.

Why eat at all in the sticks? Or if you must cook the hot biscuits and the sizzling gravy, why not camp out in the petrified forest?

The Pittsburgh Section, National Council of Jewish Women, gave a brilliant musicale yesterday afternoon in Schenley ballroom, presenting Henry Harris, pianist. The concert was in honor of Mrs. Leo L. Half, president of the council, and there was a most enthusiastic audience present.

J. Fred Lissfelt

The pianist gave, by request, several numbers which he has already played here, but gave us also two novelties of Poulenc and a most delightful waltz of Dohnanyi arranged from the Delibes "Naila" themes. The Poulenc music is built upon old patterns, but the covering is made of humorous harmonic progressions and most surprising colors. Harris plays this music with all his bubbling good humor and the audience was quick to learn his meaning.

Since last playing here this young man has gained considerably in repose, has more fully appreciated the management of subtle tone, but thereby has lost none of his brilliance nor his infectious enthusiasm as shown in his excellent group of Chopin.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

TOMORROW IS COURTESY DAY

ROSENBAUM'S 16th BIRTHDAY SALE

Starts Friday, May 1

The thrilling news is out! The great event which celebrates the completion of sixteen successful years in our present building begins Friday, May 1st. Tomorrow, Thursday, has been set aside as a day of advance selection, so that the thousands of our customers who plan to attend the first day may shop more leisurely and more comfortably than would othewise be possible.

What a buying carnival this will be! The whole city and country for miles around seems aroused and keenly interested. From far and near...everybody...everywhere...knows by experience what these Rosenbaum Birthday Sales mean to them.

This Birthday Event of 1931, with its "Greatest Values Since Pre-War Days," brings in most instances lower prices than merchandise of the same quality has sold for since this building was first opened. It is difficult to remember when manufacturers have given such spirited co-operation, such substantial price concessions.

The sale will embrace all departments, including the Bargain Basement. In every instance the merchandise is new, fresh, smart and of Rosenbaum quality.

CARSON PAVING COST ASKED

Prior to passage of legislation authorizing repaving of West Carson street, from Corliss to the McKees Rocks line, City Council has requested the law department for an appraisal on the cost of making the thoroughfare 56 feet wide instead of 45 as now planned. The City Planning Commission favors the 56-foot width but Council feels that under present conditions it cannot afford additional property damages. Cost of damages on the 45-foot plan is $342,000.

Council will also seek to determine how its bonding power would be affected by the cost of the improvement.

Chief Engineer Charles M. Reppert, of the Department of Public Works, estimates actual cost of work would be $350,000. Of this amount state aid is estimated at $65,000. Total cost would be more than $750,000.

Present width of the street is 34 feet.

STIMSON IN AIR TALK TO JAPAN

WASHINGTON, April 29—(AP)—In a radio speech that carried across the Pacific Ocean to Japan, Secretary Stimson today said that largely because of the success of the London Naval Conference of 1930 that ocean "no longer separates but rather unites Japan and the United States."

The Secretary of State's message was part of the celebration of the thirtieth birthday anniversary of Emperor Hirohito. Baron Kijuro Shidehara, foreign minister of the Tokio government, delivered a reply which the radio brought to the United States.

Secretary Stimson spoke over network of the National Broadcasting Company in this country and over the semi-official network system in Japan. Baron Shidehara's message, in English, came immediately after Stimson's had been translated into Japanese for the Nipponese audience.

THE BEST PENS EVER OFFERED AT $5.00

Five reasons why this five dollar pen—No. 94—is the most "ownable" pen you can find at the price:

No. 94 may be had in any one of Waterman's pen points to suit any style of writing.

No. 94 is in smart modern design—with balance, weight and diameter just right.

No. 94 clips low in the pocket and fits comfortably in the hand.

No. 94 has an unusually large ink capacity—and an extra-large gold point.

No. 94 comes in blue, grey and brown—all colors men like, and wear.

Every Waterman's is guaranteed forever against defects. Service Stations are maintained at the addresses below for the purpose of making good our guarantee and for servicing our pens as required.

NOTICE

Of Special Election for Increase of Indebtedness of the School District of the Borough of Springdale, Allegheny County.

INCREASE OF BONDED INDEBTEDNESS

Notice is hereby given to the Electors of the several Election Districts of the School District of the Borough of Springdale, County of Allegheny, that in accordance with the provisions of the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, relating thereto and pursuant to a Resolution of the Board of Directors of the School District of the Borough of Springdale, County of Allegheny and Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, duly passed at an adjourned meeting held Saturday, April 4th, 1931, a special public election will be held in the said School District on Tuesday, the 19th Day of May, 1931,

Between the Hours of 7 O'Clock A. M. and 7 O'Clock P. M.

(eastern standard time) for the purpose of obtaining the assent of the qualified Electors to an increase of bonded indebtedness of said School District in the amount of $150,000.00

STATEMENT.

1. The amount of the last assessed valuation of the taxable property in said School District is $3,628,120.00.

2. The total amount of the existing debt in said School District is $81,115.85.

3. The amount of the proposed increase of indebtedness in said School District is $150,000.00.

4. The percentage of the proposed increase of indebtedness in said School District is 4.134 plus per centum of the last assessed valuation of the taxable property in said School District for school purposes, and together with the existing indebtedness would make a total indebtedness of 8.349 plus per centum of said last assessed valuation.

5. The purpose for which the indebtedness is to be increased is for the paying of balance on land heretofore purchased and the erecting, equipping and furnishing of a high school building thereon, which land is located on the east side of Colfax avenue in said Borough.

By order of the School Board of the School District of the Borough of Springdale, County of Allegheny, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

W. A. HAAS,

TRUCK SAFETY VICTORS NAMED

Winners in the third inter-fleet truck safety contest, sponsored by the Better Traffic Committee and the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council, were announced by Frank L. Duggan, head of both groups. The contest continued over a six-month period, ending March 31, with 79 fleets containing 4,195 vehicles, entered.

A decrease of 3 per cent in the frequency of accidents per 100,000 operating hours, was effected, according to Duggan, with an increase of 2,366,256 in vehicle-hours.

Benefit Arranged By Athletic Club

A benefit entertainment, the proceeds of which will go to the Brighton Athletic Club of the North Side Twilight League, will be held in the David B. Oliver High School auditorium Friday. Travel and comedy motion pictures will be part of the program.

Recital Arranged By Piano Class

The seventh annual piano recital will be given by pupils of Miss Mildred Jeannette Sugden Friday evening at 8 o'clock in the East Liberty Young Women's Christian Association. Numbers will be given by 46 pupils.

COUNTY DAMAGE AWARD MADE

County commissioners have agreed to pay $19,500 to the South Hills Coal Company for property damaged in the construction of Elwyn road. The company was forced to rebuild a tipple and make other repairs, according to Secretary Treasurer R. E. Schneider, who said the company would use the money to rehabilitate the plant to resume operations on a basis of 400 tons daily.

The commissioners ordered an appraisal of land declared damaged in constructing the approach of George Westinghouse Bridge on park property owned by East Pittsburgh Borough.

Due to cuts and fills, the land has been left fit only for a county park site, according to Attorney Harold M. Irons, representing the borough.

The commissioners instructed engineers to present an estimate of the property damage likely to be claimed through the construction of the proposed Big Sewickley Creek road, tributary to Ohio River boulevard.

CONTRACTS LET BY COUNTY

County Commissioners yesterday awarded the Fort Pitt Bridge Works a contract to build the superstructure of Boston Bridge over the Youghiogheny River on a low bid of $228,248. Placing the safety curb was let to the Pittsburgh Annealing Box Company on a low bid of $10,545. W. C. Hemmerle got the electrical work on a low bid of $4,389.

J. P. Ramella & Sons were awarded the general work on the administration building, the hangar and the auxiliary building for the county airport on a low bid of $172,253.

Construction of Rochester road in Ross Township and West View Borough was let to the F. W. Scott Company on a low bid of $132,246. The Allegheny Construction Company was awarded the construction of Laketon road in Wilkinsburg and Penn Township on a low bid of $82,862. F. S. Tillman was given the building of Washington Pike in Greentree Borough on a low bid of $74,412.

REAL ESTATE

A six-room home of brick construction in Kelton avenue, Dormont, has been purchased by Martin E. Mullen from Esther Steinberg for $8,500, according to Avey & Irish, brokers.

The White Motor Express Company has leased from the Standard Underground Cable Company the large warehouse at Pike street and Mulberry way. The building extends from Sixteenth to Seventeenth streets and has a frontage of 464 feet along Pike street and a depth of 100 feet.

IS MODERN

The warehouse is a modern four-story fireproof building with sidings on the Pennsylvania and Baltimore and Ohio railroads. Although the total rental involved was not announced, the building has been held at a rental of $45,000 per year, according to C. C. McKallip & Co., downtown brokers, who closed the deal.

A residence in Broad street, Sewickley, has been sold by the estate of Alice Tindall to Clarence Bevington through the offices of Samuel W. Black Company, represented by J. Collord White. After extensive repairs the purchaser will occupy the residence for a home, according to the realtors.

Frank W. Schornagle has been elected president of the Bowlers' League of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board. Other officers elected are James F. Gilson, vice president; Louis Sachs, treasurer, and Clay M. McCormick, secretary.

National Council, Junior Order United American Mechanics, has conveyed to John L. Young the deed to an improved property in Anita avenue, Fourteenth Ward, for $10,500. The lot is 30x144 feet.

BUNGALOW SOLD

A seven-room bungalow, 821 Chislett street, East End, has been sold by A. E. Dean to Christopher J. Leary, according to M. J. Sweeney, head of the M. J. Sweeney Real Estate Company.

The same broker has sold for Agnes M. Palmer to Leonard H. Turner a seven-room modern home at 1413 Morningside avenue and for John C. Young to Eva M. Eakin an eight-room brick house with a two-car garage, 5800 Callowhill street.

Nineteenth Ward—W. J. Hill, brick-frame dwelling, 1312 Virginia avenue, $1,600.

DOPED CIGARET LEADS TO FINE

Accused of robbing John Rodgers, 30, of Glenwood, of $38 when he lost consciousness while smoking a cigaret they had sold him, Domingo Salis, of 1018 Wylie avenue, and Peter Escoben, of Forsythe street, were fined $100 each in Center Avenue Police Court today.

Examination of another cigaret the men had sold to Rodgers showed that it contained "loco weed," police said. Rodgers said the men charged 25 cents for each cigaret.

In addition to the fine, Magistrate Leo Rothenberg also ordered the men to restore the money taken from Rodgers. Both men denied the charges against them.

LAUDS LIBERAL CHURCH GIFTS

The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., in Pittsburgh, May 28 to June 3, will hear Dr. Harold McAfee Robinson, administrative secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Christian Education, report a decrease of 3⅓ per cent in the annual contributions to the board.

During the fiscal year ended March 31, he will report, a deficit of $87,675.33 was incurred. Receipts from living givers totaled $838,598.55, which is $29,014.50 less than in the year ending March 31, 1930. Dr. Robinson says:

"In a year of severe financial stress, it is remarkable that the contributions of the church to the board should show a falling off of only about 3⅓ per cent. The board expresses its gratification that, under such difficulties, the church has been so generous."

STORE OFFICIAL SEES REVIVAL

Optimism regarding business conditions was expressed by Arthur C. Kaufmann, vice president of McCreery's, as he spoke at a banquet given in his honor by more than 1,000 employes of the store. He thanked his co-workers for their support in the work and for the large attendance. The banquet was held in the store's dining room.

Following the dinner, the employes were given glimpses of May fashions in a show directed by Mrs. G. E. McCurry, stylist of the organization. Dancing and cards followed.

PRUDENTIAL'S LATEST POLICY

"The Modified Whole Life and 20-Year Term Policy—with Change of Rate at End of 3 Years and at End of 20 Years"

This official title is necessarily technical but—

Read the following annual premium rates for $10,000 insurance during first 20 years and $5,000 insurance thereafter

AGE	First 3 Years	Next 17 Years	After 20 Years
20	$96.00	$112.95	$71.20
30	121.50	142.95	94.40
40	179.70	211.40	135.45
50	309.00	363.50	205.75

(Premiums Payable Quarterly, Semi-Annually or Annually)

The policy calls for an increase in the premium after three years, but dividends also begin at the end of three years. While future dividends must depend entirely on future earnings, the current earnings of the Company are sufficient to provide dividends at least equal to the increase in premium

This policy will enable the man who has dependents to secure more nearly adequate protection during the years they most need it and at a price he can afford to pay

Make this test: Run your old vacuum cleaner over a rug until you think it has removed every possible speck of dirt. Then go over it with one of the new, efficient cleaners and empty the bag. It will astound you!

Modern cleaners get all the dirt, including the grit and dust that settles at the base of the nap, which, unless removed, will grind your rugs away.

An up-to-date electric vacuum cleaner is an important factor of health and economy in every home. Rugs, furniture, draperies, out-of-the-way corners, and car upholstery are cleaned thoroughly and quickly with a minimum of effort.

Why not have one now, at the start of the spring housecleaning season? It may be had at comparatively low cost on convenient terms of payment.

Ask your favorite electric or hardware dealer or department store for a demonstration.

The Electric League of Pittsburgh is a non-profit organization interested in the sale of useful and dependable electric appliances of high quality and long service; and the protection of the public from the sale of sub-standard electrical goods.

BEBE DANIELS IN RADIO THEATER

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor

Tito Schipa says Bebe Daniels has the best singing voice of any star on the screen...lend Bebe an ear, KDKA at 9:30, when she evokes "The Little Things in Life"...she does a second performance for the Pleasure Hour on WHAS at 11:15...Olive Palmer (WCAE 9:30), comes forward with "Hymn to the Sun"...and The Revelers present Stephen Foster's "Uncle Ned"...And lo! this fellow James Melton, what a voice!...appears with Grantland Rice over WCAE at 10:30.

* * *

Well, Jake learned this morning why they string telephone wires on high poles.

"It's to keep the conversation up, wise-cracked Gene.

Who are the characters in the Seth Parker sketches on WCAE Sunday night? — Tony Runcio, Wilkinsburg.

The popular song, "The One Man Band," might have been written about Frank Novack, drummer in San Lanin's Orchestra, WJAS at 10:30. Frank plays saxophone, xylophone, vibraphone, accordion, trumpet, drums, trombone, clarinet and piano. Thirteen men in Lanin's Orchestra (first famous as the Troubadours) can play 40 instruments.

STUDIO LIGHTS

That reminds us that Dick Ridgely's Radio Orchestra is booked for the Pitt Dance. . .

The radio speech of President Alcala Zamora from Madrid, Spain, was canceled for the second time today owing to poor atmospheric conditions over the Atlantic Ocean.

Channing Pollock, playwright, is to present outstanding scenes of his current hit, "The House Beautiful," on WJAS tomorrow morning at 11. . .Roy Gordon, Mary Phillips and James Bell are the cast. . .

Six of the finest radio singers we know are to do a benefit concert for the unemployed tomorrow night in Carnegie Music Hall. Etta G. Cunninham, Sarah Logan, Cass Ward Whitney, Will Rhodes, Gene Baldridge and Raymond Griffin are to sing the "Sextette" from "Lucia di Lammermoor". . .

The big tall girl from Dixie—Irene Beasley—bowled 'em over last night . . . and Zimbalist's tone was never better . . .

Larry Abbott's Saxophone Sextet joins Harry Reser's Eskimos Friday night on WCAE...and the jovial m. c. of the Eskimo Knight Club...Raymond Knight, in person...speaks to the Advertising Club in Hotel William Penn tomorrow evening . . .

Speaking to the American Legion at Wilkinsburg meant getting home at 1 o'clock this morning, but we surely enjoyed the party . . . those boys asked us more questions than a Philadelphia lawyer . . . Ford Miller, an ex-veteran, got enthusiastic and joined the Capt. John M. Clarke Post . . .

We couldn't join . . . when the war ended we were doing our bit as a Boy Scout of 14, selling Liberty bonds . . . but we are proud of a brother, Don, who took his medicine at Chateau Thierry.

The LOUDSPEAKER

—By LOUIS REID—

NEW YORK, April 29.—Of all entertainers in America those of radio are the thriftiest. Necessity compels it. Their hold on public popularity is brief—briefer than that of screen stars or ballplayers.

No sooner do they become household gods than a new battalion of broadcasters swoop down from the skies to threaten their supremacy. Naturally, they save their money. Show me a spendthrift radio artist and I will show you an idle saxophonist. He just can't be found.

Even if the men and women of the microphone were not saving for that day when they sing in the rain and enjoy it there are always economic experts near them in studios or on loudspeakers, laden with advice on thrift. They can't escape the advice. Soon they begin to believe that there's no friend so true as a dollar or two. And they never give up believing.

They never give up believing when the money rolls in to them in a golden tide. They keep a straight line to the receiving teller's window, fearing that tomorrow may be the end of the world, that television over night may knock their radio careers sky high.

Then, of course, a large number of radio stars have been so buffeted by waves of adversity before they reached the microphone's hall of fame that they have cultivated caution. They don't intend again to be caught short. Many of them realize, too, that their great days in the theater or on the concert stage are over, that the road to easy money is no longer open to them save to that marked "To the Radio."

The money happens to be easy in radio, but it also happens to be anything but permanent. Hence, the padlocks on the pockets, and the steady chant, "To the bank, to the bank."

To the radio artists as to the public television is the most magic of all amusement names at present. Its mention in any group causes the ear to cock. Though it has invaded the home it is still a long way from the vogue which is now enjoyed by sound broadcasting. Spies insist it will be on Broadway before another year. Maybe so.

Maybe, the spies are right in predicting that it will be first used in the show shops to bolster the waning prestige of vaudeville. Every vaudeville house will have a television act and then will come spot news by television. Yet, its most awaited achievement will be when it brings a world series, a championship bout, a presidential inauguration and a Kentucky Derby right into the home.

* * *

That once great American institution, the parade, too will be restored to its former glory by television. Television should bring it back—back in all its Grover Whalen glamor.

* * *

The front parlors have heard Hofmann, Gabrilowitsch—the announcers call him Grabil-o-witsch, Grainger, Gieseking, Schelling, Hutcheson. Only silence greets Ignace Jan Paderewski. Wonder why he delays his march to the microphone?

HAPPENINGS IN HOLLYWOOD AND GOTHAM; LOCAL THEATER NOTES

Music Creeping Back Into Films in the Form Of Underscoring

By HARRISON CARROLL.

(Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, April 29.

While music no longer is openly employed to work upon the emotions in screen dramas, it is creeping back in the form of underscoring.

Correctly used, this music is heard by audiences only through their subconscious minds. It gives pulse and character to the drama and goes on simultaneously with the dialogue.

Dr. William Axt, former musical director at the Capitol Theater in New York, and Oscar Radin are developing this new art at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Ramon Novarro

"Music in underscoring," explains Dr. Axt, "has to be unobstrusive—just something to color the dialogue. If an audience has to listen for it, we have failed. On the other hand, if it distracts their attention from the dialogue, we also have failed."

Great care has to be used in the choice of instruments. Wood winds, says Dr. Axt, blot dialogue. The music of one flute, for instance, would be fatal. Muted string sections over brasses are the best form of instrumentation for the new type of underscore.

Ramon Novarro's new picture, "Daybreak," has a dozen motifs, ranging grom Brahms to folk songs. "The Secret Six," a gang picture, has music from several Wagnerian operas in its underlying score.

LATEST GOSSIP

What a shock! The noise of heavy timbers buckling is reproduced for the talkies by cracking peanut shells . . For the first time in his life, Will Rogers owns a full dress suit, a cutaway coat and striped trousers. His contract calls for him to furnish "all modern wardrobe" and the story called for them in "Young As You Feel." The whole lot are hanging up on nails in the Rogers dressing room at Fox . . . A Paramount convention story reads "Adolph Zukor started his career with $40. Hope I finish mine with that . . . Zion Myers and Jules White, originators of M. G. M's. all-barkie comedies, will use four of their dog actors in Buster Keaton's new picture, "Sidewalks of New York."

Jack Holt

Alberta Vaughn, well remembered from the silent days, will play opposite Hoot Gibson in his second western for M. H. Hoffman, Jr., and Allied Pictures . . . Speaking of westerns, a horse named "Ghost," has traveled 50,000 miles to locations in the last two years. He has been used by Gary Cooper, Ken Maynard, Jack Holt and other stars.

OLD HABITS PERSIST

Charlie Murray tells one about the group of vaudeville actors who became so discouraged they decided on desperate measures. The next morning they met on the bank of the Hudson River.

Two hours later a policeman, patroling his beat, discovered them standing on the brink.

"What are you guys doing?" he asked.

"We're going to drown ourselves," they said.

"Well, why don't you?" he scoffed.

GIVING THE DOG HIS DUE

One of Hollywood's dog actors has an automobile registered in his name. He is "Cameo," a grizzled fox-terrier who played in the first version of "Penrod and Sam" nine years ago, and who has been selected to re-create the role in the new First National talkie of this Booth Tarkington story. Ben Alexander, now a juvenile, was Penrod in the old film. Leon Janney takes the part in the new. Director William Beaudine remembered "Cameo" from the silent picture and got him for the talkie. The dog is owned by Hap Ward and the family automobile is registered to Cameo Ward.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Dirigible," motion picture, will soar into the Pitt next Monday night, after which it will be screened twice daily. Jack Holt, Ralph Graves and Fay Wray are important folks in it. So is Hobart Bosworth, but the others are classed as leads, and we must make the most of our leads. And this leads us to the fact that the b. o. will be prepared to sell tickets to all passengers by 9 tomorrow morn.

Although the touring shows have come to the end of the "road," the Alvin will jog right along. Beginning next Monday, it will be the home of the George Sharp Players, who are moving over from the Pitt. Their first play there will be "The Play's the Thing," a comedy by Ferenc (that's one way to spell Frank) Molnar.

* * *

Savage women never cry, and look at their lack of clothes! But chorus girls do, and look at them!

A new star in the fillum heaven is Robert Montgomery, who comes to the Penn screen Friday in "Shipmates." Just two years in Hollywood and Bob is at the top of the mast. In "Shipmates" he is a sailor seeking adventure. When he finds it he learns its name is Dorothy Jordan.

Small Timer stops the orchestra to remark that some of those stage lassies who are wrapped up in themselves make quite attractive bundles.

* * *

In Syria Mosque tonight the Mask and Wig Club of the University of Pennsylvania will be seen in "East Lynne Gone West," Mellor's has the ticks.

Father Faces Term For Burning Child

GIRARD, Kan., April 29.—(AP.)—Elmer S. Dorris, of Pittsburg, Kan., railway shopman, faced a sentence of from one to five years in prison today for punishing his 5-year-old son with fire. Dorris pleaded guilty in District Court yesterday.

Yiddish Art Theater In the Nixon Tonight

Maurice Schwartz, eminent Jewish actor, and his Yiddish Art Theater Company, of New York, will give a single performance of "Uncle Moses" in the Nixon tonight. The box office will be open today. "Uncle Moses" is a dramatization of the Sholom Asch novel, depicting the pathos, comedy and drama attending the career of a man who attempts to build success from the blood and sweat of fellow countrymen, transplanted from a simple, peaceful village in Poland to a "jungle" in New York.

Two Places Closed On Drys' Complaint

Preliminary injunctions were granted in Federal Court against two establishments, on bills of complaint filed by prohibition authorities, which charged violations of the liquor law on the premises. One place was described as a saloon, second floor, 232 Second avenue, Edward Flaherty, alleged proprietor, and the other as a saloon, first floor, in rear of 5328 Butler street, William F. Gabel, alleged proprietor. Final hearings will be held June 2.

Davis Will Open New Show Friday

Beginning this Friday, the Davis will open all its shows on Friday mornings, instead of Saturdays, as is now the custom. Beginning Thursday night, May 7, the Davis will inaugurate short subjects preview night, and it will be a weekly feature thereafter. The previews will begin immediately after the last performance and those who wish to remain for the screenings will be privileged to do so.

CHURCH PLANS ANNUAL MEET

Many Pittsburghers will attend sessions of the twenty-fourth annual assembly and missionary convention of the Pittsburgh district of the Church of the Nazarene, next week in Washington, Pa. The district includes Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and Northern West Virginia. Convention headquarters will be in the old Second Presbyterian Church.

The missionary convention will be held Monday night and Tuesday morning. District assembly will begin Tuesday night. Three sessions will be held daily. Night programs will consist of evangelistic and educational meetings.

Among the speakers will be the Rev. Dr. J. W. Goodwin, of Pasadena, Cal., general superintendent of the Church of the Nazarene; the Rev. Dr. J. G. Morrison, of Kansas City, executive secretary of the general board; Miss Leona Bellew, African missionary; Judge Howard W. Hughes, representing the Washington Chamber of Commerce; Mayor R. H. McBurney and the Rev. David Morris, representing the Washington Ministerial Association.

4 'Torture' Bandits Rob Rich Furrier

CHICAGO, April 29.—(INS.)—Police today sought four torture bandits who took possession of the apartment of Irwin Max Bailen, wealthy furrier, for more than a half hour last night, while they forced the family to hand over $18,700 in furs, jewelry and cash.

The terrorists had threatened to burn out the eyes of all the seven victims. They were removing Bailen's shoes preparatory to burning his feet when Mrs. Bailen led them to the place in which the valuables were kept.

Flashback

Surely these nights, no matter where you are,
Or what you do—you must have thoughts of me;
And though you may not bear the faintest scar—
I like to think, my dear, that when you see
The April night aflame with all its lure,
That suddenly the vision of my face
Steals back, and leaves you saddened and unsure,
That you were right to part from my embrace.

For, after all, I think that our affair
Was worth the while—I know for one, that I
Still revel in the wine of April's air,
And tremble at the lovers passing by—

Remembering, with quickened pulse and heart,
The fate of two who strangely grew apart!
—Kid Kasanova.

The Retort Swelegant

Mr. Samuel Thompson, bless him, of Pittsburgh, submits the following gag as a sequel to those chronicled here recently about the Messrs. Reichenbach and Hershfield, who have very white hair. (Oh, look up the files, then!)

Thompson tells of the well known and hard-boiled Pittsburgh banker who was seen ankling down the street by two struggling business men, who had received a cold shoulder every time they asked the banker for a loan.

"Hmmm," hmmm'd the first partner, "his hair sure is getting white."

"You're all wrong," groaned the other, "that's nothin' but frost."

Incidentally

Then there's the one about another banker, who had the same rep. So when he was critically ill with typhoid fever, someone remarked that he had heard the banker's temperature had gone up almost to 40!

The Revised Version

Boiled - to - the-ears husband caught tip-toeing into the house later than ever:

Burned-to-a-crisp wife:

"You told that story last week!"

Plastered - beyond - recognition husband:

"Well, thash my shtory and I'm shtuck on it!"

Not New, But Clean

One of the more amusing of the older gags is the one Arthur Herbert is telling again in the late places. You'd be surprised how many people laugh loud at it, and who tell you they never heard it before.

It's the one about the two Irishment who lived across the way from a church They were leaning out of the window watching the worshipers exit.

"There goes Clarence Mackay," said one of the window leaners, "he's a big man, you know. And that fellow in the carriage is J. P. Morgan, and there's the president of the National Bank!"

Presently two fellows came out of the church. They were in tatters. Their hats were torn and they had on no collars.

"Golly!" golly'd one of the Irishmen, "wonder who those guys are?"

"Those two guys," replied the other, "are two of the country's greatest dice cheaters!"

Merciless Truth

Meet the Wife

(But not too often!)

The Los Angeles Record remarks that the Winchell squaw "carved herself a niche in the hall of fame" when she sent a telegram to her husband the day he began a recent vaudeville engagement. The telegram read:

"I hope your success is as big as your head."

"Now," continued the Record, "along comes Mrs. Sam Mintz, wife of the man who authored 'Skippy' into existence, with the dictum: 'He's a man of a few words—a few million!'—Move over, Mrs. Winchell."

And get yourself a splinter!

Heheheh

Well, Now!

The Philadelphia Inquirer says among other things:

"The longest word in the English language, according to a N. Y. paragrapher, is incomprehensible. The longest word is antidisestablishmentarianism — and we know what it means?"

Cross yer heart?

Sotto Voce

Things That Knock Me Cold

The gazettes recently chronicled the report that a dance hall on Broadway held its annual "Dance Championship" and that the judges included Sailing Baruch, Ann Pennington, Irene Bordoni, Frank Fay, Jean Malin, Bill Robinson and Primo Carnera.

Well, if Carnera is a dance expert then Bill Robinson and Pennington are sissies and Jean Malin is a gangster.

DRAMA LEAGUE OPENS SEVENTH AMATEUR CONTEST

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Eight stern and severe critics sat in the seats of judgment last night at the Irene Kaufmann Settlement Theater, while amateur players from three local groups showed their histrionic powers. A fair audience was assembled, but did not display any volcanic enthusiasm, either because their hands had been chilled or because they did not wish to influence the brooding Rhadamanthuses.

George Seibel

Three little plays were presented on this initial evening. One was serious drama, even tragedy; the other two were comedies.

It was the first time these contests took place in the beautiful auditorium with its well-equipped stage, and the result was most gratifying. Long waits while the scenes were being shifted had made previous contests a weariness to the flesh, and real scenery with good lighting effects made the present presentations very satisfactory.

ERIN LEADS OFF

The opening play was Synge's "Riders to the Sea," put on by the Emerson Club of Sacred Heart Church, and directed by the Rev. E. Lawrence O'Connell. So much attention had been paid to atmosphere that some of the properties have been in the possession of Irish families for 150 years. The players were Madeline Skelly Faust, Richard Fleck, Mary Clancey and Mary Gallagher.

The second play was "The Master Salesman," by William Hazlett Upson, presented by the Dracomtra Players and staged by Carlyle Dague. The actors were H. B. Bainbridge, Jean Wood and E. E. Conway.

ENDING IN NEBRASKA

The third and last offering of the evening was a comedy of folk life in Nebraska by E. P. Conkle staged by Mrs. J. T. Anderson. "Sparkin'" was the offering of the drama department of the Carrick Mothers' Club, and was played by Mrs. Joseph R. Bradley, Mrs. James A. Smith, Mrs. J. C. Attenborough and John Matthews.

Tonight the contest will continue with the presentation of four other one-act plays: "Jazz and Minuet," by the Thiel Players; "Mistakes," by the Troupets; "In the Zone," by the dramatic club of the Downtown Y. M. C. A., and "The Misses Biffin," by the dramatic club of Pennsylvania College for Women.

Pitt Band Gives Concert Tonight

The University of Pittsburgh band concert will be held tonight at 8 o'clock in Carnegie Music Hall. Philip Blank, manager, is arranging the affair.

BURKE IN CELL AT MARQUETTE

MARQUETTE, Mich., April 29.—(AP.)—After an uneventful 600-mile trip from the Berrie County jail in St. Joseph, Fred Burke, notorious gunman, arrived at the Marquette prison last night to begin a life sentence for the slaying of Charles Skelly, St. Joseph policeman, in December, 1929.

Burke rode to Marquette in a state police armored car. He was handcuffed and in the car with him were state police. Following them, in another car, were Sheriff Fred J. Cutler, of Berrien County, and three deputies.

As soon as Burke was inside the "cage" he was searched and his civilian clothing replaced by prison garb. Burke handed his overcoat to Sheriff Cutler and asked him to take it back to the Berrien County jail and give it to "one of the boys there."

Germans to Seek Records With Rocket Plane

BERLIN, April 29.—A German airplane driven by a liquid gas will attempt to break the world's airplane speed and altitude records.

The airplane is now under construction by Alfons Pietsch, noted engineer of the Paul Heylandt Company, the largest manufacturer of liquid gases in Europe. The plane will be equipped with the liquid gas rocket motor which Pietsch recently developed as a substitute for gasoline motors for automobiles.

The new rocket automobile was able to attain a speed of 60 miles an hour in its first tests.

Chile's President Shakes Up Cabinet

SEEK KIDNAPING MOTIVE

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 29.—(INS.)—Police today sought a motive for the kidnaping of Dr. Isaac D. Kelley, wealthy doctor and clubman, who was returned home yesterday after an absence of more than a week.

Although he was kept in rude surroundings, blindfolded and hooded, Dr. Kelley reported he was not harmed by the men who lured him from his home by a fake sick call.

A motive is sought by police in view of the fact that no ransom money was demanded by the abductors. Dr. Kelley and his brother-in-law, William D. Orthwein, both deny any ransom had been paid.

John T. Rogers, veteran St. Louis reporter, found the doctor yesterday after an unknown man led him to a place in East St. Louis where the release took place.

HAT-PIN DEATH LAID TO WIFE

DECATUR, Tenn., April 29.—(AP.)—A story of how a mountain woman and her admirer killed her husband by piercing his heart with a hatpin and then hacked his body to pieces was under official investigation today.

Frank Thornton, 16, told the story to a squire's court. He said the slaying took place last fall, but he had not told the story sooner for fear of his second cousin, Hudie Hickman, 25, and Mrs. William Bunch, 23.

Mrs. Bunch denied the youth's allegations and said that her husband disappeared several months ago. She was bound over to the Criminal Court. Hickman's hearing was delayed on his plea that he wished to await the arrival of his father before facing the court.

LEAGUE COURT JUDGES NAMED FOR POLITICS

Devotion to Geneva Dictates Selection of Jurists to 'Soft Jobs' at The Hague

This is the third of a series of four articles on the League Court, now in session at The Hague. The first two described the court's close affiliation with the League of Nations and sketched the important justices. Today's tells why the League selects the justices primarily for political reasons.

By KENNETH CLARK
Universal Service.

THE HAGUE, April 29.

The League Court is essentially political minded. It could hardly be otherwise, since the League of Nations ladles out the jobs not so much on the basis of judicial qualifications as on political considerations.

Being primarily a European institution, the League has seen to it that two-thirds of the judges are European.

Geneva has been the springboard by which most of the judges have made the jump to the court. They have served their apprenticeship in the league, they have furnished proofs in numerous ways of their devotion to Geneva, and the master has rewarded them with nice soft jobs at a good salary, and as much honor as they care to make of it.

MOSTLY POLITICIANS

Judicial training and experience apparently mattered little to the league in picking its judges. Of the 15 regular judges not one can point to a career of service on the bench. They are mostly politicians and diplomats first and legal lights afterwards. Their records speak for themselves.

Nine come either from foreign offices or from the diplomatic service. The other six are roughly classed as professors. There may be no practical judicial training in the whole lot, but there is plenty of political experience, gained in the machinations at Geneva and in the wily maneuverings of old world diplomacy.

The roster of the Court reads like a list of League delegates. At the top are J. Gustavo Guerrero, of Salvador, a former president of the League Assembly, and Mineitciro Adatei, of Japan, president of the Court, formerly Japanese representative on the Council. Both were diplomats before they turned into judges. Right on down the list are judges who have served at Geneva.

SCHEME AGAINST U. S.

Sir Cecil Hurst, Great Britain; Henri Fromageot, France; Willem Jan Mari van Eysinga, Holland, and Francisco Urrutia, Colombia, were on the league's committee which produced the Root-Hurst formula to replace the U. S. Senate's reservations to the protocol of American adherence to the court. The scheme concededly takes away the right as demanded by the Senate to protect the United States, whereby the United States could block advisory opinions that imperiled its interests. As league delegates, these four men, now judges, participated in the deal.

Hurst and Fromageot at the time were legal advisers in their foreign offices. Such is their judicial training.

The court is called upon to render decisions in direct disputes between government and to perform legal services for the league through the medium of advisory opinions. The league apparently knew what services it wanted when it loaded the court with politicians and diplomats.

KAUFMANN'S MONTH-END

WHEN it comes to the end of the month, we're so interested in ridding our stocks of these odds and ends, that cost and actual value scarcely figure in the markdowns. With Spring here, it's good news that so many seasonable wearables and home furnishings can be had at these savings.

More than one hypothetical tear will be shed today as the news sinks in that Kramer's restaurant, known to the older generation as Atlantic Gardens, has closed. Here was one of the places shorn of its attraction with the passing of beer and hard likker. True enough, it was a good eating place, but to those who had leaned against its long, shiny bar 15 and 20 years ago, when beer was a nickel a schooner, the vital part was missing.

Kramer's was the last of a string of one-time popular, high-class beer gardens to pass out. Goetiman's, Newell's, Matt Weiss', McCarthy's, Billy Hammel's, the Duquesne Hotel, Maloney's, Mashey's and Piatt's—they're all gone.

Good drinkers visited these places. True enough, drunkards were not exactly rarities, but on the whole, there were less reputable saloons for them.

In the old days Kramer's was the place you'd probably find the politician you were seeking. In fact, any of the Atlantic Gardens' old bartenders could probably write the debunked political history of the city.

A woman recently appeared before the zoning board of appeals to ask that they grant her a variation from the rules in the construction of a building. Her request was in such direct conflict with the law that the members of the board felt they must refuse her plea. They felt sorry about the matter, however, and through a feeling of chivalry attempted to explain the law and all the various reasons for their action. When the explanations were complete, the woman arose and in a very determined tone of voice said:

"Don't think I don't read the newspapers. I'll watch for it when they get around to your department."

At the Jack Cavanaugh dinner, Senator Davis revived the story of the woman speaker who was advising her audience of women to treat their husbands like little boys.

"Be affectionate," the woman urged. "Mother your husbands, mother them."

An elderly woman in the rear arose in her seat, waved her ear trumpet and yelled, "I'm all for that. Let's smother 'em all."

Ha! . . . The prohibition agents were raiding the place a few days ago when the head man walked right out a rear door they were guarding, so it's said . . . He explained very sincerely he was merely a visitor . . . When William DeC Bunning, vice president of Rotary International, conferring here, opened the door of the clothes closet in his hotel room his eyes popped . . . He saw a skeleton sketched on the wall . . . The favorite story of Coleman Harrison, the attorney, is all about the two old-timers who tried to conceal their deafness . . . "Let's go fishing," suggested the one . . . "No," refused the other, "I think I'll go fishing . . ."

They're teaching Televox, the Westinghouse robot, to eat, but during the tests he'd toss the cake one way or another after lifting it from a bowl . . . Postal employes have been warned that they positively must wear the shiny, new badges they've all been given . . . And if you're wondering what's become of the city's old gas lamp posts, go out to the Schenley Park end of Wilmot street bridge and see the fence made of them . . .

11 HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS WINNERS

Twenty Given Honorable Mention; 500 Entered In Seventh Annual Event

Eleven students from Pittsburgh high schools received prizes, and 20 others, honorable mention, in the seventh annual national scholastic competition conducted by the Scholastic magazine in Pittsburgh to stimulate creative work in art and literature.

Five hundred entries in the art division, including prize-winners, were selected by Judges Lorado Taft, Karl S. Bolander, C. Valentine Kirby, Ernest C. Watson, Royal B. Farnum and Andrey Avinoff, out of 8,000 survivors of local eliminations for the fourth national high school art exhibit, which opens today in Carnegie Art Gallery.

AWARDS MADE

Students from Connelley Trade School, Peabody, Schenley and South Hills high schools took first, second and third prizes in the contest. Peter Murnak, 19, took first prize in the crayon drawing classification; John Bart, 15, received second in design, and Joseph Kleinhampl, second in the Carnegie Museum award. All are from the Connelley School.

David Kings, 17, was awarded first for pottery, and Paul Thornberg, 16, both of Peabody, second in metal work.

At Schenley, Albert Costanzo, 18, got second and Bernard Krauss, 14, third in sculpture; Grace Mielke, 17, third in pottery, and Peter Rembert, 18, third in metal work.

At South Hills, David Edgar, 17, received first in jewelry and Stephen Kubisak, 14, first in pen and ink drawing.

HONORABLE MENTIONS

Honorable mentions were given, in sculpture, to John Patton, 16, Schenley; Marion Bachner, 16, and Gertrude Goldstein, 14, Taylor Allderdice. In pottery, to James Fisher, 17, and William Higgins, 16, Schenley. In jewelry, to Blanche Sommerville, 16, Perry, and Thomas Netting, 17, South Hills. In metal work, to Joe Slutsky, 16, Schenley, and William Hoyle, 19, South Hills. In design, to Paul Calder, 15, Connelley, and Lillian Sharra, 14, Schenley. In pen and ink drawing, to Emery Toth, 16, Connelley; Dwight Magowan, 16, Beatrice Nash, 17, and Jeannette Weinthal, 16, Peabody, and Joseph Ackerman, 17, South Hills. In crayon drawing, to Robert Wisniewski, 18, South Hills, and in Carnegie Museum award to Laura Busse, 16, Langley, and Helen Weiler, 17, Westinghouse.

Woman Not Involved In Blue Law Cases

The name of Mrs. M. Kalson, wife of M. Kalson, fruit store proprietor of 2130 Murray avenue, was used erroneously in yesterday's Sun-Telegraph in connection with a series of arrests for blue law violations. Mrs. Kalson was not arrested, and was not involved in the case.

Foch Shifts Plans For Americans at St. Mihiel Battle

In yesterday's installment Marshal Foch told of the gains that had been made by the Allies in their offensive operations against the Germans who were retreating in various sectors under the blows of the Allied counter-offensive that started in July, 1918. He described the plans that were formulated for organizing and putting into action a great American army and for the American forces to flatten out the St. Mihiel salient. In today's installment he tells of the famous St. Mihiel drive, in which American troops won new military glory.

By MARSHAL FERDINAND FOCH

CHAPTER XXXII.

On August 24, 1918, the commander-in-chief of the American Expeditionary Forces came to Bombon and explained to me the general plan and the command organization for the Woevre operation. We also came to an agreement regarding the employment of certain American divisions in the Allied armies.

Two divisions (27th and 30th) were to remain under the orders of Marshal Haig and take part in the operations in the British zone, and—dating from September 8—two other divisions of Gen. Pershing's reserve (over and above the 14 American divisions earmarked for the Woevre operation) were to be held in readiness to participate, as circumstances might dictate, either in the attacks of the French army or in the American Army's attack.

These matters being arranged, I decided (as we shall see later), that in view of the successful development of the Allied offensives since July 18 and the increasing disorganization of the enemy, I would begin the grand offensive operation foreshadowed in the memorandum of July 24 for the end of the summer or for the autumn.

Marshal Foch

At the end of August our series of successful moves made it possible to contemplate results far more important than the mere disengaging of the Commercy railway line by the capture of the Saint Mihiel pocket.

We were now justified in envisaging the battle of Mezieres, provided we brought to this battle all the Allied armies and provided especially we did not permit the American Army to get carried too far in an offensive of its own and headed in a divergent direction—such as might become the case if it made too great an advance in the Woevre region.

Therefore, on August 30, after apprising Gen. Petain in the morning as to this new program, I went to Ligny-en-Barrois and saw Gen. Pershing that same day. I explained to him the broad lines of the project maneuvre which would consist of combining with the Franco-British attack already under way around Cambrai and Saint Quintin, a Franco-

CHURCH LOOTED, RELICS SOLD

Two men and a woman were under arrest in Stowe Township today for the looting of the Forest Grove Presbyterian Church, Forest Grove road, Robinson Township.

The church has not been used since December. Last week some of its members discovered that the organ, 60 chairs and the matting which covered the floor had been stolen.

County detectives, investigating, said they found the organ had been sold for $2 and the chairs for 25 cents apiece to motorists passing through Stowe Township.

The matting, the detectives said, was found in the homes of Harry Crothers, 40, and Anna Gutt, 40, of Fourteenth street and Pine Hollow road, Stowe Township, and Charles Pickens, 53, of R. D. No. 1, Coraopolis.

Detectives Ford, Alexander and Kaiser placed the three under arrest and took them to the Stowe Township jail where they are being held pending a hearing on larceny charges.

PYMATUNING PLAN HELD CANAL AID

Measure Awaiting Pinchot's Signature to Provide Water Supply for Inland Route

Work for more than 1,250 men is expected when construction work begins on the Pymatuning reservoir in Mercer County under the Stevenson bill, which went to Gov. Gifford Pinchot yesterday from the Senate. The bill, long pending before the Legislature, was also being hailed today by advocates of the Lake Erie-Ohio River Canal project as bringing the canal nearer realization.

Immediate purpose of the reservoir is to control the flow of the Beaver and Shenango rivers. It will serve, however, as a basis for water supply for the proposed canal, it was said today.

MUST CLEAR SITE

Approximately 1,000 men will probably be employed for about one month clearing the swamp of trees and underbrush, as required by law, before construction commences. With this work done, about 250 or 350 men will find steady work on the dam itself for nearly a year, according to Col. J. P. Leaf, of Rochester, Pa., waterways engineer and authority on the reservoir project.

Passed as one of Gov. Pinchot's emergency measures, the bill will be signed at once, it is understood. Construction is expected to get under way within six or eight weeks. One million, five hundred thousand dollars is provided for building a storage reservoir with a capacity of nearly 10,000,000,000 cubic feet of water, drawn from the upper reaches of French Creek.

The reservoir was originally planned as part of the water supply for the canal, according to Col. Leaf.

ESTIMATES NEEDS

George M. Lehman, consulting engineer of the Lake Erie and Ohio River Canal Board of Pennsylvania, had estimated 18,000,000,000 cubic feet as desired capacity. The rivers, he estimated, needed something less

JUDGES STUDY SUMMER COURT

Success of Philadelphia County's summer court was being studied today by some of the local judges, with a view of trying out a part of the system here. The local jurists are particularly interested in the Criminal Court side. During July and August Criminal Court is held here only one day a week, when pleas are heard and cases disposed of.

It has been indicated by some members of the bench that an effort may be made the last of July and the early part of August to dispose of jail sentences waiting disposition, instead of compelling jail prisoners to await trial at court in September.

Some say that one or two weeks of trial of Criminal Court cases in July and August would clear the jail calendar of cases of many minor offenses. It is held by some that the June grand jury could be recalled in July for the purposes indicated.

CITY DELAYS AID FOR MEETINGS

Three requests for Council aid for conventions here have been tabled until a conference is held with City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt and Controller James P. Kerr, it was announced today.

An opinion given Council by the City Law Department last week declared financial aid to conventions from city funds illegal. It is thought, however, that some means may be devised to give aid in cases where the conventions are community-wide in scope, John S. Herron, president of Council, intimated.

Requests from the National Association for Advancement of Colored People, the Eleventh Cavalry, United Spanish War Veterans, and the Polish War Veterans' Association for financial aid for conventions here have been tabled.

APPEAL HEARD ON ANNEXATION

The constitutionality of the law requiring the approval of the State Council of Education as a prerequisite to the annexation of part of a township to a contiguous city was attacked yesterday before the Pennsylvania Superior Court, in session here, at the hearing of appeals from annexation of part of Baldwin Township to Pittsburgh.

The petition of township residents for the annexation to Pittsburgh of an irregular strip comprising part of the Fourth and Eighth wards of the township contiguous to the Twenty-ninth Ward of Pittsburgh was filed in Quarter Sessions Court November 2, 1929, and the annexation was decreed July 31, 1930.

The State Council of Education disapproved the annexation, holding it was unnecessary and would not benefit the school district.

The Township of Baldwin and certain taxpayers filed an appeal from the annexation, contending it was illegal.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

ATLANTA, Ga., April 29.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Flew into Atlanta from Washington. This is a great old city, but its shot now, with Bobby Jones in Hollywood, but they are going to open up the hotels and stores as soon as he gets back. They have planted cotton in the golf courses, the chiselers on Stone Mountain have nothing to work on till Jones comes back as the model. (you know they have put Bobby on the horse instead of Robert E. Lee). My two friends here, Maj. Cohen and Clark Howell are keeping their papers going just to print pictures of what he is eating, and what he is wearing in Hollywood. Crowds rushed up to me at the field and said, "Have you seen him? Is he well? When is he coming home? Oh, its terrible here without him."

Will Rogers

Yours, WILL.

SMOKE OVERCOMES FIRE CHIEF AT SPRINGDALE BLAZE

FIREMAN SAVES UNCONSCIOUS SUPERIOR

Another Man Hurt as Flames Cause $17,500 Loss; Two Women Forced to Flee

A fire chief was overcome by smoke and a fireman was injured while battling flames which did damage estimated at $17,500 to a three-story brick and frame building at Pittsburgh and Butler streets, Springdale, late last night.

Fire Chief Edward Clawson, of New Kensington, was overcome while fighting the fire in one of the upper floors, and Ben Murray, a Springdale fireman, suffered cuts on the right hand. Bert Henson, chief engineer of the Springdale department, found Chief Clawson unconscious, and carried him from the building.

ETNA BOY DIES WHEN STRUCK BY AUTO

Child Injured by Hit-Run Driver in East End; Doctor Arrested Following Crash

Michael Lemic, 5, of 39 Chessman street, Etna, was killed late yesterday when he ran into the path of an automobile driven by Howard Andre, 22, of Middle road, Glenshaw, in Bridge street, Etna, according to the coroner's report.

The boy, on his way home from school, ran from between automobiles halted by a red light in front of Andre's machine, the coroner's office reported.

Struck by a hit-and-run driver at Braddock avenue and Susquehanna street last night, Eleanor Rosch, 7, of 7529 Susquehanna street, suffered fracture of several ribs and bruises. She was confined in her home today.

Dr. Nathan S. Ruben, 25, of 5327 Second avenue, was arrested by North Side police late last night and charged with reckless driving after his automobile crashed into a fence on Merchant street. Damage to the fence was estimated at $50 by police.

DOG ON LEDGE 'RESCUES' SELF

Attaches of the West End Auto Wrecking Company at 401 West Carson street today were keeping an eye on "Doll," a 5-month-old police pup, which was marooned on a ledge near the garage for 24 hours.

Patrolman E. M. Small and William H. Jones of the Animal Rescue League for hours yesterday afternoon attempted to rescue the dog by ascending and descending the hillside, but "Doll" finally came down herself.

Before the arrival of the rescue officers, "Bessie," mother of the puppy, was brought to the bottom of the cliff, but "Doll" paid no attention to her barking.

The pup is owned by Abraham Calig, proprietor of the wrecking concern.

Three Bids Equal, County Splits Order

At the suggestion of C. C. McGovern, the County Commissioners have divided an order for 100 rolls of blueprint paper for the engineers of the Department of Public Works between three local firms.

When bids were opened last week it was found that B. K. Elliott, A. and B. Smith and Stevenson & Foster had each bid $2,857 for the order. McGovern moved, at a meeting yesterday, that the business be given to the three firms on an equal basis "to encourage competitive bidding."

RESERVOIR PLAN TO GIVE JOBS

than 5,000,000,000 cubic feet a year.

Advocates of the canal point out that an addition to the Pymatuning dam, increasing the reservoir's capacity by half and construction of an auxiliary reservoir across the Pymatuning Creek, all federal work, will supply ample water for the canal while preserving flood control and water supply features of the reservoir.

Land has already been purchased by the state for that part of the reservoir lying within its borders. Industrial firms along the Shenango River have obtained control of that part lying in Ohio, and have deeded water rights to the state.

County Commissioner C. C. McGovern, chairman of the board, when appraised of passage of the bill said:

"I am very pleased to hear of passage of the Stevenson bill. Not only will it provide immediate employment to a number of men, but it will bring closer construction of the Lake Erie-Ohio River Canal, which is so necessary to the continued industrial supremacy of the Pittsburgh district.

"Nor are prevention of floods in the Beaver and Shenango valleys, the assurance of sufficient water for them in the summer and establishment of a possible new summer resort section for Pittsburgh to be overlooked."

Suits for Divorce Filed by Two Here

Thomas F. Sheridan, of 483 Marietta street, Mt. Lebanon, asked a divorce from Mrs. Viola Sheridan, 500 Chartiers avenue, McKees Rocks, alleging desertion, in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court. They were married June 23, 1913, and parted May 15, 1922.

Janet C. Boggs, 159 Highland avenue, West View, filed a divorce suit in Common Pleas Court against John C. Boggs, 1707 Pennsylvania avenue, alleging cruelties and indignities. They were married January 29, 1930.

for Electric Refrigeration

- Is the refrigerator manufactured by a reliable company with proper experience in the electric refrigeration field?
- Has it plenty of food and shelf space?
- Is the cabinet itself well designed, sturdily built and properly insulated?
- Is there provision for the freezing of an adequate supply of ice cubes? (Quantity of ice rather than number of cubes, which may be of large or small size, should be taken into consideration).
- Will the refrigerator constantly maintain a proper temperature for the preservation of foods?
- Can the freezing of ice cubes and desserts be speeded up when the need arises?
- Can this extra freezing speed for ice cubes be had without affecting the temperature on the food shelves? (Too low a temperature on the shelves will, of course, injure food).
- Is there a place to keep ice cream, meat, fish, game, "quick frosted" foods or extra ice cubes indefinitely at a below freezing temperature?
- Are these various temperatures (a. extra fast freezing; b. fast freezing; c. below freezing for storage; and d. normal food preservation temperature) automatically maintained without any attention from the owner?
- Does the refrigerating unit operate often or infrequently? (The fewer "stops" and "starts" the longer the unit will last and the less it costs to run).
- How long will the cooling unit continue to cool the refrigerator even though the current is shut off? (Refrigeration should continue for 10 or 12 hours).
- Can the back parts of all shelves, even the lowest, be reached without kneeling or sitting down?
- Has provision been made for keeping vegetables fresh and crisp?
- Can the refrigerator top be used to "set things down for a moment" while the contents of the cabinet are being re-arranged?
- Will the refrigerator add to the attractiveness of the kitchen?
- Has the experience of users over a long period of years proved the refrigerator long-lived and dependable?

BRIDGE CONTRACT AWARDED IN STORMY SESSION

M'GOVERN FIGHT FAILS TO BALK DOUBLE JOB

Removal of Old Span Included With McKees Rocks Paving Despite Split Cost Demand

Over the protest of C. C. McGovern, the County Commissioners yesterday awarded a contract for the paving of McKees Rocks-North Side Bridge and the tearing down of the O'Donovan Bridge to the Harrison Construction Company on a low bid of $272,277.

McGovern objected to the inclusion in the contract of the removal of O'Donovan Bridge on the grounds that the bridge was not a county responsibility. McGovern declared that the county engineers made no effort to have the Public Service Commission pass on the bridge removal or distribute its cost between the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad Company and McKees Rocks Borough. He said:

"The county's proposed action in paying the cost of tearing down O'Donovan Bridge is simply a gift to the other beneficiaries."

CLASH ON REPAIRS

Director Norman F. Brown, of the Department of Public Works, inquired:

"If the bridge were not a county responsibility, why did we spend $35,000 some time ago to have it repaired?"

McGovern replied:

"That was a political matter."

Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong remarked:

"There was no politics. A steel mill in that neighborhood was part owner in the bridge, but the mill went out of business and threw all the expense on the borough. The borough couldn't stand all of the load and the county assumed part of the expense."

McGovern then pointed out that the Harrison Company had set $17,000 as the price for the removal of the O'Donovan Bridge and that the law compelling the county to advertise all expense items in excess of $300 was being violated.

LOWER BIDS CITED

Brown explained that it was considered better practice to have only one contractor on the job in order to centralize responsibility.

Bids for the removal of the O'Donovan Bridge were included by other contractors figuring on the entire project as follows: Vang Construction Company, $15,000; F. W. Scott Company, $11,500; Booth & Flinn, $12,000; M. O'Herron Company, $14,000; McCrady Construction Company, $14,500; Rust Engineering Company, $9,300.

Hubert Moore was awarded a contract by the County Commissioners yesterday to furnish steel case-counters, railings and lockers for the new County Office Building on a low bid of $60,142 over the protest of the Art Metal Company, which had bid $61,300.

H. J. Malloy, representing the latter concern, declared that the company Moore represented in 1925 had furnished similar material to the county that did not meet the specifications. Malloy implied that Moore's present low bid was based on an evasion of the specifications.

Russia Diverting Trade to Germany

BERLIN, April 29.—Russia is diverting more trade almost daily from the United States to Germany. Nearly $10,000,000 worth of finished metal products were ordered from Upper Silesian iron foundries and metal works, it was announced here today by the Soviet trade commissioner.

The new orders included 256,000 tons of cast and sheet iron enabling a number of factories which were closed to resume work at full capacity.

'Yellow Kid' Again Jailed in Chicago

CHICAGO, April 29.—(AP.)—Joseph (Yellow Kid) Weil, self-designated "king of confidence men," who abdicated the throne last week to toss off an autobiography, was arrested again last night.

He and his pal, Fred Buckminster, were found discussing no end of things with a bellboy, Thomas Taylor, last night. At headquarters Weil said he was a banker and Buckminster insisted on being classified as a salesman.

Man Faces Hearing In Extortion Threat

Paul Edwards, 28, of Zara and Grimes streets, Knoxville, who, according to county detectives, threatened J. W. Giles, of Burgettstown, with injury unless he gave Edwards $60, will be arraigned before Alderman George J. Anderson today at 2 o'clock.

Edwards said, according to the detectives, that he wanted the money so that he could finish his education.

3 PENNSY HEADS RE-ELECTED

PHILADELPHIA, April 29.—(AP.)—Percival Roberts, Jr., Charles Day and W. W. Atterbury were re-elected directors for four year terms at the annual stockholders' election of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

The proposed increase of $150,000,000 in the railroad's authorized indebtedness was approved by a stock vote. The directors are thus empowered to issue bonds or other obligations from time to time for additions or betterments and to pay off existing debt. No new issuance of securities is contemplated immediately, it was said.

Striking Miners Get $1,000 Check

CHARLESTON, W. Va., April 29.—(AP.)—Receipt of a check for $1,000 by the West Virginia Mine Workers' Union from the Christian League of Industrial Democracy, for use in connection with a labor dispute at the plant at Prenter, near here, was announced today by Frank Keeney, president of the union.

SULTAN'S AIDE HELD SLAIN

LOS ANGELES, April 29.—(AP.)—Police were undecided today upon the advisability of reopening an investigation into the death of Dr. Luigi Bari Sabungi 98-year-old Assyrian philosopher, and erstwhile advisor to the Sultan of Turkey.

After advancing a theory the aged man, found dead in his apartment Friday, had been slain, police later decided he had met death accidentally. His skull and several ribs were fractured.

Yesterday, however, a coroner's jury returned a verdict finding Dr. Sabungi had met his death at the hands of unidentified assailants.

COUNTY DELAYS WABASH LAND APPRAISAL

Failure of Real Estate Board to State Survey Cost Holds Up Action

County Commissioners have held in abeyance a letter from R. R. Cappe, president of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board, replying to the commissioners' inquiry concerning the feasibility of having a committee of realtors appraise the land to accrue to the county in the proposed purchase of the Wabash bridge and tunnel.

The commissioners agreed orally with railroad officials some time ago to buy the bridge and tunnel for $3,000,000 and to appropriate another $1,000,000 to place them in condition for vehicular traffic.

A few days later, Commissioner C. C. McGovern declared he had voted in the affirmative under a "misapprehension," if current reports were true that the county was to get a 60-foot right-of-way between the river and the passenger station. An inquiry to Cappe concerning the real estate board's committee was the result.

McGovern asked:

"Does the letter say how much the committee will cost?"

Getting a negative reply, McGovern declared:

"I move we hold the letter over."

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Should a Girl Marry Man Younger Than Herself?

Will she ruin his life if she marries him?

Dad'n' Mom'n' Aunt Sue'n' all the neighbors say she will. "It'll never do in the world!" they all chorus. And what's the reason for this opposition? Has Caroline committed some crime that will blight the future? No, lady. She hasn't. But she is older than Bill.

"I'm so unhappy!" she wails. "We love each other so! And I just can't realize that I am older! Why he seems more settled than I do, right now! Do you think it would be all right . . . Or must we give each other up?"

"Give each other up? Hooey!" says Bill, stoutly. "If we love each other, that's all that matters!"

Who're you throwing in with? Bill—or the Anvil Chorus?

"Dear Sally—

"Please help me if you can. It seems as if everyone else is against me, and I don't know what to do. My problem is this: Should I marry a man younger than myself . . . or will I be spoiling his life if I do?

Three Years Younger

"I am 24, and Bill is 21. We met two years ago and began going together. I didn't take it seriously at first, because I thought I hated all men, and I really went out with him because I believed I couldn't possibly fall in love with a man younger than I.

"You see I had been married before, when I was 20, and divorced a few months later, and that experience was so terrible that it left me with a wrong conception of life.

"Well, I tried every way I could to discourage Bill when he began falling in love with me (although I knew I loved him, too), because everybody I knew always said it was bad for a wife to be older than her husband.

"We even stayed apart from each other for five months . . . But neither of us could get interested in anyone else . . . So now here we are. We love each other so! But can we be happy, or will the difference in ages make a difference in our happiness, say 10 or 20 years from now?

Puzzling Problem

"Oh, we love each other so much that it is hard to say 'no' to him, but I couldn't bear to make him unhappy, as our families and all our friends say I would. I am so bewildered. I just can't realize that I am older than he . . . I don't look or act it. And he, honestly, is more settled than I.

"Are our families right? Bill says they're not. That we can be happy . . . and that we have to live our own lives . . . that our parents can't live them for us . . . and that we should go ahead. Oh, please! What do you think? Can we be happy? Or would it be wrong for me to marry him?

Well, what do you think about it, stranger?

Bill isn't afraid to take a chance . . . but is any boy of 21 old enough to know his own mind?

And Caroline feels like a kid with him now . . . but will she still feel like a kid when she's in her fretty forties, and he's just a gay young blade of 39?

What's your experience with marriages where the wife is older than the husband? Does it work? Or do the ruthless years pull them further and further apart?

Let's hear—so we can broadcast the findings to Carrie.

Actresses Eager to Be Pleasing Wherever You Meet Them Says Fay King

ON THE STAGE AND OFF, SHE IS ALWAYS ATTRACTIVE AND AMIABLE
NO WONDER THEY ALL FALL FOR ACTRESSES
THERE IS SOMETHING CHILDLIKE AND APPEALING ABOUT THEM
SHE MAY HAVE ONLY ONE CHEAP DRESS, BUT SHE WEARS IT LIKE A LITTLE QUEEN FAY KING

By FAY KING

"They all fall for actresses!"

So it seems.

Yet when one considers how amiable and charming all actresses are it is no wonder they so easily attract admiration.

No amount of discouragement or disappointment seems to dim their smiles.

You find them as eager to be pleasant and pleasing wherever you meet them.

I've known chorus girls to have only one or two dresses, but they wore them with a chic an heiress might envy.

To begin with the stage is the most flattering frame for grace and beauty, and the actress aims to be as attractive off as on it.

Even those said to be so hard-boiled can appear most guileless and appealing, when you meet them.

Madge Notices Junior's Newly Acquired Secretive Manner

Sam Ticer was patiently enjoying the drama of the situation he had created with his dictim that the three Harrison boys and Junior could not come into the basement where he was working unless they worked every minute of the time that they were there. The boys evidently had no suspicion that he was preparing the basement for their Christmas surprise and that he was quite pluming himself upon the tactics by which he insured their absence during the days when the finishing touches were to be placed upon the big play room.

He delayed answering my question as to how much he needed the help of the boys downstairs until every one of the four was keyed up to the last pitch of boyish suspense, then he gave his answer.

"I believe I can git along without 'em now, if there's anything else they've got to do," he said at last, and as one breath a sigh of relief came from each pair of boyish lips.

Upon each youthful face there was written the determination to keep a long way from the erstwhile fascinating basement, and I hastened to present an alternative.

"Oh, there are so many things I want them to do, Mr. Ticer," I said. "I am so glad you don't need them. We have to go and find the Christmas tree and the Yule log in the woods. Then we have to bring them in, and we have to decorate the whole house and get all the nuts cracked two days before Christmas, and there are so many packages to be wrapped—we'll be as busy upstairs as you are in the basement."

"Maybe so," Mr. Ticer rejoined pessimistically, "but you'll have to be goin' some."

His voice was so impregnated with kindly conspiracy and his winks were so emphatic and frequent that I was in terror for fear the boys would begin to suspect the kindly deception we were planning. But they evidently had heard nothing save my reference to the Christmas tree, and Junior and Roderick were jumping up and down again, vociferating over and over: "Hurray for the Christmas tree!" while William and Henry were looking at me with shining eyes.

"Do you mean," Henry asked, coming closer to me, "that we can go to the woods and cut down our own?"

"Not cut one down, Henry, but dig one up," I told him, smiling. "Then after we have it for Christmas we will plant it in the yard. Hasn't Junior told you about the other Christmas trees?"

"I didn't have time," my small son said importantly. "We've been so busy working down in the basement and with playing—"

He stopped short, as if a hand had been clapped over his mouth, and darting a quick look at the other boys I caught the warning look for silence which Henry had not had time to erase from his face. Instinctively I paid no apparent attention to it, but I felt as if something had clutched at my heart with constricting fingers. I had had to deal with Junior's imaginative lying as in the story he had told—and partly believed—of the pirate visit to the house, his interpretation of the burglary. But I never had known him to deceive me deliberately.

"Suppose you run along and play now until lunch time," I said with an effort. "Then I'll plan the trip for the Christmas tree."

They scurried away, and I lost no time in going to Dicky and asking him to see me in my room in five minutes' time. Whatever our other differences, Dicky and I have always found ourselves able to deal in perfect harmony with the problems presented by our only child.

"I know what's on the well-known mind, old dear," he greeted me when he came into the room. "I heard Junior's spiel and I caught Hank's warning look. But don't take it too seriously. It's probably something harmless."

"That isn't the question," I said. "It's the idea that Junior has been told to keep something secret from us, and that he is impressed enough by Henry's authority to stop himself in the midst of a sentence when he was telling us about it."

"I know," Dicky said soberly, "but what are we going to do about it?"

"I don't know," I said heavily. "By the way, how long are the boys going to stay with us. You never have told me."

"That's your own fault," Dicky reminded me with a grin. "You were afraid of telephone tolls, remember, and I haven't thought of it since."

"But you can tell me now," I persisted.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Thursday, April 30

A particularly eventful and active day may be looked for, according to the testimony of a most interesting chain of planetary aspects. There is prospect of sudden upheaval and change of work and environment which may lead to places of prominence rather than to safe avenues of profit. Promotion is probable with financial emoluments deferred. Be careful with these new ventures, do not lend money and be conservative in speculation. Personal letters may bring benefits.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of unforeseen change, with important journeys, probably new associations, which may bring advancement, but not financial increase or safety. Personal correspondence has advantages.

A child born on this day may be conspicuously talented, original, adventurous and skillful and may reach high place and travel far. It may take long chances in finances to its detriment.

CORRECT MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Place for the Bread And Butter Plate

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you kindly settle the following dispute?

"A" claims that the bread and butter plate goes to the right of the table, over the knife. "B" says it goes to the left, over the fork. H. B.

Invitations to Daughter's Party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Will you kindly publish a correct formal invitation for a birthday party for a 14-year-old girl?

2. Also please tell me on what kind of stationery the invitation should be written? E.

1. The invitations for the party for the 14-year-old girl would not be formal, dear friend, but would, appropriately, be in the form of a note written by the mother of the young lady. Something like this:

"Dear Mary:

"Alice and I would be so happy if you would come to a little party that I am planning for Alice's birthday, on the afternoon of Friday, the first day of May, at three o'clock. Do tell me that you will come—and give us joy in the anticipation.

"Dearest wishes to your mother and to you.

"Cordially yours."

The letter of invitation should be written on white or light gray paper (not on the pink paper on which you wrote to me, for pink paper is never in good taste) of the double-sheet variety, and of as good a texture as you can afford to buy.

Ivory Is a Splendid Choice

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am buying my china preparatory to starting my new home. I am a bit confused as to whether I should buy the china with a white background or with an ivory background. Which would you recommend? G.

The ivory, by all means. The perfection of the ivory background for china is one of the most artistic trends of today in household commodities. As the china merchants say, the popularity of the ivory body in china has "spread like wildfire." The truth is that ivory in china, as in practically all other things, is more mellow than white, more pleasing to the eye. And it provides a richer, warmer, more flattering foil for almost any type of decoration than a glaring, uncompromising white. Color shines forth from it in a most effective and artistic way.

A Case Where Nonchalance Is an Advantage

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Should a girl have her coat on ready for the gentleman, when going to a dance?

2. If one spills something on the table, what should one do or say? MARY E.

1. She should be all ready, except her coat, and, after they have chatted a minute or two, she should excuse herself and go put her coat on.

2. First, the person should try not to get embarrassed for, of course, embarrassment always quickly adds to confusion. Instead of spending time getting embarrassed he should quickly apologize to his hostess by saying "I am sorry, Mrs. Allen. That was a most awkward thing for me to do. Please forgive me."

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Ventilation Essential in Our Crowded Cities

With increased population new problems of health have arisen. These have been added to by the tendency to concentrate in large cities and great buildings. One of the most pressing of these problems is that of ventilation.

Dr. Copeland

The importance of fresh air has long been appreciated. The sufferings in the Black Hole of Calcutta emphasize this necessity.

When we inhale we take in air that is laden with oxygen. Oxygen is essential to the body. Without oxygen we cannot thrive.

When we breathe out we exhale carbon dioxide. This is the residue and waste after the oxygen has been utilized by the body. If there is no source of fresh air, the atmosphere will soon become heavy with carbon dioxide.

It has been shown that the carbon dioxide content of the air can reach 2 per cent without causing serious damage. When increased beyond this point it is dangerous. Asphyxiation may occur where there is a marked decrease in the available oxygen.

In addition to the necessity of fresh air proper ventilation requires the air to be at a certain temperature. The moisture content of the air is of vital importance. This has been proved by repeated observations in schools where studies have been made.

Proper ventilation then depends on fresh air, correct room temperature, and the right degree of humidity. The air of the room should be kept in motion and the waste gases removed.

Where these conditions are maintained, school children are less susceptible to colds and infections. They appear brighter. They take greater interest in their school work and make greater strides in education.

The temperature of a room should be evenly maintained. The proper degree depends on how active the work is. It varies from 65 to 72 degrees.

Excessive heat produces dryness of the air. This should be avoided. In modern homes where steam is utilized it is best to have a pan of water near each radiator. Evaporation of the water helps to bring about proper humidity. Where coal stoves or gas heaters are used the same simple procedure should be employed. I strongly advise this method of refreshing the air in your home.

Do not hesitate to keep your windows open. A stuffy, overheated room causes lowered resistance. Such aid helps the germs to spread disease.

Our grandparents believed night air dangerous. Fortunately, this belief has been generally discarded, although some persons still hesitate about having open windows at night. You will benefit greatly by training yourself and your children to sleep with the windows wide open. When you become accustomed to it, this procedure can be followed all during the year.

Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

When a blue day wraps you 'round, trot out and buy a new hat and have the old topknot revised. Nothing like a new and novel coiffure to chase away worry bugs, chop off the depression of birthday, put hopskips in the step. Beauty shops are showing hairdresses that are softer and fluffier than they have been in the past. They are flattering. Go git one.

Teeth should be brushed twice a day, the first thing in the morning and the last thing at night. If the gums are soft and sensitive, don't scour with a harsh brush; use one with bristles that are only moderately firm. Begin the brushing at the gums and, as you sweep along towards the ends of the teeth, roll the brush so that the bristles penetrate the spaces between them. That's where destructive chemicals lurk.

The white-haired woman perks up when she adds a bit of vivid coloring to her sartorial outfit. Certain shades of rose and old blue give a touch of loveliness to her frosted tresses, bring out the color of her eyes, call attention to the delicacy of her skin. Brightly colored necklaces are splendid aids to pulchritude unless the throat has taken on lines and sagginess. Only the young and pretty can wear black.

A smartly new coiffure flutters ringlets at the rear. Those in the center of the nape of the neck are longer than those at the side, the hair of shoulder length being cut to a point. A slender barette of white metal holds the galaxy of curls in place. It is curved the shape of the hair line, dipping in the center, lifting at either end. Très chic!

Watch your hands. Note the poses they assume. Attractive hands are graced with tranquility. Hands that fuss with the hair, stroke the chin, twist dress buttons, keep on the move, are irritants. When the hands are clasped in the lap, place one thumb well above the other and let the fingers interlock.

MRS. CHILDS, PITTSBURGH SOCIETY WOMAN, AND MRS. GOULD, NEW YORK, STROLLING

Mrs. Leo Half Honored at Reception

While several happy features marked the reception given yesterday at the Hotel Schenley by the Council of Jewish Women for its president, Mrs. Leo Half, quite the most important one was the recital by Henry Harris, Pittsburgh pianist. Mrs. Half, in her charming address, commented on her especial pleasure in the choice of her young friend as soloist for the occasion.

Mr. Harris, who is a pupil of J. Fred Lissfelt, Sun-Telegraph music critic, not only chose a program well worth listening to, but he presented it in a way that commanded attention and unreserved admiration. The young man plays with an imagination that is astonishing in one of his years and with an incisive brilliance. Add to this his gorgeous singing tone and one can readily understand why Mrs. Half prophesies a notable future for the lad.

Especially were these qualities noticeable in a Chopin group and in the Brahms "Rhapsodie in E Flat Major." Composition of Marcello, Poulenc, Debussy and Dohnanyi made up the remainder of the program.

Council's nominating committee reported this slate for election on May 12: President, Mrs. Half; vice presidents, Mrs. Charles Buerger, Mrs. Lee Rosental, Mrs. Louis Reizenstein and Mrs. Leo Schonfield; financial secretary, Mrs. Robert Zugsmith; recording secretary, Mrs. Abe Blumenthal; treasurer, Mrs. Charles Stewart; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Edgar Hirsh; auditor, Mrs. Harold Goldstein.

STYLIST PRESENTS NEWEST MODE IN WOOLEN DRESSES

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, April 29.—We seem to be going wild over wooly clothes this season. Everywhere one sees wool dresses, even at formal afternoon functions, and the best coats and suits are all of wool weaves. The new wool weaves are more soft and subtle than ever and make up with a maximum of smartness. Bulkiness, the former bugbear of the woolen frock, has been entirely eliminated and this is probably why we are all indulging in a long pent up desire for a woolen frock. The tailored models and the softer creations are equally smart and are being selected by the most fashionable clients of the leading houses here. Woolen coats, too, have relegated to the background the coat of silk, and it is very rarely now that one sees a day coat of satin or faille. Instead, we seek the unostentatious smartness of a fine tweed or wool crepe and go our tailored ways rejoicing in our insistence on the practical rather than the softly pretty.

THE GOOD-LOOKING, very spring-like coat, sketched here, is from Jenny. It is of light weight speckled tweed, in gray and blue and is trimmed with bright blue leather. The collar, belt and edgings are all of the leather. Worn with a matching wool jersey frock, collared and cuffed in white pique, a most practical and smart ensemble is achieved, one that approximates the sartorial ambitions of almost every young woman.

* * *

QUICK DIVORCE, DEMPSEY AIM

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., April 29.—(INS.)—The speedier divorce laws of Nevada caused Jack Dempsey to start establishing a residence in that state, his actress-wife, Estelle Taylor, had been informed today by her attorney, Joseph Scott, who returned here from Reno recently where he conferred with Dempsey and the former champion's attorney, Robert Burns.

Under the California law Dempsey would have to wait a year before being able to get a final decree, and he decided that was too long, Scott said.

Scott declared that he found Dempsey "in an amiable mood" and willing to make concessions regarding a property settlement.

No definite action has yet been taken, Scott said, relative to a property settlement and terms of the proposed divorce suit.

SPEED CAPITAL CHURCH PLAN

PHILADELPHIA, April 29.—(AP.)—The project and financing for a great national Presbyterian church at Washington is "considerably advanced," the National Capital Presbyterian Commission said in a report made public today.

The report is to be presented to the Presbyterian General Assembly in Pittsburgh on June 1. Dr. Albert Joseph McCartney, of Washington, is chairman of the commission.

Total prospective assets of the project at present were listed in the report as $1,457,000, including an anonymous gift of approximately $425,000.

Club Notes

Mrs. Charles H. Rugg, president of the Home and Hospital Club of Bellevue, has appointed a new committee to take care of social service work. Its members are Mrs. R. D. McKee, chairman; Mrs. C. H. Enforced Idleness Held Economic Menace

Idleness, enforced by the advance of the machine age, has brought about a most serious economic and moral problem, Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver, of The Temple, Cleveland, O., declared in an address at the annual girls' conference of the Pittsburgh Federation of Social Agencies yesterday in Hotel Schenley.

Distinguishing between leisure and unemployment, Rabbi Silver said unemployment is enforced idleness and leisure is the time in which we do the things we desire. He said idleness does not impose any discipline upon the people and urged that we educate ourselves for a career of leisure beginning with our children.

After a review of the achievements by Prof. Henry M. Busch, of Cleveland, the fifth annual institute closed.

LONGER LIFE FOR SILK HOSE

To find a way to make silk hose and undergarments wear longer means money in women's pockets. A New York fashion expert has discovered the secret.

She found that washing with soap and water alone did not remove the body excretions which rot silks. So she adds a tablespoonful of Energine to every quart of lukewarm, soapy water. Then she washes and rinses the articles—as usual. The result is a new cleanliness—a pleasing freshness — revived colors — all with practically no rubbing.

But the most amazing result is the longer life it gives to silks—an economy every woman will appreciate.

Try this method of adding Energine to soapy water the next time you wash silks. You'll be delighted. Remember, too, that millions of women save money by using Energine for removal of spots from suits, hats, dresses, gloves, shoes, etc. Large can 35 cents at any drug store.

This attack was to be entrusted to an American army disposed astride the Meuse with the French 4th Army on its left and, possibly, the French 2nd Army on its right, the two latter reinforced by from 12 to 16 American divisions. It was to begin between the 15th and 20th of September.

In the meantime, both in order to give no respite to the enemy and also to facilitate the withdrawal and transfer of the American troops destined for the attack on Mezieres, the Woevre operations were to be carried out around September 10 by forces reduced to about nine divisions and with their objective limited to the mere clearing of the Paris-Avricourt railway line, that is to say to the conquest of the line Vigneulles-Thiaucourt-Regneville.

In other words, to enable me to direct against Mezieres an offensive from which I expected very great results, I was led to reduce the Woevre operation to a far smaller scope than I had had in mind when I wrote my instructions of August 17, and in addition I was led to ask Gen. Pershing to undertake a new offensive.

Before quitting Ligny, I left the general a note summarizing and explaining in detail the various points touched upon in our talk. This note elicited from the commander-in-chief of the American Army some observations which he declared in a letter he sent me on August 31.

Go Over Plans

To smooth out any difficulty and avoid loss of time, Gen. Pershing, Gen. Petain and I assembled on September 2 at my headquarters. We took as a basis for our conference the answers to the letter which I had sent Gen. Pershing the day before. It was as follows:

"My note of August 30 and my verbal explanation of the same date contemplated organizing immediately a general battle of the Allied armies.

(1) In a predetermined direction.

(2) With the maximum Allied forces.

(3) In the shortest possible time.

(4) Under the best conditions of supply and hence of communications.

"To accomplish this, I had in view as the American Army's part:

(a) An operation against Saint Mihiel, on a more or less reduced scale.

(b) An attack west of the Meuse.

"The attack west of the Meuse will be maintained at all cost as regards direction.

as regards the importance of the forces engaged.

as regards considerations of time.

"If you think, as you state in your letter of August 31, that you cannot undertake the Saint Mihiel operation previously or simultaneously, even if its scale be reduced, I consider that this operation should be abandoned.

"In any case, with a view to organizing at once and without any loss of time the operations west of the Meuse, I request you to meet Gen. Petain and me tomorrow, September 2, at 2 p. m. at my headquarters, in order that the broad lines of these operations may be then and there definitely drawn up."

Decisions Made

In the course of this meeting which took place under the conditions stated, Gen. Pershing, after going over the list of American divisions then in a condition to undertake an offensive, admitted that the Saint Mihiel operation and the offensive against Mezieres did not, by any means, exclude one the other, provided they followed in rapid succession and that the dates were arranged with this end in view.

Under these conditions, it was decided:

(1) That the attack on Saint Mihiel, limited to the occupation of the line Vigneulles—Thiaucourt-Regneville, would be prepared for execution on September 10, using from eight to 10 divisions.

(2) That the attack west of the Meuse would be made between September 20 and 25 by the American army (12 to 14 divisions, not counting those to be recuperated from the forces making the preceding attack), between the river and the Argonne, supported on the left by an attack of the French 4th Army, the whole under the command of Gen. Petain.

The decisions thus arrived at were incorporated in a note which was handed immediately to the two commanders-in-chief as a preliminary to the general instructions sent them on the next day, September 3.

And so after the changes and negotiations just explained, the Saint Mihiel operation was at last got under way. But even then it had to be put off 48 hours after the time first set owing to the extreme complexity of the movements of concentration."

Americans Successful

On September 12, after an artillery preparation by nearly 3,000 guns during four hours, the principal attack (American 4th and 1st Army Corps), starting from the front of Seicheprey-Limey, was launched at 5 a. m. in the direction of Vigneulles-Thiaucourt. This attack was so violent and was carried out with such resolution that the enemy succeeded nowhere in stopping it.

The thick wire entanglements were crossed, the centers of resistance were overwhelmed and passed over, and by evening all the objective had been reached.

Meanwhile, the secondary attack (American 5th Corps) having debouched at 8 o'clock from the Eparges front, moved forward with the same rapidity as the main attack and, pursuing its advance throughout the day, reached Vigneulles-les-Hattonchatel in the course of that same night. There, on the morning of the thirteenth, liaison was established between the secondary and the principal attacks.

A few hours had sufficed for disengaging this Saint-Mihiel salient, where during four years the enemy had been established. The Germans did not have time to evacuate the pocket completely and 13,250 prisoners with 460 guns were taken.

It was a splendid success, and I hastened to send my congratulations to Gen. Pershing. To complete it, all that had to be done on the days following—September 13, 14 and 15—was for the troops to install themselves in front of the new positions occupied by the enemy and build a solid defensive line to face him.

For the American 1st Army must now withdraw a considerable part of its forces and send them to the west of the Meuse. Here new tasks and new fortunes awaited them.

How Doughboys Reduced St. Mihiel Salient

After the reduction of the Marne salient, in which American forces played such a decisive role, Marshal Foch directed the hammering of the salient which threatened Amiens, and another further north, which threatened the Channel ports and included French iron fields of great value to the German army.

There remained on the war map of France a fourth great salient, unreduced in four years despite heavy French sacrifices in assaults against it. This was the famous St. Mihiel salient, which stood as a constant threat against Verdun. Here also the German artillery made the great Paris-Nancy railway system useless, tremendously handicapping the Allies in their problems of supply.

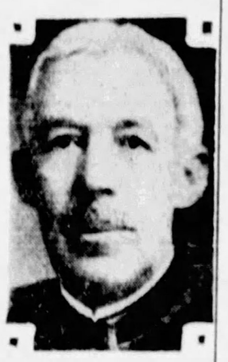
Gen. Lejeune, Who Commanded U. S. Marine Brigade at St. Mihiel.

Gen. Pershing's staff began preparing plans for a St. Mihiel operation in 1917 and it was here, along the wooded Meuse heights and the Woevre plains eastward, that the 1st American Army came into action. Its organization was begun on the Vesle after the Second Battle of the Marne. In today's instellment, Marshal Foch discusses the reduction of this St. Mihiel salient.

Along the southern face of the salient Pershing placed two army corps—the 1st, Gen. Liggett commanding, near the Moselle; the 4th, Gen. Dickman commanding, further west. Around the nose of the salient and as part of the 1st American Army Corps, a French Colonial Corps was in position. At the upper part of the west side, along the Meuse heights, was the 5th American Army Corps, Gen. Cameron commanding. The French Colonial: were to engage and hold the enemy without having any specific order to advance.

The spearhead of the attack from the northwest was the 26th (New England) Division, commanded by Gen. Edwards. The 4th American Division supported this drive by an advance along the northerly flank. The 35th (Missouri-Kansas), the 91st (Wild West) and the 80th (Virginia, West Virginia and Western Pennsylvania) Divisions were in reserve.

In Gen. Dickman's 4th Corps, the spearhead of attack was made up of the veteran 1st and 42d (Rainbow) Divisions, commanded by Gens. Summerall and Menoher, which were to drive through to a junction with the Yankee Division of Cameron's corps at Vigneulles. The 89th (Mid-West) Division also was in line in this corps, and the 3rd Division was in reserve.



Gen. Cameron, Commanding 5th U. S. Army Corps at St. Mihiel.

Liggett's 1st Corps, west to east: the 2nd and 5th Divisions, Regulars; the 90th (Texas and Oklahoma), the 82nd (Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee) Divisions were in line. Here the 2nd Division, commanded by Gen. Lejeune, with its famous Marine Brigade, got the heavy assignment—driving through to the Hindenburg line at the base of the salient. The 82nd held, while the line of this corps swung northward like the opening door. Liggett had the 78th (New York, New Jersey and Delaware) and the 33rd (Illinois) Divisions in reserve.

With gigantic artillery preparation, the nine American divisions jumped off on the morning of September 12, 1918, backed by six divisions in reserve. Progress was clocklike and fast. On the thirteenth, the pincers had closed near Vigneulles and the salient was wiped out. Further advances until September 16 firmly established a new front line.

AYRES WARNS OF HOLLYWOOD

LOS ANGELES, April 29.—(Universal.—Louella Parsons, radio editor of Universal Service, last night in her weekly radio interview asked Lew Ayres, popular young film star:

"Can you from your own experience give the young men and women listening in a word of advice on the possibility of getting into motion pictures?"

He answered:

"Well, I'm not so sure my opinion is expert, but my advice to everyone who has ambitions for a screen career is to stay away from Hollywood unless you are prepared for bitter disappointments, heartaches and cruel discouragements. Then you must have stick-to-it-iveness to an nth degree and you must be prepared to fight and fight hard."

Miss Parsons asked Ayres what happened before he was given the lead in "All Quiet On the Western Front." He said that for months he made the rounds of the different studios trying to get work as an extra.

"I thought I'd starve until Paul Bern gave me a part in 'The Kiss,' a Greta Garbo picture. For five months after that picture there wasn't a job in sight. Then I was told to go to Universal for 'All Quiet On the Western Front,' but after waiting three days and being completely ignored, I walked out.

"If I hadn't met Paul Bern accidentally and been told to go back to Universal, I probably would never have had the big opportunity."

Hear the difference;
TASTE the difference!

Like an oasis in the dusty desert of dried tobacco, the new Camel Humidor Pack brings you the delight of fine quality cigarettes in factory-fresh, mild condition.

Now, wherever you go, you can always be sure of getting a fresh, throat-easy cigarette when you demand Camels.

It's easy to tell the difference. Your sense of touch detects it as you roll a cigarette between your fingers. Dry tobacco is stiff and crumbly. Camels are full bodied and pliant.

Even your ear can tell the difference. For a dried-out cigarette crackles when you roll it.

But the real test is taste and taste is causing a great nation-wide switch of men and women alike to Camels in the scientific new Humidor Pack. As you draw in that fragrant, mild, cool smoke, redolent with the joy of choicest Turkish and mellow Domestic tobacco, only then do you realize the full importance of this new Humidor Pack.

For scorched or dried tobacco is brash and tasteless and its smoke is unkindly hot to the tongue and throat.

If you are already a Camel smoker you have noticed the improvement in this your favorite cigarette.

If you don't smoke Camels, try them for just one day to see how much you're missing. After you've known the mildness and delight of a really fresh cigarette, switch back if you can.

● It is the mark of a considerate hostess, by means of the Humidor Pack, to "Serve a fresh cigarette." Buy Camels by the carton—this cigarette will remain fresh in your home and office.

Time After Time Konjola Wins When All Else Tried Proved a Disappointment.

Mr. Albert Chase

The experience of Mr. Albert Chase, 2605 E. 38th street, Little Rock, Ark., is significant. He says: "I became weak and nervous because of stomach and kidney disorders. For a month my feet were so swollen I could not wear my shoes. I bloated badly after meals and became short of breath. Konjola soon corrected my stomach ailment and the swelling left my feet. I am now able to do light work again."

Now consider carefully what Mrs. J. C. Rawls, 217 East Fourth street, Little Rock, Ark., has to say: "I suffered for years with stomach trouble. Constipation and weakened kidneys added to my misery. I began taking Konjola and in two months time I felt like another person. Konjola completely relieved me and I shall always praise it."

BRAME INSPECTS SWETONIC'S OPERATED-UPON ELBOW

Pitchers Ervin Brame and Steve Swetonic, long-ailing members of the Pirates' pitching staff, indulged in a workout at Forbes Field yesterday to prepare themselves for active duty upon the return of the club tomorrow. Brame has been suffering from bronchitis and Swetonic from a chipped elbow and neither has been available for a league game so far. Both said they felt fine and predicted speedy recovery of their pitching form. Buck McTiernan, Swissvale boxer, king of the local middleweights, is shown signing a new contract with Bunny Buntach, his manager.

PITCHER PAST 40 WINS 13 STRAIGHT

Clarence Mitchell

WHEN THE AGE marvels of the major league pitching ranks are being discussed, how about Clarence Mitchell? It's high time the baseball record keepers were giving this old boy a tumble. Considering the fact that he was 40 on February 22, his mere continued presence on a big league payroll as an active hurler for the sixteenth consecutive year would in itself have to be classified as something out of the ordinary. Add to that the fact that in beating the Robins yesterday he hung up his third straight victory of the season for the Giants, and he stands out even more prominently, as only four other slabmen in the majors have won three games without a defeat.

But that isn't half of it. Do you know how many victories this venerable chucker has won in succession since the last time a decision went against him? Just a mere matter of 13. It appears to have been generally overlooked, but Mitchell won his last 10 games in 1930, and with three more added this spring he now has a mark for consecutive wins that has not been beaten often.

AFTER GOING TO the Giants from the Cardinals in exchange for Ralph Judd last May, Mitchell lost his first three games to the Phillies, Robins and Braves. Since then he has won one or more games from every other club in the National League, and has taken no fewer than four from the Cardinals, the club that let him go in a trade that proved a total loss. He has trimmed the Phillies three times, the Robins twice and the Pirates, Cubs, Braves and Reds once each.

This remarkable veteran, the only left-handed spitballer in the big show, and ranking behind only Jack Quinn, Urban Faber and Adolfo Luque among the pitchers in age, has not tasted defeat since May 31, last year, when he lost a 3-to-2 decision to Bob Smith, then with the Braves. He was the last man to defeat Burleigh Grimes, who has won six straight, barring world series competition, since he lost to Mitchell, 2 to 1, on September 9. Mitchell's run of 13 successive wins would be a great record for a young pitcher, to say nothing of a man of 40.

IN THE MATTER of consistent hitting, Paul Waner has been showing them all a few tricks this spring. Since Charley Root held him in subjection in the opening game of the year, Paul has not failed to hit safely in any contest, and he has made one or more hits in each of 11 consecutive games. His season's average is .391.

Lloyd Waner and Traynor have batted safely in nine out of 12 games, Suhr in eight out of 12, Comorosky in seven out of 10, Hemsley in five out of eight, Thevenow in six out of 12, Grantham in four out of eight, Phillips in two out of four and Regan in two out of four.

THAT MAKES FOUR times Burleigh Grimes has beaten Pittsburgh since he left the Pirate fold. In two other games he started against them, the Bucs forced him to retire, but on each occasion the responsibility for the outcome passed to the relief hurler. In stopping his former mates yesterday after they had won two in a row in St. Louis, Grimes registered his third straight victory of the year, and in the three games he has allowed a total of only four runs. The only other flingers who have won three games without a defeat are Charley Root, of the Cubs; Harry Seibold, and Eddie Brandt, of the Braves, and Clarence Mitchell, of the Giants. Wes Ferrell, of the Indians, and Jumbo Elliott, of the Phillies, also have won three times, but each has lost a game.

Percy Jones

PITTSBURGH BASEBALL fans learned with deep regret of the severe injury to Percy Lee Jones, former Pirate left-hand pitcher, whose diamond career has been ended by a broken back resulting from a fall from a third-story window in Columbus, O. Jones made many personal friends during his stay here last year though he was a failure as a pitcher.

Injuries and unfavorable turns of fate have beset Jones ever since he broke in with the Cubs 11 years ago. After three seasons with the Bruins a sore arm handicapped him and he was shipped to Los Angeles in 1923, and from there he was sent to Seattle for 1924.

PERCY RETURNED TO the Cubs for four years, but again lost his effectiveness and was traded to the Braves for 1929 in the Hornsby deal. Last spring he came to the Bucs with a money consideration in exchange for Burleigh Grimes.

Jones was in nine games for the Rovers, but started only two and was lifted on both occasions, though charged with only one defeat. His last appearance in the big show was on June 11 against the Giants. The Pittsburgh club released him unconditionally on June 23 and he signed with Columbus in the American Association.

THE OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT that the New York Athletic Commission had sanctioned the Jack Sharkey-Primo Carnera 15-round bout for June 10 at Ebbets Field in Brooklyn was wholly unnecessary. Everybody knew what the commission meant to do in that direction when it reinstated Carnera after declaring he could not appear in a ring in New York State, for it was only to make the Sharkey bout possible that the reinstatement was granted.

LOCAL AMATEUR BOXERS WIN IN TOURNEY

NEW YORK, April 29.—(AP.)—Amateur clouters of New York and Boston lead the parade of leather slingers into the quarter final round of the National Amateur Athletic Union boxing championships.

New York, playing host to 150 willing workers from 20 states, the Hawaiian Islands, and Canada, placed seven men in the final eight in the eight divisions and Boston, represented by a set of New England champions, duplicated that feat.

Into the quarter finals starting late tonight Cleveland will send five men. New Orleans landed four quarter finalists. St. Louis and Chicago also got four. Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Kansas City and San Francisco followed with three each.

The Hawaiian delegation of six that traveled 5,000 miles to take part in the fun ran into severe trouble tonight, and lost five straight matches. The sixth man, still left in the show, had drawn byes straight into the quarter final round. He is William Sylva, a 112-pounder.

Four Pittsburgh district lads turned in triumphs. Eddie Zivic, whose brother, Fritzie, was defeated Monday night, won over Ernie Tonnielli, of Chicago, in a bout that went four rounds. Charles Cravotta, of Uniontown, Pa., a 147-pounder, knocked out James Jackson, of Indianapolis, in the second round.

SCOTT, DUKES DINE TONIGHT

By JESS CARVER

Some right hefty eatin', merry-makin' and eulogizin' will be attended to tonight as a pair of the district basketball teams are accorded due honor.

At the Edgewood County Club Scott High's state basketball champions will be the honor guests at a whopper of a testimonial banquet, the last formal affair to be tendered the W. P. I. A. L. and commonwealth kings.

In the Duquesne University Cafeteria (pronounced cafeteria), the Duke varsity squad will be the guests of the athletic council. Unfortunately, the Scott fete was scheduled first, which will interfere somewhat with the attendance, on the part of scribes, at least, at the Duquesne affair. This is regretable indeed.

Speakers at the Scott dinner will include prominent citizens of Braddock and North Braddock, Coach Cliff Carlson, of Pitt, and school officials. The Duquesne talkers will be Coach Chick Davies, Elmer Layden and a representative of the faculty. The chances are that Joe Bach will speak a little piece, too.

The Dukes also will elect a captain for next season, a very important item on the program.

SAILOR, PRIMO GO GETS O. K.

NEW YORK, April 29.—(AP.)—Jack Sharkey and Primo Carnera will fight 15 rounds at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, June 10, legal entanglements and weather permitting, but it will not be for the New York State Athletic Commission's heavyweight championship of the world.

The commission has given its blessing to the proposed meeting of the Boston sailor and the ponderous Italian, but withheld title recognition.

The explanation given by Chairman James A. Farley was that no request had been made for title recognition. Farley indicated the matter might be considered at a later date.

PIRATES DROP RAGGED FRAY TO CHAMPS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE
Staff Correspondent

ST. LOUIS, April 29.—There was just enough crabbiness in the Pirate camp today to indicate the Buccos would be bad news this afternoon when they take on the Cardinals in the last scrap of a four-game series. The reason for the surly strain in camp can be traced to the performance given by the Pittsburghers yesterday as they bowed to Burleigh Grimes and the Redbirds by the lopsided score of 8 to 2.

The play of the Freebooters was disappointing, and Charley Wood's slab exhibition was a loose-leaf thing that added to the miseries of the invaders.

KREMER TO HURL

Skipper Ens has a pretty fair country pitcher ready to fling at the Redbirds this afternoon. Remy Kremer is all set to go to the hill. But Sergt. Street, of the home club, says he has a right smart chucker in the person of ol' Jess Haines, who has been doing his trick for these many years, by heck. All in all, it looks like a real slab duel between the veteran aces of righthand delivery.

The Pirates are due to rush to a train a few minutes after the game ends. They will hurry back to Pittsburgh, the Ensmen being slated to take on the Reds at the Oakland orchard tomorrow afternoon. Dan Howley will bring his last-placers to Pittsburgh for three games.

The Pirates had Hurly Burleigh on the ropes on several occasions yesterday, but just when a stiff punch of some kind would have floored the veteran, a Pirate would be sufficiently obliging to ground into a double play. Grimes twice filled up the sacks with one out by making bad tosses to second, but his miscues were followed by double shuffles on the part of his supporting cast.

INDIANS' BATS POUND WAY TO LEAGUE LEAD

Jimmy McAleer, Former Major League Manager and Organizer, Dies

TIGERS' STREAK ENDS; ROBINS LOSE TENTH

Whatever the effect of the new sphere on other major league clubs, it has acted as nothing but a tonic for those clubbing Cleveland Indians.

In 11 contests to date, the American League pace setters have given one of the greatest demonstrations of collective hitting seen in either circuit in recent years. They literally have blasted their way to the top, averaging slightly better than 12 hits to the game.

In only three bouts has the tribe been held under double figures in the hit column. Yesterday Roger Peckinpaugh's warriors propelled 16 safe ones off two St. Louis Brown pitchers to win their fifth victory in six starts, 10 to 9. The Browns broke loose on their own account in the ninth, scoring eight runs, but the Indians had the punch to come back and score three in their half to tie it up and then win out in the tenth.

YANKS, NATS TIE

By winning, the Indians gained ground on their closest rivals, the Yankees and Senators, who battled to a 14-inning draw at Washington, 7 to 7.

Detroit's four-game winning streak was snapped by Pat Caraway, of the White Sox, 6 to 5. Bill Cissell provided the winning margin with a homer, the first hit by a Chicago player this season.

The Brooklyn Robins encountered another southpaw with the usual result. They collected 11 hits off crafty Clarence Mitchell, of the Giants, but he tightened in the pinches to beat them, 3 to 2. Nine of the Robins' 10 defeats have been credited to lefthanders.

After taking two on the chin, the St. Louis Cardinals came back to stop the Pirates, 8 to 2. Burleigh Grimes registering his third straight win.

BRAVES DEFEATED

Bill McKechnie gave his veteran pitchers a rest and the Boston Braves dropped a 9 to 8 decision to the Phillies. The defeat knocked the Braves back into a virtual tie with the Cubs and Cardinals for the National League lead.

The scheduled game between Cincinnati and Chicago at Cincinnati was postponed for the funeral of Garry Hermann, former president of the Reds. Cold weather again blocked the Athletics and Red Sox at Boston.

MATMEN CLASH HERE TONIGHT

A card of five bouts, featuring all heavyweights, makes up the second show of Pittsburgh's wrestling revival in Motor Square Garden tonight.

Dick Shikat, former claimant of the world title, meets Jim Clinstock in the main bout, on fall to a finish, and, in another similar contest, Wladek Zbyszko takes on Tony Felice, of Italy.

Jim McMillen, who wrestled the windup of the first show, two weeks ago, is paired with Don Delaun for a 45-minute time limit contest, and there will be two 30-minute time limit preliminaries, with Mike Romano taking on George Tragos and Ivan Zacturoff engaging Carl Pojello.

Swissvale, Jays Open Sandlot Play

The Swissvale Community nine was tied and the Jeannette Jays, of the Middle Atlantic League, scored a triumph in opening sandlot and exhibition games played in the district last evening.

Swissvale and the Edgewood Club battled to a 2-2 tie at Edgar Thomson Park. The Jays defeated the Greensburg Coal nine, 2 to 1, in a tussle at Jeannette.

Says Nick Altrock

Baseball's Comedian

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The experts are kind of tough on Lyn Lary for that boner, but I blame it onto economy. You remember, Gehrig's homer landed in the stands and bounced back on the field and Lary thought it was caught on the fly. Well, he was only a victim of economy.

Nick Altrock

Things are so tough this season the magnates can't afford to lose balls that are knocked for home runs. So they are using a homing pigeon's gizzard instead of a cork center for the baseball, so that it will bounce back inside the park even if it's slammed over the fence. So lay off Lyn Lary. He's only the first one to be fooled.

fifth when he whacked a homer over the rightfield stands with two of his mates on the sacks. The Redbirds were out in front with a two-run lead before Jim's bat spoke and when it did a lot of wind was taken out of the sails of the Pirate brig.

Catcher Eddie Phillips, who has been a standout in the play of the Pirates since the club took to the road, started the Pirates off in the right direction in the second when he drove one of Grimes' offerings into the leftfield bleachers for a homer. In his two succeeding duels with Grimes the former Toronto star came through with slashing hits, but he could not get enough support from certain of his mates to keep the Buccos in the thick of the fight.

Wood staggered and sagged owing to a lack of control. The same weakness that has marked his pitching during the training period was manifest in the five walks he gave in five rounds of pitching. It would not be surprising if Charley, in view of his poor slab work, would be relegated to the second-string corps.

CHICAGO, April 29.—(AP.)—The 10-round match between Billy Petrolle and Jimmy McLarnin, scheduled for Madison Square Garden, New York, has been indefinitely postponed because of Petrolle's illness with influenza.

Long's Sport Comment

So far, the scions of the Empire State have not gone so far as to ask the public to accept the circus affair as a world championship match, though even that may come later in view of the fact that they have approved the distance at 15 rounds, a route that is supposed to be allowed only for title affairs.

DAVE BANCROFT, coach of the Giants, who is hardly ever without a new story to spring, bobs up with a companion-piece to the ancient yarn about the late arrival at the ball park, who, upon learning that the score was nothing-nothing in the seventh, expressed satisfaction that he hadn't missed anything.

"It seems a man took his wife to a double-header," says Bancroft. "Well, in the third inning of the second game she got up and said to hubby, 'Come on, John, this is where we came in.'".

IT HAS LONG been the boast of Charley Peterson, veteran fancy and trick cue champion, that he can make every shot possible in billiards, but to prove that assertion he would have to live a mere matter of 2,000,000,000 years, according to—no, not Ripley, but Prof. Frank G. Dickinson.

Charley Peterson

Dickinson, professor of economics and author of the Dickinson football rating system, declares the number of possible shots runs far into the quadrillions. He says there are 63,000,000,000,000,000 ways of making billiard shots.

THE PROFESSOR CALCULATES that if the 6,325 usable square inches on the playing surface of a regulation billiard table were lined so as to make 398,000 blocks one-eighth of an inch square, and each of the billiard balls were moved from the center of one of these squares to the center of another, there would be 63,000,000,000,000,000 arrangements of balls on the table. Also, if a player could make one of these shots every second and play night and day, it would require 2,000,000,000 years to make the shots. Even if the balls were moved from squares of one inch instead of one-eighth inch, the total shots possible would be 243,000,000,000, he says, and a player making a shot a minute and playing night and day could not finish in less than 571,000 years. He adds that theoretically there are an indefinite number of shots if it is assumed that a new one is created when any ball is moved an infinitely small distance, and he doubts if any player ever had exactly the same shot twice in his entire career of competitive play.

An error in the first inning was all that prevented George Martin, Peabody High School's ace right hander, from turning in his second no-run, no-hit victory of the current City League season yesterday. As it was, Martin pitched his second no-hit game in a row, Peabody beating Allderdice 9 to 1.

A week ago, Martin set Connelley down without a hit or a run. Yesterday's triumph placed Peabody in a very advantageous spot in Section I. The game scheduled between Westinghouse and Schenley was postponed because of cold weather.

In Section II, Allegheny knocked Oliver from the list of unbeaten teams, winning by a score of 5 to 4. Vocational upset the dope by beating Langley, 6 to 4.

In W. P. I. A. L. battles, Scott High, of North Braddock, the defending champion, walloped Edgewood, 13 to 8, and Dormont broke McKees Rocks' victory string with an 8-to-6 setback.

In nonleague tussles, Wilkinsburg defeated Shady Side Academy, 9 to 5, and Turtle Creek won over Rankin, 8 to 6.

Pitt to Reward Panther Boxers

The athletic council of the University of Pittsburgh has awarded the Panther varsity and freshman boxers letters for their work during the past season, their first in the ring. The following received varsity letters:

The following will receive numerals: George Patterson, Joseph Milutis and Jack Schricker.

In addition to the members of the boxing team, letters were awarded to Anthony Hohl, the "Pitt Panther" of the past two years, and John Williams, varsity cheer leader.

SCHOOL LEAGUE ENLARGED

The Interscholastic Golf Conference, following a meeting yesterday of its executive committee, has been enlarged from four to seven schools; will likely be increased to eight, and henceforth will proceed as a two-section league.

McKeesport, one of the charter high schools in the conference, which resigned shortly after the inception of the organization, has asked for readmittance and again has been accepted into the fold. Bellevue also was admitted, which, with Shady Side Academy, Kiski, Taylor Allderdice, Langley and Oliver High schools, make up the present circuit.

The revised schedule, which also calls for an 18-hole playoff between the winners of each section at a date to be named at the conclusion of the program:

Section I

April 29, Shady Side at Allderdice; May 1, Allderdice at Langley; May 2, Shady Side at Kiski; May 4, Kiski at Langley; May 5, Langley at Allderdice; May 11, Kiski at Allderdice; May 15, Allderdice at Kiski; May 15, Shady Side at Langley; May 19, Kiski at Shady Side; May 22, Langley at Kiski; June 2, Allderdice at Shady Side.

Section II

May 2, McKeesport at Bellevue; May 8, Bellevue at McKeesport; May 16, Oliver at Bellevue; May 22, McKeesport at Oliver; May 29, Oliver at McKeesport; June 1, Bellevue at Oliver.

Today, Langley High travels to Shady Side Academy to play a match postponed from yesterday.

SPORT SHORTS

LONDON.—(AP.)—The committee of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews, Scotland, which is the ruling body of British golf, has decided to ban the use of the concave type of golf club which American Walker Cup players and professionals introduced in 1930. The club, known and ruled out in America under the name of a sand wedge, has been called a "skoogee" here.

ST. LOUIS.—(AP.)—Joe Benes, an infielder, has been purchased by the Cardinals from the Columbus club of the American Association and will be used as utility infielder, and Eddie Delker has been sent to Columbus.

BUCKHANNON, W. Va.—(AP.)—A directed verdict in favor of West Virginia Wesleyan College was returned in the suit for $10,000, brought by Mrs. Margaret H. Hinkle Fisher, whose son, Melville Marshall Fisher, was injured fatally in field and track practice at the college last year when he was struck on the head by a discus thrown by another member of the track and field team.

PHILADELPHIA.—(AP.)—Eddie Mack, flashy lightweight boxer, of Denver, will make his ring debut in Philadelphia next Monday night. He will meet Benny Bass, junior lightweight champion, in the 10-round feature bout at the Arena. Bass title will not be at stake.

CHARLEROI, Pa.—John Hayduk, halfback, has been elected captain of the local high school football team for 1931.

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa.—Capt. Louis Persenyi and Harry Brownlee, of Westminster College, will represent that institution in the Ohio relays at Columbus next Friday and Saturday.

SOCCER TEAMS TO MEET

Dunlevy and Cleveland Slavias will clash in a soccer game at Husher Field, Monessen, next Sunday. Play will begin at 3 o'clock.

ST. VINCENT WINS

MOTOR SQUARE GARDEN SETS RECORD

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

The Motor Square Boxing Club is setting a record this season for the number of shows staged in its arena. The card next Monday night, featuring Eddie Shea, of Chicago, veteran featherweight contender, and one of the hardest hitters in the division, against Steve Smith, the Bridgeport (Conn.) iron man, will be the twenty-seventh of the indoor campaign in those quarters, and it will be followed by one other program, the following Monday night, presenting all-star local talent. After that the outdoor arenas will hold sway.

Matchmaker Jules Beck will show a highly-touted visiting featherweight in the second bout. He is Benny Goldstein, of Baltimore, a main-bouter in his home town. Benny is being handled here by Al Suttle, and will oppose Angelo Vergione, of Braddock, now under the management of Frank Klaus, the former middleweight champion. Sammy Paris, of the Hill, and Johnny Haggerty, of Lawrenceville, old bantamweight rivals, will box the opener. The semi-final remains to be closed.

Between Rounds

A large field will go to the mark tonight in the first session of fighting in the Greater Pittsburgh amateur boxing championships in the McKeesport arena. The tournament is scheduled to be concluded tomorrow night, but may require an additional night for all of the eliminations.

Ray Eberle, of Aliquippa, will be the regular announcer at the Meyers Bowl again this summer. He also will handle the first preliminary show under the new state law at Weirton, W. Va., Saturday night, in the main bout of which Ross Fields, Weirton southpaw, flyweight, will battle Joey Ross, New York Marshall Coquette, of Cleveland, and Harry Morris, of Weirton, will box the semi-final.

Buck McTiernan, who has just signed a new contract with his manager, Bunny Huntach, has been in training for about a week and probably will box the main bout of a show in Erie, Friday night of next week, to get going again after a layoff of a few months.

Kayos, Extra Rounds Feature Benefit Show

A pair of knockouts and two bouts that called for an extra round of milling featured the amateur boxing show last night at Motor Square Garden, sponsored by the Fourth Ward Relief Fund Committee. State Senator James J. Coyne is general chairman of the committee. The summary:

OLD-TIME STAR SUCCUMBS AT YOUNGSTOWN

YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 29.—(AP.)—James R. (Jimmy) McAleer, 66, one of the organizers of the American League, former owner of the Boston Red Sox, and former manager of the St. Louis and Washington American League clubs, died today after a long illness.

In addition to his baseball career, McAleer also was in the theatrical business as part owner of a stock company.

McAleer's first wife died last December. Announcement of his second marriage, which was to Miss Georgianna Rudge, Youngstown musician, was made in February.

McAleer entered professional baseball with a Youngstown club in 1882. After two years here, he went to Charleston, S. C., and later to Memphis and Milwaukee.

He was with Cleveland until the brotherhood war led to the formation of the two major leagues. With the late Ban Johnson, he was largely responsible for the organization of the American League.

For nine years, McAleer managed the St. Louis Americans, and for two years, the Washington Senators. He was president of the Boston Red Sox in 1912 when they captured the league pennant. A few years later, after a quarrel with Ban Johnson, he sold his holdings in the Red Sox and retired from baseball.

Private funeral services will be held here at 2 p. m. Friday.

BOBBY JONES' Lessons in Golf

American Open, British Open, American Amateur and British Amateur Champion.

I have just received a most interesting letter from a golf enthusiast who had read my article on the hands and wrists in the April issue of the American Golfer. The writer of this letter is evidently an intelligent student of the game, and had apparently worked out for himself the same use of the hands and wrists which I described. I was very much interested in reading his description of the troubles he had encountered and how he had tried to overcome them. Many people have told me, and my own experience bears this out, that any conscious, concerted application of force by the right arm or wrist on the down swing inevitably produces distorted results.

Bobby Jones

(I think Mr. Willis might have said the same thing of any conscious application of force by the right arm or wrist anywhere in the stroke.)

But he goes on:

"An alternative is to shut the face to the club slightly on the backswing in order to counteract the effect of the hands leading too much. By doing this one can still retain control by continuing to apply the left-arm drive principle without any forced intervention of the right; here, however, the difficulty in my own case has been that sooner or later I find myself closing the club's face to the point where a great deal of the snap is taken out of the shot."

SUPPLE WRIST ACTION

And then, Mr. Willis wants to know how I work this out.

Well, to start with, the thing is a matter of timing, and it is difficult for one to describe how he goes about timing a golf shot. The problem is to get the face of the club around to the ball in such a way that it is true to the line of intended flight. How to do that is another matter.

Mr. Willis was certainly right to discard his idea of putting more right-hand into the shot. The club face can be closed or brought around, with the left just as well as with the right, and I suppose right hands have spoiled more shots than anything else.

CLOSE FACE SLIGHTLY

The best suggestion I can make in the light of my own experience, is to try a more supple wrist action. I find that when I push a shot badly it is usually because my wrists have been more or less wooden so that I have lost the feel of clubhead. If the wrists are cocked generously at the top of the swing, the head of the club has a definite location; it can be felt, and the full cock of the wrists causes them to be used emphatically in striking the ball.

I do not believe in closing the face of the club going back. I like an iron club which turns its toe inward the ball a bit, but I allow it to open quite a bit on the backswing. I think it will be found that if the left wrist as well as the left arm is used decisively in hitting, the face of the club will close quickly enough.

DUKES, TARTANS OPEN NET SEASON

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The racquet forces of Duquesne University and Carnegie Tech will inaugurate 1931 contesting this afternoon. The Bluffite crew, having wound up strenuous pre-campaign training period under Coach Grant Siverd, is primed to entertain the powerful Geneva College array on the Hill asphalt rectangles, this affair making up the local end of the day's varsity net card. The Tartans, meanwhile, will journey to Buffalo Creek for battle with the Bisons of Bethany.

LINEUP UNCERTAIN

Coach Siverd has not announced the lineup that he will hurl into the Covenanter fray. One fact, however, is certain: Capt. Andy Smeaton, who last year scrimmaged through 12 tussles for the Red and Blue without meeting reversal, will resume operations as No. 1 man of the squad. Other probable Duke starters are the veterans, Jimmy Campbell, Regis Bullion and Frank Casey, while choice for the remaining singles post lies among Joe O'Neill, Ray Boland, Jerome Berkowitz and Doggo Burns, speedy football ace.

In doubles, Duquesne will send Smeaton and Boland to the wire at top position with the clever Campbell-Casey combine likely to draw the second call.

Extensive data on the strength and personnel of the Skibo and Geneva teams has not thus far been rendered available, for, largely due to the condition—or lack of condition—of the clay surfaces at the Schenley Park and Beaver Falls institutions, netmen at the respective schools have enjoyed small opportunity for practice to date.

PITT ON ROAD

Dr. Billy McElroy's Pitt proteges will loaf this afternoon, but late tonight Capt. Eddie Jacobs and company will embark for Washington, D. C., there to meet George Washington University tomorrow and Georgetown on Friday. Saturday will find the Blue and Gold at Annapolis with Navy furnishing the opposition. Duquesne and Carnegie will clash on the Bluff Friday, with the Hillmen remaining at home over Saturday for a tussle with Bob Thorn's Grove City contingent.

GROGAN TROPHY DATES SET

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

The hatchet, buried so peacefully last year, has been dug up and the Redskins of the Tribe of Shannopin are doing their dance of war around their rather modern wigwam. Yesterday there was sent to the Kilties of Clan Highland a challenge—a defi in the form of an invitation to do battle.

The annual conflict for the Grogan Cup, emblematic of supremacy between the neighboring Shannopin and Highland Country clubs, and won last year by the Ben Avon Heights linksmen, will be resumed on Wednesday, May 27, at the Shannopin Country Club. The first 18 holes of the 36-hole match, which annually brings virtually every player, from dub to star, into team competition, will be played on that day. A month will intervene, and then on June 24, the warriors from the Tribe of Shannopin will make an invasion of the Highland heather for the last half of the match.

HUBACH IN CHARGE

Shannopin has announced that its big chief, L. A. Hubach, will be on hand to direct things for his tribe, while Chief Harry Hetzel of Clan Highland, is expected to lead his host of hardy men. A buffet supper will be served at Shannopin, following the match. Good fellowship between clubs never waxed as keen as between these old rivals.

It is reported that the Chartiers Heights and St. Clair Country clubs will renew the rivalry inaugurated last year when they played a match similar to the Grogan Cup affair.

The women at Shannopin, by the way, will inaugurate their activities on May 12, with a golf breakfast at 9 a. m. and a talk on "The Rules of Golf" by Professional Charley Manning at 10 o'clock. A nine-hole competition is slated.

The members of the Western Pennsylvania Caddie Masters' Association will hold their annual meeting and banquet at the Longue Vue Country Club at 6:30 o'clock tomorrow evening. The election of officers is to be one of the highlights of the meeting.

SWANKIE TO STAY

George Swankie, professional at the Sharon Country Club for the last 15 years, who was reported to have resigned his berth and signed with the Duquesne Golf Club, is still on the job at Sharon and, despite reports to the contrary, will remain there throughout this season.

Mrs. Robert Gardner, of Miami—the former E. Lucille Bejach, former city champion and one of the best women golfers ever to play in this district—is back in town again and expects to stay. There is a big probability, however, that she will forego her amateur status. She expects to open a modern driving range and utilize her fine knowledge of the game by imparting it particularly to members of the younger generation. We need such a person to drill golf sense into the children of our community, and it would not be surprising if Mrs. Gardner would meet with success in her new project if she decides to go ahead with it.

Walter H. Mennigke, of Chartiers Heights, president of the Hotel, Club and Restaurant Men's Golf Association, has announced that the inaugural tournament for that organization will be held on Monday, May 4, at the Highland Country Club.

March Rail Operating Statements Show Improvement

The March operating statements of the railroads which have come to hand thus far are, as expected, making a distinctly better comparison with last year than was the case with the February returns. The operating income of the first 47 roads to report for March totals $25,134,000 as compared with $14,259,000 for February and $29,137,000 in March last year. The indicated drop in their net operating income as compared with a year ago is approximately 13.7 per cent, whereas the February returns of the same roads indicated a drop of 52.2 per cent when placed outside the February figures of these roads for last year. This more favorable comparison has not, however, proven particularly helpful to the rail shares in a market sense.

The outcome of the Youngstown Steel meeting was generally accepted in New York circles as indicating that opposing forces in the company have called a truce and are prepared to proceed with peaceful discussion of their differences. The re-election of Cyrus Eaton and his representatives to their places on the directorate was pointed to as holding considerable significance in that respect. Dissenting stock could not be voted at the meeting, and therefor the Cleveland interests naturally were unable to cast their ballots, indicating that Youngstown holders, and Bethlehem holders of stock in favor of the proposed deal by which Bethlehem would absorb Youngstown, voted to return Mr. Eaton and his associates to their places on the board. Wall street believes that ultimately the way will be cleared for consummation of the deal.

A break of more than 10 points net yesterday carried Allied Chemical down to the lowest levels prevailing for that stock since 1926. Selling of the issue was of heavy proportions notwithstanding the official statement made that earnings were exceeding dividend requirements. The street was more than a little surprised by the evidence which developed of the withdrawal of the Nichols interests from the company's affairs. The latter had long held a sizeable position in the company and had maintained representation on its board. The fact that this particular group rescinded its board representation was widely interpreted as suggesting that despite all the talk of "short selling" in Allied Chemical over the last few months, a good part of the selling probably represented actual liquidation.

Sufficient selling developed yesterday on Pennsylvania's disappointing March operating statement, to force the stock of that road down to the lowest levels touched since 1926. The drop of approximately 2 points registered in that staid performer is perhaps to be regarded as the equivalent of a much wider reaction in other shares accorded less in the way of investment merit. Pennsylvania reported net operating income of $3,818,561 for March showing a contraction of roughly 50 per cent by comparison with the $7,311,801 reported for the same month last year. Net operating income for the first three months this year amounting to $9,309,000 showed a drop of roughly 54 per cent by comparison with the $19,935,036 reported for the corresponding three months of 1930.

At its current price around 23 Lima Locomotive is selling in the stock market for approximately $4,500,000, having nothing ahead of its 192,527 shares of stock. Of the latter amount 18,530 shares are held in the company's treasury. At the close of last year, Lima had cash and government securities totaling $6,196,000, equal to $32.18 a share. Book value as of December 31, 1930, was $63.79 a share. For 1930, Lima reported earnings of $7.18 a share, compared with $2.57 a share in 1929. However, the earnings outlook for the present year is unpromising and this factor undoubtedly accounts for the stock's current depressed valuation. Orders on hand at the start of the year amounted to only $1,047,000, compared with $13,000,000 at the beginning of the preceding year.

Columbian Carbon has been meeting selling because of knowledge that earnings since the beginning of the year have been considerably under dividend requirements, which has led to doubts that the current $5 a share annual rate can be maintained for long unless there is a sudden change in trade conditions. There is no present indication of such change. In the final quarter of last year, Columbian earned 90 cents a share. Since then, there have been further declines in carbon black, so that revenues have been declining.

Date for Alton Hearing Changed

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Further hearings before the Interstate Commerce Commission on the Baltimore and Ohio proposal to acquire control of the Chicago and Alton Railroad through the Alton Railroad, a new company, will be held here on May 7 instead of May 4, as originally set, the commission announced today.

General Electric Gets Subway Order

NEW YORK, April 29.—General Electric Company has received a $2,158,000 equipment order for the New York subway system.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, April 29.—Selling pressure continued to depress the bond market today with the exception of the gilt edge issues. The small volume in many of the issues to decline was as significant a feature as the receding prices and indicated a lack of buying interest.

NEW YORK, April 29.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, 000 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

STOCK MARKET TAKES SHARP TUMBLE

U. S. Steel Drops 8 Points, Westinghouse 6 as Many Others Decline 2 to 10

NEW YORK, April 29.—(AP.)—The shrinkage of equity share values quickened today, as the stock market took its cue from the unexpected drastic slump in the earnings of the United States Steel Corporation, as shown in its quarterly statement.

Many issues dropped 2 to 10 points, with U. S. Steel common recording one of the widest drops since the crash in 1929. Liquidation spread to the Electric Power issues after midday, although that group had been holding up relatively better than other divisions. With some exceptions the rails appeared to be fairly well sold out.

Selling was in rather large volume for a time, but after sharp declines at the opening the list sank slowly. U. S. Steel common tumbled 8 points, getting under 117, and within a few points of its 1927 low. Westinghouse Electric dropped 6 to the lowest in seven years, and Bethlehem Steel more than 3 to the lowest in five years. Other issues losing 3 to more than 4 points included American Can, American Telephone, North American, American Water Works, New York Central, Byers and Allied Chemical.

The mid-week business statistics were more cheerful than recently. The weekly steel trade reviews indicated that the slackening in output of the past five weeks had been at least partially checked. While some observers estimated operations at a slightly lower level, Steel calculated that there had been a slight upturn. Structural steel orders continue a sustaining factor, and there is considerable activity for pipe, although actual replacing of orders is generally being deferred. With the industry operating a little less than 50 per cent of capacity, however, it is evident that it can do little better than break even. The industry was between 75 and 80 per cent a year ago.

Although United States Steel's declaration of its regular dividend of $1.75 for a quarter, which showed profit of only 5 cents a share, was interpreted in some quarters as indicating that the management does not look for a protracted period of adversity, the shrinkage in earnings was so drastic as to cause doubts over maintenance of the dividend at the current rate through the rest of the year.

A sharp rise of 22,068 cars in the loadings was reported for the week ended April 18. This was substantially larger than the normal seasonal gain, and it was notable that miscellaneous freight and less than car load lots or shipments of general merchandise were substantially higher.

Electric power production for the latest week showed a change of trend, and was but 3.1 per cent under last year against a drop of 4.6 per cent in the previous week. The petroleum statistics were mildly encouraging, showing a negligible gain in crude output, but the allowable flow in East Texas is being increased.

STEEL TO PAY FULL $1.75 DIVIDEND

U. S. Orders Regular Payment, from Surplus, Despite Low Earnings

NEW YORK, April 29.—(AP.)—The United States Steel Corporation, its coffers bulging with what it had put by for a rainy day, ordered the regular quarterly disbursement of $1.75 a share to common stockholders yesterday, although its statement for the first quarter of 1931 showed the smallest earnings in nearly 10 years.

Net earnings available for dividends for the quarter amounted to only $6,765,057, which left only $460,138 after payment of the preferred dividend, to meet the regular dividend on 8,699,073 shares of common stock, totaling $15,223,378. The corporation, however, dipped into its large surplus, piled up in prosperous years, to make up the difference of $14,763,240.

The $460,138 for the common shares was only slightly more than 5 cents a share. This was a disappointment to Wall street, where advance estimates of the results of the quarter had indicated that 25 to 50 cents a share might be shown. This was substantially worse than the last quarter of 1930, although it was hoped at that time the lowest point in earning power had been reached. The 5 cents a share compared with earnings from operations in the preceding quarter of 27 cents a share, and non-operating income, reflecting a tax refund credit of 43 cents a share. No nonoperating income was credited for the latest three-month period.

DIVIDEND EXPECTED

Wall street had expected the corporation to pay its regular dividend, however, since it had maintained payments without diminution during the previous major depression 10 years ago. During 1929 and 1930 alone, the corporation earned $127,359,440 more than was paid out to stockholders, so the corporate treasury is well able to tide the shareholders over a lean period. The corporation's latest December balance sheet showed cash and marketable securities on hand of $197,807,000.

Total earnings for the quarter, after deducting all expenses, but before charges for depreciation, etc., amounted to $19,464,836, as reduced from $49,615,397 in the like period of last year and $23,083,791 in the last quarter of 1930.

This was the smallest since the third quarter of 1921, when earnings were roughly $18,900,000. With the exception of that one quarter, the first three months of 1931 saw the lowest earnings for this major unit in the steel industry since the first quarter of 1915, when industry was still paralyzed by the first shock of the outbreak of the World War.

Sugar Market.

NEW YORK, April 29.—Raw sugar was unchanged early today at 3.20 for spot duty paid. Refiners were reported late yesterday bought a cargo of 50,000 bags of Philippines and 10,000 bags of Porto Ricos for early May arrival at 3.20 delivered.

Refined withdrawals on old contracts were of fair proportions, but new business continued light and was supplied through second hands. Refiners were unchanged with refinery bought at 4.40 and second hands available below this level.

Steel Prices.

Youngstown Production Below Pittsburgh

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

YOUNGSTOWN, April 29.

STEEL PRODUCTION IN THE Youngstown district has been substantially below that of Pittsburgh and other important centers during the past month. The majority of companies in Youngstown are working at only 35 per cent capacity in comparison with slightly over 50 per cent for Pittsburgh and for the United States as a whole.

The lack of any large orders for pipe has been the major factor in keeping down the general rate of operations in Youngstown. While several important contracts have been placed for material for large pipe lines, producers in the Youngstown district have failed to share in these.

Operations of Youngstown mills are concentrated on the production of pipe and of material used by the automobile industry such as sheets and strip. The automobile industry has improved its rate of production since the beginning of the year, but during recent weeks production in this field has tended to lag. This, with the lack of pipe orders, has kept operations in Youngstown at a low rate.

Earnings Decline

THE LOW RATE OF PRODUCTION has been particularly apparent in the earnings of companies in the Youngstown district. The principal operators showed either losses or negligible profits in the first quarter of 1931 and, unless new orders are received, little improvement can be expected in the second quarter.

The attitude of steel producers in the Youngstown district was briefly summarized by Frank Purnell, president of Youngstown Sheet and Tube, when he said to his stockholders:

"It is hoped we have reached the bottom of the depression. We do not look for any material improvement but believe there will be a gradual upturn."

Tin Plate Leads Output

IN YOUNGSTOWN AS IN PITTSBURGH tin plate mills constitute the only branch of the steel industry which is enjoying a satisfactory rate of production. Mills making this product are working at from 70 to 80 per cent of capacity.

Makers of new types of electrically welded tubular products are having difficulty in getting a satisfactory reception of their output. New mills installed to utilize recently developed processes for making pipe of this kind in the Youngstown district have not been particularly busy. On the other hand the A. O. Smith Corporation, pioneer producer of this type of tubular equipment, has received a very substantial share of the recent pipe line orders.

Specialty Plants Busier

SOME OF THE MAKERS of specialty types of steel products in the Youngstown district report that their volume of business is improving. This reflects moderate gains in building activity and has helped the sales of such organizations as General Fireproofing and Newton Steel.

Steel men in Youngstown are of the general opinion that the change in the affairs of Cyrus S. Eaton will pave the way for the completion of a new agreement for a consolidation of Youngstown Sheet and Tube with Bethlehem Steel. They believe that Eaton's recent difficulties have made him more inclined to take a favorable view of the consolidation. They also expect the change in control of Continental Shares to have a bearing on the future of Republic Steel. Republic will now be under the influence of the same group controlling Youngstown Sheet and Tube. This may cast an entirely new light upon merger possibilities in the steel industry.

THE SECRET SIX -:- By Frances Marion

Gang Puzzled When Leader Is Shot to Death

CHAPTER XVIII.

A sensational melodramatic story of the underworld, adapted from the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer-Cosmopolitan picture.

Hank, rushing from the steak house, stumbled down the sidewalk, almost blindly. Grief and anger racked him, and something inside him seemed to be dead. He did not notice he was followed, until Carl laid a hand gently on his arm.

"Something happened—what is it?" inquired the other reporter. Hank shook his head, silently.

"Come on, Hank—snap out of it—whatever it is. We both have to stick around tonight pretty close—for there's something going to pop. You can sense that over in Scorpio's joint. Be yourself!"

"Good old Carl—guess you're right!" he muttered. Carl grinned jovially, and slapped him on the back.

Shows Jeweled Case

"That's the stuff—buck up! I have a cigaret—and we'll go get a drink." He proffered a cigaret case, and Hank started in surprise.

For what Carl handed him was an elaborate gold affair, resplendent with a jeweled "C"—the replica of the one Scorpio had so recently offered to him!

There was no word spoken between the two men. Hank looked at Carl, long and steadily. Carl met his eyes for a moment, and then dropped them, with a shame-faced expression.

Then he turned his head, as though he could not look his old friend in the eyes.

Hank, as one very weary, turned and walked toward a waiting taxi. Carl stood, watching, until long after the machine had whirled out of sight. Then, with an odd little smile, the reporter turned, and retraced his steps to Scorpio's headquarters.

Anne, made up, was behind the counter again—but what a different Anne! Her cheeks heavily rouged, her eyes brilliant with a strange light.

"Hello, kid!" she greeted him, as he entered the place. "How's every little thing?" Carl looked at her, uncomprehending at first. Then he smelled the tang of raw whisky. He wore a thoughtful frown as he turned toward the back rooms, and nodded absently to Scorpio, as he chose a table. Newton, standing on the stairway, watched with a quizzical light in his gray eyes.

Over the place hung an air of expectancy. Scorpio seemed ill at ease. Once he strode over to Anne's counter, and spoke a few words to her. Anne laughed almost hysterically. He whispered to her.

"Oh, sure—big boy!" she shrilled, her voice strangely unnatural. "Sure—anything goes now. I'll run your old dance hall—anything!" Scorpio turned back to his post by the stairs, an odd grin on his repulsive face. Newton eyed him keenly.

"Steady," the lawyer hissed through his teeth as Scorpio passed him, then turned, and started back toward the cigar counter again. "Keep your head—and don't tip anything."

Scorpio nodded.

"It won't be long now," he muttered to the lawyer.

Carl watched the bi-play. His eyes traveled over to the telephone booths in the corner of the place. Several of Scorpio's men sat near it, and, it seemed, were eyeing the instruments almost with apprehension. Carl Luckner couldn't understand.

The shrill wail of a police siren cut short his bewilderment. Past the restaurant door roared the police ambulance, two cars of officers behind it. He started for the door in too much of a hurry to see the quick glance that passed between Scorpio and Newton, and, hailing the taxi at the curb, started in pursuit of the police cars.

Gang Leader Slain

In the restaurant, Scorpio and Newton stood, tense, waiting. Crowds on the street were milling past, following the ambulance. It turned, three blocks down, and headed toward the river front. Carl's taxi roared around the corner after it. A crowd encircled something on the approach to the bridge. As his taxi pulled up he saw a figure detach itself from the encircling throng, and, keeping carefully in the shadows, proceed back toward Centro's main street.

It was Hank.

In the steak-house, Scorpio and Newton, with their little group, waited, obviously trying to be nonchalant. Then a man, hatless and out of breath, hurried in.

"Joe Colimo's been murdered!" announced the newcomer. "They found his body near the drawbridge—it had been dumped out of his taxi. And over in the alley they found the kid who did it—dead!"

Secret Meeting Called

Before the presses had started to whirl out extras on the new gang murder, six silent men, hurriedly called, had gathered in the secret headquarters in the high office building in the city.

"Well," remarked Donlan, "it's come at last."

"I was talking to one of our operatives today," he remarked, "and it seems that Colimo and Scorpio were talking about merging their interests. Colimo's men knew about it—that means they were all pretty scared of Scorpio's gang—and I shouldn't wonder if Scorpio just moved in and took hold without any resistance at all."

"That will avoid an out and out gang war, at least," hopefully suggested another of the Six. Markham shrugged.

"Yes, perhaps," he replied. "But think what it will mean around town. Both gangs had the small business men terrorized, as well as labor unions and the commission markets. The other day there was a one cent raise in potatoes. Know why? To pay tribute to Colimo—he started out in the commission houses, you know. The Consolidated Grape Association put up a howl yesterday—the gangsters are holding up their shipments of grape juice—because people make wine and hurt their liquor sales.

"I think it's about time to get that vigilance committee ready," said the tall man in the corner of the room. Ryan was commander of the American Legion. His thoughts ran to action.

Gentle, bewhiskered old Judge Barstow held up a hand.

"We'd better wait and see what happens, and invoke the law first," he temporized. "After all, the law's a pretty good thing."

Markham nodded slowly.

"Yes," he cautioned. "Let's not use the other until all legal weapons fail."

In Scorpio's headquarters, the gang chief and Newton stood, waiting by the stairs, and watching the restaurant door until Metz sidled in. Looking about, at the now almost deserted restaurant, the Dummy sidled to Scorpio, who smiled grimly. Making sure that no eyes were upon them, Metz quickly handed Scorpio a revolver, which the gang leader quickly hid in his coat. A moment later, Scorpio was in the private office, carefully cleaning the weapon.

The gang chief whirled as the Gouger entered the room.

"There's Hell popping in the city at Colimo's place. Eddie Kluse—you know him—and Gardenia just had a talk with me. They can't understand just why Colimo was bumped off by that kid—especially as you and he were talking partnership."

"No suspicion we did it?" demanded Scorpio. "I was afraid there might be—not that we did, you understand—but just because of—well, general principles."

"Nope—they don't seem to connect our layout with it in any way—and Gardenia wanted me to tell you that they'll be glad to work with you. In fact, they figure you and Newton are about the only people who can take Joe's place."

Scorpio grinned.

"I'll go down and tell Newton about it," he announced, indicating the liquor locker to the Gouger. "Get outside of a drink or so until I get back."

Gangsters Puzzled

He hastened downstairs, to the landing from which Newton was still quietly surveying the restaurant and the crowds in the street beyond. A surge of friendliness swept over Scorpio as he watched the lawyer. In his hour of triumph he forgot the biting contempt, the calm superiority of the attorney which had so long irked him.

"Well, what do you say, Pard?" he demanded, placing his hand affectionately on Newton's shoulder.

The other turned, and regarded the gangster with a cold stare. Slowly, Newton reached up, took Scorpio's sleeve in thumb and finger, and removed the hand from his shoulder, with the same disgust that one would remove a bug. Scorpio winced under the look—then rage suffused his lowering countenance.

"I'd kill any other guy for a call-down like that!" he grated. Newton regarded him, half in amusement, half in contempt, then turned again to watch the street. Scorpio thought again of triumphs in store. His frown vanished.

"Well, now, we're moving up to the city," he gloated, "and we're going to make all this jack, I'll be able to get swell clothes, a swell dump to live in, and a flock of spig servants." He paused to spit a quid of tobacco on the carpet.

"Yes, sir," he proclaimed. "From now on, I'm gonna be a gentleman!"

Newton turned to regard the gangster with a faint sneer.

"A man," the lawyer stated, "is born a gentleman!"

DAILY TRUE STORY — Playing the Horses

Misguiding Letter Almost Leads to Disaster

(From Mavis Hartman, visiting her aunt in Chicago, to her father, Maj. George Hartman, in Germantown, Pa.)

Dear Dad: Well, I think I have met him!

So much for my promise to let you know at once when I meet the man I believe I would gladly say "yes" to.

He doesn't live here in Chicago, he lives in Greenvale, Ohio. Aunt May doesn't know him. That is, she did not know him until he called for me to take me over to Connie Osgood's farm—her father's farm, of course. You remember Connie, she visited me last year.

I met Preston (Oh, yes, his name is Preston Baxter, but I didn't fall in love with his name, I fell in love with him. No, I haven't told him so as yet) at Connie's married sister's home here. It was the usual sort of a party that nice folks like Connie's people would give.

I'm sure you'd like him. He plays cards the way you do—attends strictly to card playing and leaves the chatter out until tea is served. And what's more, he thinks contract is silly and prefers auction, just like you.

It won't interest you much to know that he dances like a professional, but assures me he never was a professional dancer. It will interest you to know that he dances like a gentleman instead of like a trained hugging bear or Pawnee Indian.

Father Answers Letter

He has gone back to his home now, but next week we are all going back to Connie's farm for a week-end. Connie's married sister says that Preston is quite all right.

Oh, yes, we are calling each other Preston and Mavis.

More information anon.

Love and kisses. MAVIS.

P. S.—I've read this letter over—it's all mixed up, but you will get an idea, I hope, that I'm in love at last.—M.

(From Maj. Gregory Hartman to his daughter Mavis.)

Dear Mavee Child—So you think——just think——that you are in love at last!

Well, well—or is it well? Are you sure?

Naturally you would keep your promise. But I have garnered only a few facts from your letter. The form of the letter, itself, makes it plain that at least you think you are in love. This man (has he any particular age?) dances like a gentleman and plays auction the way I play it—good. Or, if he is any good, I'll wager I can beat him. He lives in a village. I looked that up, it isn't on the map, but it is in the Post Office guide.

I always had an idea that young ladies described the man who appealed to them. You didn't metnion whether he was freckled and bandy-legged or fat and knock-kneed.

Dad Makes Inquiries

(From Mavis Hartman to her father.)

Dear Dad: Y'rs rec'd and contents noted.

Re Mr. Preston Baxter, would say:

Items:
1 pair wide-apart blue-gray eyes.
1 pleasantly firm chin.
1 head wavy dark brown hair.
1 height of (guessed) 5 ft. 11 in.
1 baritone voice.

He doesn't look like a male movie star or a collar adv. lad, he looks like a regular man. He's 29.

He thinks I'm beautiful. I have his word for it. He kissed me last night when he helped me out of the canoe. We had been up river on Connie's farm on a picnic.

I didn't object at all.

How's that for garnering facts?

Love and kisses,
MAVIS.

(A letter to Mrs. John Waring of Batavia, Ohio, from Maj. Gregory Hartman, of Germantown.)

Dear Mary: As an old friend of the family I am going to ask a favor of you. Mavis is 20. Imagine it! She was 14 when last you saw her, wasn't she? Well, she's 20 and thinks she is in love.

Just now she is visiting Connie Osgood and her aunt May in Chicago and environs and she has met one Preston Baxter of Greenvale, Ohio. Searching for Greenvale on the map I find that it isn't far from Batavia.

Now—while Mavis seems to be really in love with this chap—he is 29—she hasn't furnished me with any details about him.

Will it be possible for you to investigate him? What does he do for a living? What is his background?

You will understand my anxiety I am sure and I can rely on you to give me the facts.

I am about the same as ever. Sister Grace remains the same, cheerful, despite her lameness, which is probably permanent.

Most sincerely,
GREGORY HARTMAN.

Preston Proposes

(From Mavee Child to Dear Dad.)

Dear Dad: Inclosed find one photograph—it's a little snapshot taken out at Connie's father's farm. Please don't be facetious and ask which is Preston. The one on the right is Preston, the one on the left is your much-in-love Mavee Child. The one in the middle is "Radio." Radio, if you can not guess, is a horse.

Isn't he handsome? Preston, I mean, not Radio.

And, by the way, he's awfully fast. Radio, I mean, not Preston.

Now sit down and take it easy—I'm going to tell you something IMPORTANT!

Preston wants to marry me!

And I want him to marry me, although I haven't exactly told him so.

I told him that one Maj. Gregory Hartman wasn't much of an ogre and that he would probably escape practically unscathed from an interview with you, but that he must undergo the ordeal. He has to go back to Greenvale on some business affairs and in a week or 10 days he is coming back to see you.

Whether you say yes or no seems to me about the most important thing in the world to me.

Love and kisses. MAVIS.

Mrs. Waring Replies

(From Mrs. John Waring, of Batavia, O., to Maj. Gregory Hartman, of Germantown, Pa.)

Dear Gregory: Always the same thoughtful and clever good friend and wise father.

Owing to John's illness I couldn't get out to Greenvale to look up this Preston Baxter person. However, old Mrs. Tournier, a French-Canadian woman who worked for us for 20 years, is married and lives in Greenvale. I managed to get her by telephone at her husband's garage and she told me about this young Mr. Baxter. I am afraid you will be considerably upset. I will quote Mrs. Tournier:

"Yes, I know, Mist. Baxter—he don't do nothings much except he always play the horses."

There you are, Gregory. I'm sorry. Anything else I may do to help, just say the word.

With haste and affection,
MARY WARING.

Dear Grace: I'd never forgive myself if I hadn't come out here and I shall always regret sending word to Mavis that she couldn't marry Mr. Baxter.

Everything's all right!

Baxter will be on in October and marry Mavis.

It seems that this French woman meant that Baxter was always training the horses. He's a wealthy and prominent horse breeder.

Mavis is on here with me now and I am forgiven.

GREGORY.

WELL GEORGE, I'M THE LAST PERSON IN THE WORLD TO SAY I TOLD YOU SO, BUT NOTHING THOSE BUNGLES DO WOULD SURPRISE ME IN THE LEAST.
FINE STUFF! I SIT UP NIGHTS FINDING AN ESTATE AND THEN THOSE WISE BUNGLES, WHO COULDN'T FIND NOISE IN A FOUNDRY, ARE HOLLERING THEIR HEADS OFF ABOUT WHERE'S MINE? IS THAT JUSTICE? NO!
I'VE SEEN THIS THING COMING EVER SINCE YOU STARTED OUT TO FIND AN ESTATE. I KNOW THOSE BUNGLES. I KNOW HOW THEY ACT WHEN THEY GET THE NOTION THAT SOMEONE ELSE MAY BE A LITTLE BETTER OFF THAN THEY ARE.

"While making talkie shorts in Hollywood I heard of an all-Indian jazz band playing in a small town in Arizona. I went there to hear them and possibly arrange for them to come to the studio for a sound recording.

"'Are all of you really Indians?' I asked. 'If you are I am sure I can put you over big in a sound specialty.'

"'Vat vould be da use of kiddin' wit you?' replied the chief. 'Ve are all fool blodt.'"

I never have reproached you, sweet, because my heart you stole:
My love for you was so replete—it seared my very soul,
Yet, graciously, I took defeat, complained not of love's toll;

A Victory for the People Over Forces of Privilege

Gov. Roosevelt has signed the Cornaire bill creating a power authority to negotiate with the federal and Canadian governments with reference to the building of a dam in the St. Lawrence River and the erection of a hydro-electric station to utilize the power thus made available.

This marks a great forward step—the successful culmination of a struggle waged by the Governor of New York with his customary intelligence, persistence and force.

The principle of state development and operation of the people's water power resources is now embodied in a law of the state, declaring the rights of the people in their natural power resources to be perpetual and inalienable.

Gov. Roosevelt deserves congratulations. The success of this measure, which will always be associated with his name, was achieved against resolute and formidable opposition.

It is a victory for the citizenship not only of New York state, but of every state in the Union, whom it will hearten and encourage in the unending struggle for the conservation of their rights against adroit and unsleeping forces of privilege.

Blue Law Change Wins

Test Vote Seems to Assure Final Success of Baseball Amendment in House.

Advocates of a modern Sunday observance law for Pennsylvania should feel much encouraged by the vote of the House of Representatives on an amendment to the Schwartz bill, the purpose of which is to grant local option to communities concerning Sunday baseball. The result is to put the bill as amended on the House calendar for third reading as a special order of business next Monday night.

A few days ago blue law advocates, 101 to 99, defeated an amendment having the same purpose. The vote yesterday was 103 to 99 in favor of the amendment. Two additional votes were cast for it by the Allegheny County delegation, these having been given by Representative S. J. Grenet, who was recorded absent when the previous vote was taken, and by Representative John A. Rhodes, who was recorded against the amendment in the last blue law test. The total for the county delegation thus was 20 in favor, compared to 18 previously.

Next Monday 105 votes will be needed. The adoption of the amendment, we believe, assures success in the House for the first successful attack on the blue law, but it does not mean that we shall have Sunday baseball at once. There is the Senate to win over and then the Governor. However, since the sentiment in the most populous centers of the state is predominantly in favor of a more liberal Sunday law there is reason for hope that our lawmakers of the upper branch of the General Assembly and the Executive may be guided by that sentiment.

The seven Allegheny County representatives who so far have not helped in the movement still have time to get in line.

Tax Warning Sounded

Former Mayor Magee Points Out Possibility of Increase in Rate

William A. Magee, former mayor, yesterday told members of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board that "local taxation in many places already has reached the point of confiscation." We quote it as indicating a tendency of particular significance when coupled with an earlier statement in the same address that city expenditures have been increasing at an average of $2,000,000 yearly since 1926, with a corresponding increase in taxes. In 1931 he notes tax increase was avoided because the city obtained approximately $1,000,000 from sources that cannot be expected to yield the same amount again.

Mr. Magee, deep student of the science of city government, infers that the tax rate is to begin a new ascent in 1932 unless new sources of revenue appear or drastic reduction in expenditures be undertaken.

At the last session of Council as a budget-making body appeals were heard from property owners that expenditures be held in check, since property already was bearing all the burden of taxation it was able to carry. Such appeals may be expected to be accentuated at the next session because, due to the depression, many properties will have suffered a loss of income.

Since it is improbable that new sources of revenue will be discovered, it behooves our public servants to keep in mind the necessity of holding expenditures within such bounds as to assure no increase of the present rate of taxation. Indeed, a decrease would be highly desirable.

That taxes will be lower is predicted by Paul M. Kydd, of the Bureau of Government, who looks for a reduction of one mill. He thinks it will be brought about partly by economies and partly by increased receipts of the city treasurer's office as a result of collections under a new billing system. Better yields are to be expected, especially from water rentals, he says.

Women to Help Gardeners

Clubs Promoting Tilling of Vacant Lands as Means Of Aiding Needy.

Cultivation of garden plots as a means of relief for the unemployed is being sponsored by the State Federation of Women's Clubs. The federation has asked the women's clubs of Allegheny County to co-operate to the extent of learning about suitable garden sites near the homes of the needy. The clubs, according to Mrs. John M. Philips, of Carrick, president of the state organization, will be prepared to assist families unable to buy seeds for planting.

This commendable purpose is one that has the appearance of being a practical way to aid many people. It is said that not all vacant land is tillable, and there are numerous families that probably would be glad to engage in gardening who live too far from suitable ground. However, there appears to be possibility of obtaining substance for many families from plots that would be unused otherwise.

In view of the present serious situation, it seems that it would be most negligent if there be failure to take advantage of any possible practical way of giving aid to those who need help so badly. The club women must be praised for taking up this work, and it is to be hoped that everything that anyone can do to aid them will be done.

Doctors on the Bench

They Might Help.

A six-year-old North Carolina boy put rocks on the track of the Southern Railroad recently. A train was derailed, four passengers hurt, and the boy hailed into court.

The judge, after consulting a physician, sentenced the youngster to have his tonsils and adenoids removed. He thought the "criminal tendencies" were probably due to poor health.

It would be an excellent thing if all judges would apply that idea to all criminals. How often crime is due to some physical or mental defect that could be cured by proper treatment is a question nobody knows much about, but about which much ought to be known.

Gigolo-Husbands

The gigolo is no longer a creature of fiction. He has become a fact.

Modern husbands come in two varieties—providers and pets.

The Good Provider is a fur-buying animal, a cash register and a producer of bacon, bonds, bungalows and automobiles. He is useful, but not necessarily decorative. He possesses all the solid qualities, but few of the lighter graces. He doesn't NEED them. He is the Big Shot in the house.

The pet, or gigolo-husband, on the other hand, must earn his keep by the sweat of his pride, his tact and his dancing-foot. He must know a lot of parlor tricks, and respond to the touch on the bridle like a pinto pony. He must be able to play golf, dance divinely, run any kind of car, mix a perfect cocktail, exercise the Peke, powder his wife's back, boost her game, and act as a background and foil for her charms.

He should cultivate a taste for poetry and chamber music, practice a flattering "line" and know just when to order flowers. All of which you will admit requires a special genius, artistic skill, and a lot of self-sacrifice.

A perfect gigolo-husband EARNS every penny that he receives. But, alas, how few men who marry for money or a soft snap are willing to pay the price! How many of them lie down on the job and begin short-changing and double-crossing the lady, the moment she has signed on the dotted line.

Here and there, you will find a husband who is both a Good Provider and possessed of all the charms and accomplishments of a perfect pet—but the woman who draws one of these in the Big Lottery, never seems to know how lucky she is!

THE UNIVERSE GROWS

By Archibald Henderson

The recent discovery of a very remote spiral nebula with an enormously high velocity and the new theory of the Abbe Le Maitre regarding equilibrium in the universe, are now causing a modification of our views regarding the universe as a whole. It is said that, as a result of the discoveries made by the Mount Wilson astronomers and astrophysicists, Einstein has abandoned one of his views regarding the nature of the universe.

The static universe of Einstein contains matter, but no systematic motions. The empty universe of De Sitter contains systematic motions but no matter. The universe in which we live contains both matter and systematic motions. The great extragalactic systems, such as very remote nebulae, are hastening away from us at enormous speeds. Moreover, it cannot be denied that there is a considerable amount of matter in the universe; but just how much we do not know. If the matter in the universe were crumbled up and scattered uniformly throughout the universe, how low would be the average mean density of matter? Would it be so low as to approximate to the condition of an empty universe?

A rough calculation has recently been made by the Dutch astronomer, De Sitter, in the effort to determine this point. It has been estimated, from astronomical observation, that there is one galactic system in every cube of a million light-years side. In a universe of 2,000 million light-years, a recent figure which is doubtless much too small, it is not difficult to show that there would be about eighty thousand million galactic systems. It is safe to assume that each galactic system, on the average, has a mass of ten thousand million suns. The total mass follows directly by multiplication. It follows then that if all the galactic systems and the stars of which they are composed could be pulverized or evaporated to protons and electrons, or atoms of hydrogen, and these distributed over the whole universe, there would be about one in every three cubic feet.

Now we know that in the most perfect vacuum we are able to produce in our laboratories, there are many billions in every three cubic feet. And it must be borne in mind that, in this calculation, De Sitter is using the word billion in the continental sense, as a million million, that is one followed by 12 ciphers, instead of by nine, according to American practice.

It happens that the static universe has a theoretical density, which is not difficult to compute. The total mass comes out only 10 times what was found above. So that the actual universe is far from empty; indeed, it is, all things considered, surprisingly full. With the newly discovered recessional velocity of 11,000 miles per second, some changes in the figures may be expected, but no change in the general principle involved. And that principle lands us in a serious dilemma. The universe seems to be both full and empty at the same time!

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I well remember with what indignant surprise I first discovered that honesty is not always the best policy.

I was 9 years old. In common with three other young gangsters I had put mucilage on the seat of teacher's chair. It seemed great while we were doing it. And we strangled with giggles as we watcher teacher's face when she tried to rise. But five seconds thereafter it ceased to be in the least funny. For teacher was mad . . . goshawful mad! And she demanded a complete and immediate confession from the offending criminals. I was convulsed with terror. In the ecstasy of the adventure, I have never thought of consequences. (I never do!) And now, what was going to happen?

My three conspirators had no doubt as to what was going to happen. Being practical young souls, they knew perfectly well that nothing was going to happen, as far as they were concerned. They were simply going to sit tight and keep their mouths shut. Which they thereupon proceeded to do. But me—of course I had to go and be different!

To me, only one course seemed open. . . To Tell The Truth. Do not assume from this that I was naturally more God Fearing than my young contemporaries. Far from it! But for years 'n' years, Papa and Mamma had been telling me that Honesty Was The Best Policy. They, of course, referred to my soul's welfare. But what did I care about my soul's welfare or my possible future rating in the heavenly audit? I wanted results, right here and now. And I believed that honesty would get them. . . that if I would tell the truth, everybody would love me and make over me and say What A Wonderful Child That Little Robinson Girl Is!

So I told the truth. And what did I get? Gentle Reader, I got it in the neck. Did Teacher beam upon me and hold me up as a Beautiful Example to the class? Did those other Fraid Cats stand up, shamed by my courage, and confess that they'd helped buy that mucilage at Phillipson's Drug Store? She did not, nor did they. They snickered—that's what they did. And Teacher sent me to the principal. Who promptly bounced me home to Mamma's tender mercy. And then what did Mamma do? . . . Mamma who had so glowingly indorsed the beauty of Honesty? Why Mamma gave me the works. And that's what I got for Telling The Truth.

I've lived 38 years since then. I've put a lot of mucilage on a lot of chairs and . . . at times . . . I've told the truth about it. But I must sadly record that the results were usually the same. Honesty ISN'T always the best policy. And if you want to give your youngster the straight dope on life, and arm him against its vicious surprises, you had better tell him so.

Tell him fair that if he's after money . . . or applause . . . or safety . . . or pleasure . . . honesty isn't the best policy. Maybe it will work but the chances are that a tricky technique will get him quicker and fatter results. Tell him that . . . for he'll find it out for himself, anyway. And he may then, in his shock, discard your whole creed of morals.

So be honest about honesty. Warn your youngster that, from a material viewpoint, honesty is a doubtful risk. But also tell him that, from the angle of spiritual returns, it's the best gamble he ever can take. For the honest man has something that millions cannot buy. He has, in his own soul, freedom and lack of fear . . . he has peace and pride and strength that bear compound interest. Maybe Life will give him the works . . . but in rare, quiet moments he will feel he stands straight with God.

Dreams Can Come True

But Will Power Does It, the Mere Dream Is Nothing.

JEAN JULES VERNE. HIS GRANDFATHER DREAMED IT. HE WILL DO IT.

When men now 60 years old were boys they read Jules Verne's imaginative story about a trip of "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea." The brilliant Frenchman of the last century felt that science would do all that men could imagine, and in his novels he allowed himself to dream of future achievements.

He wrote his "Around the World in Eighty Days," and during his lifetime Nelly Bly, a brilliant young American newspaper girl, made the trip by steamboat, rail and other primitive methods in less than 80 days.

We now are well in sight of a time when men will fly around the earth in three days or less.

And already the dream of a trip "under the sea" is reality, and the man in the picture above, the Jules Verne of this generation, grandson of the French novelist and an able French lawyer, will actually make the trip under the ocean and, most marvelous of all, THROUGH THE ARCTIC CIRCLE TO THE NORTH POLE.

Mr. Verne is to accompany Sir Hubert Wilkins.

They will be the first human beings that were ever UNDER the North Pole. And Jules Verne's dream will have come true.

Other dreams come true, if we WORK TO MAKE THEM COME TRUE, as science, industry and engineering skill have worked to make the submarine a reality.

They are the disordered product of the brain in sleep, when the "belt is off the driving wheel," and nothing means anything.

Dreams of science come true when energy and skill work to realize them.

Dreams of ambition come true when men back them with will power, hard work and self-denial.

Dreams that fathers and mothers dream for their children come true when the children are properly brought up, have the right example put before them and are born with the right heredity.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 29.—Those gravely austere faces Fifth avenue strollers dully lanterned in the melancholy windows of the old Union League Club are now seen in the new Park avenue abode, a few blocks eastward. The recently finished structure offers a contrasting sprightliness.

It is at the Thirty-seventh street corner and built of light brick instead of dull red. The old club for some reason symbolized a decrepitude. Members appeared to die without ever having really lived. There was the mustiness of blenched roses. But in the new location there is a sparkling touch and go.

Indeed with the removal many changes have come to the venerable institution. Not since its beginning have women been permitted to cross the threshold. But on Park there are quarters for the ladies. This innovation is said to have created a ruckus at first.

Ladies will not enter through the main entrance. There is a special doorway and a private elevator to which they are whisked to their section. It is a spacious room with dining room, rest room, deep cushioned chairs and sundry creature comforts.

A wife of a member is eligible to drop in at the club at any time, but no husband may visit the ladies' quarters unless he receives a special invitation from his wife. The abandoned club on the avenue is now being torn down to make way for an office building.

The new club has 12 different dining rooms, which includes a large banquet hall for strictly state occasions. In its past it has entertained almost every visitor of great importance coming to New York. Memorable speeches and pronouncements of international significance have been delivered there.

The Union League is starchy with tradition and I am told that among some of the old timers there are many who bow aloofly as the result of some political grievance of years ago. Noise is abhorred and so the main floor is carpeted with cork.

In one venerable club is a 63-year-old member who drops in every late afternoon, goes to his locker, pours a stiff peg of whisky and drinks it neat. Then he sits in his favorite chair and smokes two cigarets. In 20 years he has not used more than this daily allotment of liquor and tobacco. What a man!

Next to Mayor Walker there is said to be no one in New York so tardy in his appointments as Anthony Fokker, known to aviation as "The Flying Dutchman." his home is in Alpine, N. J., but he is in town daily. And usually two or three hours late to lunch.

Newark is trying to get rid of its Chinatown—the denizens of which migrated from the New York quarter. It is four blocks of ancient brown stone houses with a sleazy arcade running through it. Raids on opium smoking and gambling are made weekly. New York's Chinatown has one red letter day weekly—Sunday—when Chinese from all over come for a promenade. The rest of the time it is a shell.

I have been having a gay time reading a yellowed volume called: "The American Letter Writer and Mirror of Polite Behavior; a useful guide in letter writing with rules of conduct." In a sample letter captioned "A punning letter from a young man to his sweetheart" is this windup: "Do not think me unreasonable, nor call up the rosy blush, if I ask for a few buds of your favorite cow slip—no, I crave pardon, I mean my favorite—your Two Lips."

My mother-in-law frequently resurrects some of the epistolary endearments of my callow adolescence to read before company. One that always sends me hurriedly out of the room includes this honey: "I'll work my fingers to the bone for you." It generally leaves everybody in stitches. As though I might be a bum.
